White House spying claimed by Weicker

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lowell R. Weicker says he has evidence the White House spied on a dozen major politicians and used the Internal Revenue Service to pry loose data on entertainers such as Frank Sinatra and Sammy Davis Jr.

Weicker said he also has White House and other Nixon administration documents to show that IRS tax intelligence was used to protect such "White House friends" as evangelist Billy Graham and movie star John Wayne once tax audits on them began.

Weicker, a Republican member of the Senate Watergate committee, said he has obtained other documents showing the full extent of more than 50 political investigations conducted by the White House between 1969 and 1972 by undercover political operative Anthony Ulasewicz.

Other newly uncovered documentations show the "blatant," improper and perhaps illegal use of such federal agencies as the IRS to move against socalled political "enemies," Weicker said.

In addition, he said he has received new evidence of the use of intelligence from the Department of Commerce and the Pentagon to embarrass Sens. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, and George McGovern, D-S.D., and to use U.S. Army intelligence operatives to spy on a Democratic party affiliate in Berlin, Germany.

The Connecticut Republican is scheduled to present his evidence Monday as he testifies before three Senate subcommittees holding joint hearings into political spying and the use of warrantless wiretaps for "national security" purposes.

Weicker did not say how or where he had obtained the documents but aides said they include records of the Ulasewicz investigations, the White House files of John Cualfield, his immediate superior, White House memos relating to use of the IRS and memos concerning military spying on political groups.

The memos were described as confirming names previously identified as Ulasewicz targets as well as adding names never before listed publicly.

Weicker did not explain why the White House would be interested in checking the tax records of Sinatra and Davis, both Nixon backers in 1972.

Weicker said the documents show that the White House also made political use of the confidential IRS files on these entertainers:

Richard Boone, Jerry Lewis, Peter Lawford, Lucille Ball, Gary Morton and Fred MacMurray.

He said Gov. Ronald Reagan of California also was on the list.

Alleged attempts to use the IRS for political purposes, especially in connection with a so-called White House "enemies" list, were first surfaced during the Watergate testimony of former White House counsel John W. Dean III.

Weicker said he has documents to confirm or add these names to the list of Ulasewicz' investigative targets:

Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, former New York City Mayor John V. Lindsay and former Sen. George Murphy, RCalif.

Also Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore.; John Tunney, D-Calif.; Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.; and Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine.

In addition, Weicker said there is documentary evidence that Ulasewicz tailed the movements of a secretary to Rose Kennedy, the matriarch of the Kennedy family.

Residents get assistance

BY RON JENNINGS
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

The winds of winter have seeped through the thin walls at 501 East Fourth for the 12 years Miss Sarah Klein has lived there.

And, in the summer, the sun's rays have permeated her living room with equally-intense impact.

Miss Klein, and her elderly mother, have managed to endure the seasonal discomforts, content with only minor improvements their budget, based solely on a pension and social security, and limited working abilities permitted. That is until this weekend.

On Saturday, protective insulation was installed in their home without cost by three State Fair Community College students, Gary Gill, Steve Brauer and Molly McCloskey. Also helping in the project was Ann Murrell, a community organization coordinator for the Missouri Valley Human Resource Development Corp., Manpower office here.

The project, part of an overall Manpower program to assist older citizens in adapting to the energy crisis, "is exactly what we had in mind when the idea was conceived," Ms. Murrell said. "You might say it all started out with interest in helping those persons cope with the energy shortage who could not afford to do so or who couldn't do so because of physical limitations."

Similar insulation projects have been undertaken in Saline County, with additional efforts to be conducted soon in Pettis County.

"We wanted to do something that wouldn't be out of this world or strictly theoretical, something that could result in immediate concrete results," she said. "It's common knowledge that, with proper insulation, a home can be both heated and cooled less expensively and with a lesser amount of fuel and energy.

Notice of the free installation service was first made in February and , Miss Klein said, she didn't waste much time

Nixon tax review continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional committee found that President Nixon incorrectly took a $70,000 tax deduction for giving papers to the government in 1968, but he apparently won't have to pay additional taxes for it.

Nixon has agreed to pay about $465,000 in back taxes and interest assessed by the Internal Revenue Service for the first four years of his presidency, 1969 through 1972. But the IRS didn't audit his 1968 return, and the statute of limitations has run out.

The staff of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, which Nixon asked to review his 1969-72 returns, said it also looked at the taxes paid in 1968.

The 1968 study was necessary to determine how the handling of Nixon's first gift of papers to the government differed from the handling of the second, much larger gift the next year, the staff report said. And it was possible that a carryover of the 1968 charitable contribution deduction would reduce the President's taxes in following years.

The committee staff, however, did not audit the full 1968 return, and Nixon has never made it public. The report said only that the papers were appraised at $80,000 and that Nixon took the maximum allowable deduction for charitable contributions, including $70,552.27 for the papers. This left $9,447.73 available for carryover in future years.

Internal Revenue laws permit a taxpayer to deduct up to 30 per cent of his adjusted gross income each year for charitable contributions, if at least 10 per cent of that goes to a government agency such as the National Archives.

Unlike the case of the $576,000 deduction claimed in 1969 for the gift of papers, there were few facts in dispute about how and when the 1968 gift was made. The papers were selected and appraised in Nixon's law offices in New York, and a deed for them was turned over to the National Archives on Dec. 30, 1968, just in time to claim a deduction on Nixon's 1968 tax return due the following April.

The primary question at issue is whether the conditions set out in the deed were so restrictive that Nixon was not actually giving away the documents but giving away a "future interest" in them.

The future interest section of the tax law was designed to close a loophole that allowed taxpayers to give their property to a foundation for tax purposes but retain exclusive use and enjoyment of the property for life.

Richard Ritzel, a partner in Nixon's former law firm in New York, told the committee staff the President-elect asked him to handle the gift and deduction in mid-December 1968. Several days later, he drafted two deeds of gift, one containing restrictions on access to the papers, the other without the restrictions.

The staff report added: "Mr. Ritzel said that President-elect Nixon was unhappy with the language of the unrestricted deed, so he signed the one with the restrictions."

Prominent attorney

Don Lamm Sr., dies

Donald S. Lamm Sr., 1303 South Osage, a prominent Sedalian, died at 6 p.m. Saturday at his home. He was 84.

Lamm, a retired attorney, was active in local civic and business affairs most of his life. He served as a Bothwell Hospital Board of Trustees member, vice-president and director of Sedalia Bank and Trust Co., and chairman of the Sedalia Centennial Ceremony, which netted the city some $17,000 for youth work.

He was born July 12, 1889, in Sedalia, son of the late Henry and Grace A. Rose Lamm.

In October, 1919, he married Mildred McAninch. She survives of the home.

He attended three years of high school in Sedalia and then transferred to Lawrenceville School, in N.J.

After graduating in 1908, Lamm chose law as his profession. Lamm was able to work his way through college as a secretary and law clerk. His father was a Missouri Supreme Court justice.

Lamm ranked first in his class at Washington University and graduated magna cum laude in 1915 from Missouri Valley College, Marshall. He also studied one year at Oregon University.

A year after college graduation, Lamm began a law practice here with his father and Judge Walter H. Bohling. Judge Bohling eventually left the firm when he was appointed to the Missouri Supreme Court. Later, Lawrence Barnett and Earl Crawford joined the firm. Most recent partners are Donald Barnes and Robert Fritz.

Donald S. Lamm Sr.

Lamm served as Pettis County Prosecuting Attorney during the prohibition era. More than two decades later he was appointed city counselor under Mayor A. H. Wilks.

At one point in his career, Lamm chose to continue his law practice here rather than accept an opportunity to serve as an appointed commissioner to the Missouri Supreme Court.

In 1927, Lamm was elected vice-president of the Missouri Bar Association and from 1944 to 1951 he served on the Board of Governors of the Missouri Bar.

Lamm also served eight years on the Board of Regents at Central Missouri State University.

He also served through the years as president of the Sedalia Chamber of Commerce, Rotary Club, Bothwell Lodge Club and board member of Melita Day Nursery.

Hospital costs may soar

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you think medical bills are high now, prepare for a shock. The next 12 to 15 months may bring some of the most explosive health costs in the nation's history.

If price controls over health costs are allowed to expire on April 30, as is likely, consumers may see these kind of increases in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1975:

—Hospital charges will jump by 16 to 17 per cent.

—Physician fees will go up about 9 per cent.

—Nursing home charges will jump by 14 per cent.

The estimates are those of the Nixon administration, which had urged Congress to continue price controls over the health industry, only to be rejected so far.

Even with controls, hospital charges would have risen about 10 per cent, doctors' fees 4 per cent and nursing home charges 6.5 per cent, the administration estimates.

The public will have to pay an additional $4.1 billion over the current fiscal year, then another $9 billion on top of that in the following year, the administration estimates.

Consumers will find themselves paying an additional $1 billion in direct out-of-pocket expenses for services which would have been covered under price controls. This amount will rise to $2.25 billion additional in fiscal 1976.

Medical insurance premiums would go up $1.5 billion in fiscal 1975, and spending by state and federal governments would rise $1.5 billion.

Caspar Weinberger, secretary of health, education and welfare, said he believes the costs will be higher than that.

He said the estimates "imply a substantial degree of restraint which I hope to see."

Weinberger said the cost in one year may be closer to $5.5 billion, instead of $4 billion.

He said the increased bill will add an enormous amount to every American's health bill, adding that controls should be retained in the industry.

The administration's estimates show: Without controls, Americans will spend $88 billion for health care in fiscal 1975, compared with $83.5 billion in the current fiscal year.

They will spend $46.4 billion for hospitals, $31.2 billion for health professionals, including doctors, $4.2 billion for nursing homes, and $6.2 billion for other services.

The greatest bulk increase is for hospitals, $2 billion, with $1 billion of that in insurance premiums, $400,000 in payroll taxes, $100,000 in out-of-pocket expenses, and $500,000 in state and federal spending.

Americans will spend an increased $1.5 billion on health professionals, with $600,000 going for out-of-pocket expenses, $500,000 for insurance premiums and another $400,000 for state and federal spending.

The American Medical Association did not dispute the administration's figures but said that doctor's fees have gone up 7.3 per cent since August 1971, when controls began, while all services have gone up 11.2 per cent.

Car pools becoming more popular

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The high price of gasoline has spurred new interest in car pools among people who rejected pleas to get together to save fuel, but are willing to team up to save money.

An Associated Press survey on Saturday showed that car pool plans proliferated in the early days of the gasoline shortage, but interest declined as gasoline availability grew.

Computer-organized programs drew thousands of applicants, but authorities in many areas were disappointed with the number of people who actually participated.

Now, however, with gasoline prices soaring up to 60 cents a gallon in some areas, commuters who drive to work are taking a new look at the idea of car pools. They also are lured by cheaper parking rates and insurance savings offered in some areas.

"The price of gasoline has gotten to the point (where) more people are ready to participate in car pools," said John Woodward of the Topeka, Kan., planning department. He said the city had responses from 2,500 state employes who indicated they would be interested in joining car pools.

Miami radio station WIOD has processed more than 2,000 applicants through its computer since it started "Compute-A-Ride" two months age. Officials say hundreds of people have been matched up, although they don't have exact figures. "We have switched to promoting the saving of money rather than gasoline as prices continue to soar," program manager Ken Warren said.

Another WIOD spokesman, Mike Costello, said that more and more callers are inquiring about economic savings rather than fuel availability.

The Connecticut Transportation Department said its computers had matched up 75,000 potential car poolers. Project manager Charles Gudiatis said interest in the program declined recently, but added: "We are still getting applications ... because of the cost (of gasoline)."

The Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Co. in Hartford, Conn., offered $1 a day to any employe who didn't drive to work. The company said it has paid out $38,652 in the past four months. Travelers Insurance offered free parking to car poolers.

Car pooling hasn't caught on yet in Jackson, Miss., but a city spokeswoman said, "Once gas gets really expensive people probably will be (more interested) ... People like the convenience of their cars at lunch time and you just can't do that with a car pool."

Bonnie Ellington, a labor relations specialist with the Federal Aviation Administration in Kansas City, said she and two other federal employes in a computer-matched car pool are "going to keep it going because of high gasoline prices, not because we can't get gas. Once you've gotten used to pooling, you're less inclined to abandon it, despite the loss of independence."

The Idaho Highway Department is working on a car pool program, and Boise officials who studied the situation said the establishment of a $47,500 citywide car pool program could save $325,000 per year in auto expense in the city of 80,000.

Authorities had mixed reports on existing car pool programs. Missouri officials said a car pool effort involving 2,000 state workers in the Jefferson City area was working well. Spaces in state parking lots are reserved for cars with two or more riders and officials reported a 20 per cent drop in the number of parked cars.

Various reasons were given for lack of interest in some cities and states. University of Utah officials said the results of a car pool program set up a week ago were disappointing. "So far it's been much slower than we thought it would," a spokesman said. "Perhaps spring quarter was not the ideal time to start this kind of program. There are a lot more students and others riding bikes or motorcyles." The spokesman said planners of the car pool program hoped for a turnout of 2,500; instead, only 200 persons signed up.

Arguments among car poolers were reported in a few areas. A Long Island man was charged with first degree-assault after he allegedly shot two brothers who argued about which seats they would take in a car pool.

Cost controls will probably end on April 30

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration's hopes to extend the Cost of Living Council beyond April 30 appear to be dead.

The House Banking Committee voted 21-10 Friday to table all legislation concerning wage and price controls, the Economic Stabilization Act and the extension of the council.

The Senate also has killed all bills to extend controls past April 30.

The administration originally hoped to get Congress to extend mandatory wage and price controls over health and some other industries.

This week, however, Director John T. Dunlop said the council would accept a bill proposed by Rep. J. William Stanton, R-Ohio, which would end controls but keep the council alive as a research and data-gathering agency with a mandate to monitor previous wage-price agreements.

But the committee majority was against even the Stanton bill, which Rep. John Rousselot, R-Calif., called "just another mishmash."

Rep. Robert G. Stephens, D-Ga., said, "I don't see where we have to continue a monitoring agency — we've got enough now."

Rep. William B. Widnall, R-Pa., objected even to having a meeting to discuss reviving controls legislation, since the majority of the committee had opposed the proposals.

Airlines ask tax support

NEW YORK (AP) — The two biggest U.S. international airlines say they want taxpayers to help support their overseas flights, which have been hurt by rising jet fuel prices.

Pan American World Airways and Trans World Airlines told the Civil Aeronautics Board in separate subsidy requests this past week that such government help is needed to keep their international flights flying.

The requests, which some calculations indicated could involve a yearly tab of about $300 million, came amid already rising fares on North Atlantic routes and a request to allow the two big carriers to talk about pooling their resources and revenues from those routes.

Pan American said it had already cut back its flights, but still estimated a 1974 fuel bill of $374 million, up some $204 million from the year before. It projected a loss of $85.4 million from international operations in the fiscal year ending next March 31.

The airline said it would like a subsidy covering that loss and also $108.6 million to provide a 10 per cent rate of return on investment from international services.

TWA didn't ask for a specific amount of money, but there were estimates that if it wanted help on the same terms as Pan Am, the bill could be about $100 million.

TWA noted that a gallon of international jet fuel which cost 12.66 cents in February 1973 cost 42.5 cents two months ago. It estimated its international operations lost $30.8 million before taxes in the first two months of the year and would probably lose $47.2 million for the year as a whole, compared with a $19.5 million profit last year.

Pan American had earlier asked the government for permission to talk with TWA about pooling resources and revenues on North Atlantic routes.

But the Justice Department this past week argued in turn that under such pooling each airline "probably would lose the opportunity to surpass the other in responsive and convenient scheduling, more attractive or economical equipment and other vital components of service."

The department noted Pan Am had presented evidence it was being hurt by fuel costs, but contended that the pooling idea should be judged by its impact on the public, not company balance sheets.

Air fares on North Atlantic routes went up 7 per cent this past Monday in a CAB-approved plan aimed at countering rising fuel costs. Rates on most other Western Hemisphere routes will go up a like amount in mid-April. On Thursday, the CAB approved another rate increase which can be implemented after the amount of the increases are filed by the airlines.

The Labor Department reported at week's end that unemployment edged down from 5.2 per cent to 5.1 per cent in March. The department said the decline wasn't statistically significant, but it still raised some hopes that job problems caused by the energy crisis might be easing.

The jobless rate had held steady in February and the March figure represented the first decline in five months.

Friendly Bucharest meeting

By MEREDITH SUTTON

It was one of those unforgettable experiences that transcend time, language, customs. President Nixon was enroute back to America after his trip around the world following the first moon landing in 1969. I was the pilot of one of the President's back-up planes.

We stopped in Bucharest, Rumania, for a short visit. It was late afternoon as I stood on the steps of our hotel which overlooked a large city square. I watched the flow of people going home from work.

Most were dressed in clothing resembling pre-World War II American styles, except that many of them wore fur hats. Mingling with this city throng were men and women whose garb labeled them as being from some of the outlying villages. A few appeared to be sheepherders, and I guessed some of the more roughly dressed men to be woodcutters or miners.

What a different world this was from the Asian one we had left only a few hours before. I scanned the faces close to me and listened in vain for any English.

Suddenly I wanted to talk to someone. But I didn't know any Rumanian or even Italian which might have helped.

After a few moments, I heard a melody long familiar to me, floating clearly and unmistakably above the confusion of sounds. Someone was whistling an old English hymn we had sung in our church for years.

Somewhere in that crowd there was a Christian. Impulsively I plunged down into the milling throng and headed in the direction of the whistler.

Oh, I thought, if only he will keep it through another verse!

I was pushing against the flow of the crowd. Still I heard the thin, high sounds of the whistled tune. It seemed to be moving away.

Meredith Sutton

Then, there he was — a man dressed in the style of a factory worker. He wore a plaid flannel shirt, a heavy coarse jacket and a Russian-style karakul hat. Under his arm was a big black lunch box just like the one I had carried on my first job.

I tapped him on the arm, talking excitedly at the same time. He stopped whistling, stiffened and replied in Rumanian. We couldn't speak to each other after all.

Feeling uncertain, I stood smiling and I pointed at him, then at myself and then above. As I did this, I took a deep breath and began to whistle the chorus of the same hymn: The Great Redeemer Now is Nigh.

A broad smile lit up his face and he grasped my shoulders, pounded me on the back and kissed me on both cheeks in the manner of the Europeans. Without wasting another moment, he began to pull me along with him. He kept smiling and gestured that we would eat together.

Turning into a side street, we suddenly left the din of the boulevard behind. It seemed as though we lost a century in time.

Some houses had high thatched roofs, while others had Roman arches and carved porticos with galleries and wrought iron gates.

It was one of those old stone houses that we finally entered. I stood watching as his family hurried to greet him. He began to whistle the hymn that had brought us together and they all broke into excited conversation. His wife shyly shook hands with me and laid a place for me at their table.

My new friend bowed his head to say grace and when he had finished, he nodded to me and I gave thanks too — thanks especially that there is One who can bring all men together, even though they are separated by language, customs, geography and birth. Thanks for Jesus Christ.

Polly's pointers

Traveler's leis hold memories

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with the makers of quick drying clothes in which they put cotton elastic. It takes the elastic so long to dry that the delicate fabrics in some garments could be ruined from the heat. — TONIA.

DEAR POLLY — Tell Pat her little girl will never lose her mittens if she would crochet a yarn chain that goes from one mitten to the other. Make it long enough to pull up through one coat sleeve, across and down the other sleeve. I did this and my two girls never lost their mittens again. — MRS. C.E.C.

DEAR POLLY — Do tell Pat who buys several identical pairs of mittens to have a matching pair when mittens are lost that shoe strings are much cheaper. She can sew each end of a long string to the back of the wrist of a mitten so the string goes across the back of the child's neck. Then the coat is put on. By taking off mittens and then the coat they can be left in the sleeves so they are always with the coat. No more lost mittens. — LEONA.

DEAR POLLY — There were several marks that had been made with a magic marker on one of my painted walls. When the entire wall was repainted the marks reappeared when it was dry. I went over the spots several times but they continued to appear when the paint dried. I was using a latex paint. Finally I tried covering the marks with a thin coat of colorless nail polish, let it dry and then painted over with one coat of paint and that was the end of the marks. Hope this saves a headache for some other reader. — EUNICE.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — I brought two leis from Hawaii. One was of orchids and the other of gardenias. They are drying and I am sure I have heard of a recipe for making sachet bags or filling apothecary jars with these but cannot remember what goes with them. I do hope some readers can help me preserve these treasured memories. — JENNIE

Doctors office hit by thieves

The office of Dr. A.L. Lowe was the target of burglars for the second time in two months sometime Friday night.

The thieves failed to get any narcotics "that we know of yet," Lowe revealed. He added that "we didn't lose any phenobarbital." Lowe said he no longer keeps any type of amphetamines in the office.

"They broke in through the back door the same way they have every other time." Lowe said. "We had a double lock on the door this time, but it didn't seem to hinder them very much. They jimmied it just as easily," he said.

Drugs taken were reported to be local anasthetics, injectable vitamins and allergy drugs.

"I knew it was something mother and I should take advantage of," she said. "This house is a real crackerbox to live in. It's hot in the summer and cold as ice in the winter. We haven't even been able to have our Christmas tree in the front room window because it's just been too cold with the front door and all."

"I think it is just tremendous that Ann is trying to help us older persons," she said. "Money is so tight these days. There just isn't enough to go around for everything. I'm just so glad we're going to have this help. It's nice to know that someone is caring for and concerned about senior citizens."

Gill and Brauer, personal friends of Ms. Murrell, were recruited for the assignment as students in a social problems class at SFCC.

"We were looking for a project or field trip or something we could do out of class," Brauer said. "When Ann suggested this, it sounded like a real natural."

While the idea of helping a person in need may have been natural enough, the actual job itself didn't exactly fall into their list of "specialties," Brauer indicated.

"None of us had ever done anything like this before," he said. "But, we just had to follow the instructions and work as carefully as we could," he said. "We figured we could really get into it once we got started."

Beyond fulfilling the requirements of a college course, Brauer said the insulation installation work reflects the application of a lifestyle he's convinced would "do a lot toward getting us all together."

"If a philosophy like this would be carried out by more people, it would be a lot better for everyone," he said. "Helping your fellow man out, that's the key to it all. We aren't going to be doing that much, but at least it's something."

Just enough, he might have added, to get the Klein's Christmas tree back where it belongs.

Report Israeli fire along Golan Heights

By The Associated Press

United Nations truce observers said Israeli forces opened fire on Syrian troops on the Golan Heights front Saturday and used warplanes for the first time since the October ceasefire.

But Israel said it acted after a small Syrian force crossed the Golan truce lines hours before Passover began and attacked an Israeli position on the snowy slopes of Mt. Hermon.

It said Israeli fighter-bombers and big guns were called on to repulse the force, the Syrians withdrew after a half hour, and that Israel complained to the United Nations in Jerusalem.

But Syria said the Israelis attacked a Syrian position on the mountain first. It said two Israeli warplanes struck twice in 30 minutes without inflicting casualties.

It was the 26th straight day of fighting on the embattled Golan and the adjoining wedge of land captured from Syria in the October war.

Israeli troops still stood on high alert along the Arab fronts, fearful of a repetition of the last Yom Kippur holiday when Syrian and Egyptian troops launched their attack.

Also worsening in the Jewish state was the political furor stirred by the report of a blue ribbon commission fixing blame for Israel's initial setbacks at Yom Kippur.

Israel's chief of staff, Lt. Gen. David Elazar, alrady has resigned from the army because of the report.

But there was a growing clamor for the resignation of Mrs. Meir and her defense minister, Moshe Dayan, or the entire coalition government.

The Israeli parliament will debate the commission's finding Thursday.

Despite the flawed Passover, tens of thousands of Israelis already have taken off for a holiday at mountain, desert or seaside resorts, camps and picnic grounds.

Nixon points toward strong European ties

Very little was disclosed officially about the talks, but American sources indicated the main substance dealt with improving the consultative processes within the Atlantic alliance.

The discussions also were believed to have touched on the status of arms limitations negotiations between the United States and the Soviet Union, and the prospect of East-West troop reductions in Central Europe.

Nixon had flown to Paris to attend a memorial mass for the late French President Georges Pompidou. He originally was scheduled to return to Washington on Saturday afternoon, but delayed his departure until Sunday.

Nixon talked with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson, West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, interim French President Alain Poher, Italian President Giovanni Leone and Danish Premier Poul Hartling.

All five represent member nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the European Common Market.

Nixon was expected to meet Sunday morning with Soviet President Nikolai Podgorny and Japanese Premier Kakeui Tanaka.

In Sunday's meeting with Podgorny, Nixon was expected to deal with the arms limitation talks, balanced troop cuts in Europe and his scheduled visit to the Soviet Union this summer.

The President's talks with Tanaka probably will cover Japan's relationship with NATO as well as bilateral U.S.-Japanese issues.

On several occasions Nixon has indicated an effort would be made to form a new and improved relationship between the United States and Europe, but instead the existing relationship has deteriorated and a hoped for European visit by Nixon this month to sign a new Atlantic policy document was called off.

Rebels attack; 400 dead

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Rebel forces overran three government outposts southeast of Phnom Penh on Friday and Saturday, and more than 400 soldiers and civilians were either killed, wounded or missing, survivors said.

About 600 soldiers and their families had been manning the defensive positions along Route 30 and on Kbal Island in the Bassac River 10 miles southeast of the capital when Khmer Rouge insurgents launched heavy attacks three days ago, the field reports said.

Phnom Penh's military commanders, anxious to find reinforcements to send to two other hard-pressed areas—Kampot to the southwest and Oudong to the north—were not able to send relief forces to attempt to join up with the surrounded troops southeast of Phnom Penh, officials said.

Kampot is 85 miles southwest of the capital, and Oudong 23 miles north of Phnom Penh.

In the fighting southeast of the capital, government troops with 10 armored vehicles fought to within 150 yards of the last occupied outpost Saturday, but heavy rebel machine-gun and mortar fire kept the Cambodian soldiers pinned down, one field report said.

Intelligence sources said four Khmer Rouge battalions consisting of about 1,000 men were reported massing near Route 30, six miles south of the Phnom Penh suburb of Takhmau.

Military sources said government forces pushed back insurgents in house-to-house fighting around Kampot, killing about 100 rebels. They reported 69 of their own troops were killed or wounded. About 700 government reinforcements had been ferried into the area and transport planes were dropping supplies into the town.

North of Phnom Penh, intensified fighting was reported north and east of the former royal capital of Oudong, where a government effort to retake that city has bogged down.

In Vientiane, Laos, Pathet Lao leader Prince Souphanouvong drew warm applause from crowds Saturday as he made his first public appearance in the capital after assuming joint leadership of the new coalition government.

Man suffers burns after house fire

(Democrat-Capital Service)

Listed in fair condition Saturday was Lloyd Anderson, who had just returned home with his wife when the couple said they heard a noise in the kitchen.

When they went to investigate, Mr. and Mrs. Anderson found the rear porch of their recently remodelled home in flames. Anderson, thinking the fire was confined to an area where two freezers stood, attempted to douse the fire.

However, when he opened the door leading to the porch, he was engulfed in flame and suffered burns. He was taken to the Community Hospital here.

Mrs. Anderson, also 73, was not injured.

The Sweet Springs fire department had two trucks at the scene from 3 to 8 p.m. Faulty electrical wiring is believed the cause of the fire. Firemen said when they arrived the back porch and attic of the home were engulfed in flames. The fire broke through to the interior of the house while firemen were at the scene.

Opfer total to $8,400

The Opfer family's trust fund has totaled more than $8,400, the Rev. Robert Magee said Saturday.

Mrs. Eunice Opfer, 168 Autumn, and her five children were seriously injured March 16, in a head on collision on West Broadway.

Projects to raise money for the fund included a benefit country-western performance, an auction in LaMonte, a mothers march and Whitman AFB wives' project.

Mrs. Janet Wallace, chairman of the country-western benefit, said the performance brought in $902.

Mrs. Opfer still is hospitalized at the University of Missouri Medical Center and her son Dale is at Bothwell Hospital. The other children were released to their grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Brown, Knob Noster. However, Joe, 5, was re-admitted to the hospital Monday for observation.

"Hello, dear, have a nice drive?"

Telephone played vital role in life

By SAM LEVENSON

Most of the people on my block used the candy store telephone. It was run as a public service. We kids could earn from two to 10 cents a day by running up six flights of stairs to call someone to the phone.

When the boys grew up and went to work, they induced mama to take in a phone. "We'll pay for it ourselves, ma." A tin tea box was placed near the phone and we were supposed to deposit a nickel every time we called. At the end of the month the bill was $3.70 and there were eleven nickels in the box.

The word got around the building that the Levensons had a phone. The calls started to come in. "Please call Rose, 4th floor back." "I'm sorry to disturb your supper," Rose would say and spend three quarters of an hour at the phone. After a while we had signals. Two knocks on the pipe was for Mrs. Fine, three knocks for Mrs. Burns.

Mama got into trouble with some of the neighbors. "My brother called on Tuesday. Very important and you weren't home." We became the clearing house for incoming news, both good and bad. Women fainted at the phone and mama had to revive them.

When Mrs. Brown got a call that her daughter had just given birth to a boy, mama cut up a sponge cake, papa produced a bottle of whiskey and all the neighbors came in to celebrate in our house. It was hours before papa realized it wasn't his grandchild.

Sonny, Cher show will go off air

NEW YORK (AP) — "Sonny and Cher," one of CBS-TV's top rated programs, is canceled and will not be on the network in the new fall season.

Announcing the cancellation Friday was Fred Silverman, CBS' programming chief. He declined to say if the recent breakup of the couple's 9½-year marriage had any influence on the CBS decision.

Industry observers have said the couple's marital rift threatened the future of the show.

"There just won't be a show, and we're sorry. They're a couple of great talents," said Silverman.

Sonny Bono, 39, and Cher, 27, were married in October 1964 and split up last February, when Bono filed for a legal separation from his wife in a Santa Monica, Calif., court.

Featuring the couple's brand of singing and comedy, the one-hour television show started as a summer replacement series in August, 1967. It became a regular Wednesday night program in December of that year.

SFCC staff members to give workshop

Jack Fowler, Travis Montgomery and Roscoe Gibson, members of the placement service staff at State Fair Community College, will present a three-part workshop entitled "Career Placement: Whose Responsibility?" at the American Personnel and Guidance Association annual convention Monday through Thursday at New Orleans.

The SFCC program was selected from several hundred applications submitted to the association.

The primary objective of the workshop will be to explain the placement programs in operation at SFCC for the approximate 10,000 guidance and counseling personnel expected at the convention. Personnel from all states and several foreign countries will attend.

Addresses journalists

Ervin has praise for press

By JIM CHURCH
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — On the whole, says Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., the nation's news media "exercise their rights and discharge their responsibilities in highly commendable fashion."

Ervin, speaking to more than 1,000 persons Friday night at the University of Missouri's Journalism Week banquet, said, "The ultimate test of one's devotion to freedom of speech and of the press is his willingness to tolerate the expression of ideas he hates."

On the other hand, said the chairman of the Watergate Committee "the right of a public official to criticize the press and the broadcast media is equal with their right to criticize him. Besides, a criticism of the press or the broadcast media by a public official does not necessarily constitute an attack on freedom of speech and of the press."

Earlier in a news conference, Ervin said evasion of taxes is a criminal offense but declined to say whether such an offense is grounds for impeachment of the president.

President Nixon has agreed to pay $467,000 in back taxes.

Ervin said investigation of the President's tax records might become part of the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment inquiry. He said he would not make up his mind on impeachment "until I have heard a specific charge and until I have seen and evaluated all of the evidence."

In his address, Ervin said the fairness doctrine administered by the Federal Communications Commission can be administered too often, preventing broadcast stations from airing controversial issues to avoid the economic loss entailed in granting of substantial free time.

Ervin said the FCC "flouts the first amendment if it revokes or refuses to renew a license to broadcast merely because it dislikes the political views the broadcaster expresses, or applies the fairness doctrine in a way which problems, in essence, that the government has determined the truth in respect to any controversial subject."

Ervin said a case could be made for the argument that the fairness doctrine merely imposes upon the broadcast media obligations which a responsible press voluntarily assumes, and that responsible broadcasters would discharge those obligations voluntarily if the fairness doctrine were repealed.

Because the media makes society aware of conditions that need correction, Ervin said, "violent revolution has no rational or rightful place in our system."

Ervin cited the following as governmental acts or threats which show an official lack of respect for freedom of speech and of the press:

"Use of the Army to spy on civilians who dissented from governmental politices in respect to Southeast Asia.

"The attempt of the government to obtain judicial decrees enjoining The New York Times and The Washington Post from publishing the Pentagon Papers.

"The executive order expanding the powers of the Subversive Activities Control Board to brand various groups as intellectually or politically dangerous to the established order.

"The attempt of a House committee to require the Columbia Broadcasting System to submit to it unpublished data which CBS accumulated in preparing the documentary entitled 'The Selling of The Pentagon.'

"The widespread use of false press credentials by government investigators.

"The threat to the independence of the broadcast media arising out of the ever present danger that the FCC may use its licensing power and the fairness doctrine to suppress dissent and further government policies having little, if any, relationship to communications.

"The threat posed by increased postal charges to the economic survival of newspapers and magazines.

"And last, but not least, the subpoenaing of reporters to appear before grand juries and other investigating bodies and testify concerning their sources of information in respect to matters of public interest."

Awards are presented to journalists

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., four other men and two publications received honor awards at a University of Missouri School of Journalism banquet Friday night.

Ervin was awarded for his devotion to the cause of press freedom and support of the first amendment.

—Robert L. Vickery Sr., publisher of the Salem, Mo. News. He was graduated from the University of Missouri in 1931 and is a former president of the Missouri Press Association.

—National Observer. Henry Gemmill, editor, received the award.

—Raymond B. Nixon, professor emeritus of journalism and international communications, University of Minnesota. He has been a journalism teacher for 50 years.

—Richard L. Strout, Washington correspondent for the Christian Science Monitor.

—Sunday Times of London. Henry Brandon, associate editor of the Times and chief of its Washington Bureau since 1950, accepted the award.

Surgeons report on findings

CHICAGO (AP) — Two French surgeons report they have developed a portable artificial intestine which provides long-term nourishment for some cancer and other patients who cannot eat.

One of the major advantages of their horseshoe-shaped device, which they call an artificial gut, is that patients can use it at home and can wear it outdoors under their clothing, they said Friday in an interview.

The two surgeons, Drs. Claude Solassol and Henri Joyeux of the Cancer Institute of the University of Montpellier, reported on their development at the annual meeting of the American Society for Artificial Internal Organs.

Patients who cannot eat or who need additional nourishment because of surgery or other treatment usually receive liquid nourishment through a vein from a suspended bottle. This restricts their activities and usually must be done in the hospital.

Solassol and Joyeux also said there is a greater frequency of infection and blood clotting from this type of feeding than from their artificial gut, and there is a danger air will get into the bloodstream.

Most importantly, this type of nourishment can be given over a long term exceeding a month, they said. They reported on 26 patients who were successfully maintained on such nourishment for three to eight months.

R·A·F ENERGY DIET WITH VITAMIN "E" & "C" COMBO. SUPPLEMENT

LOS ANGELES (Special) The R·A·F diet has been found to give excellent results in weight loss when followed according to its simple instructions, and reportedly is gaining great popularity across the country with reports of weight loss while still eating most of the foods you are used to. Those who follow the simple diet report a loss of weight without exercise or starvation. Best of all you can still eat regular foods such as steak, chicken, chops, fish, sauces, gravies, bacon and eggs and still lose unwanted weight. The Vitamin "E" & "C" Tabs used with the diet plan supply you with the M.D.R. which otherwise may be lost when following the R·A·F Diet Plan.

The use of the new Vitamin "E" & "C" Tabs and foods prescribed in the plan will through natural action, act to help your body keep fit and not suffer from hunger pangs. This is a solid, common sense diet plan — 100% safe — no unpleasant side effects.

A study of 900 obese persons confirms the value of the low carbohydrate diet and frequent small meals. Despite organized medicines insistence that calories alone are the key to losing weight, the research clearly shows that the source of the calories is equally important. Carbohydrate, says the medical researcher, is the "crucial determinant" regulating the degree of obesity. Supplementing the low carbohydrate diet with polyunsaturated fat (vegetable oil) increases the oxidation of stored fat (palmitate) by 20 to 25% — and that, says the paper, is the way to diminish excess weight.°

Storm warning system praised

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the heavy loss of life in this week's tornadoes, the nation's public warning system appears to have worked well, the nation's chief weathermen say.

"Enormous numbers of lives may have been saved," Robert M. White, head of the Commerce Department's National Oceanie and Atmospherio Administration, said Friday during a tour of areas hit by the tornadoes.

"We can't stop acts of God," White said. He called the widespread devastation "the worst destruction I've ever seen from tornadoes."

White, Associate Administrator John W. Townsend Jr., and National Weather Service Director George P. Cressman made the day-long flight to Kentucky, Indiana and Ohio for talks with local weather agency officials and for a look at some of the multimillion dollar damage from the past week's tornadoes.

A family of twisters, presently estimated by weather officials at about 90, charged through 14 states, leaving at least 291 dead, thousands injured, and vast devastation.

Just outside Louisville, Ky., in a heavily damaged area, a woman told the federal officials she took cover in her basement after getting the weather service warning that the tornado was coming. Her home lost its roof, while other houses in the neighborhood were shattered.

At Cleveland, White told reporters: "My impression, after talking to people in Kentucky, Indiana, and here, is that the warning system performed very well, that the warnings were in time. We talked to many citizens in other states who had heard the warnings and had taken cover as a result of the warnings."

White said he concluded "that quite a few lives were saved as a result of the warnings, but that does not say that we still can't do better, and we intend to continue to investigate the action of the warning system throughout the country ... to uncover any deficiencies that might exist and seek remedies for those deficiencies."

White said there is a need for a look at community preparedness, at local warning systems, and at public education regarding what to do in case of tornadoes.

Grey likes latest role

NEW YORK (AP) — Joel Grey plays a clairvoyant in his latest film "Man on a Swing," and he claims to some modest powers along that line in real life, too.

"The producers screen-tested two or three others, but I just auditioned in their offices in New York," Grey said. "Even before the deals were made, I knew I was going to get the role. Maybe that was the beginning of that kind of perception."

Even so, he said, he couldn't see himself in the role of Franklin Wills, a man who offers to help solve a murder through his "visions."

"But whenever I say I'm wrong for a certain role, I invariably end up playing it. I couldn't picture myself as the emcee in 'Cabaret,' or as George M. Cohan in 'George M!' either."

Grey was wearing a black turtleneck sweater, gray pants and black boots during an interview in his hotel suite — and a broad smile. The smile was brought on by reviews of the new movie that unanimously hailed his performance as a tour de force.

"I'm very excited about it," he said. "I still get excited over things that work properly. In creative things, the difference between working and not working is so thin."

"Man on a Swing" is the first film for the slim, 5-foot-5 performer since "Cabaret," for which he won an Academy Award. It is also his first major nonmusical vehicle. Has he always wanted to be a dramatic actor?

"I always have been," he protested. "There has never been any confusion in my mind. It was only in the public's for a period, because I had a fluke success as a night club song-and-dance man at age 18.

"It sort of stopped my ability to gain access to roles on the stage and in films because there are so many stereotypes — the pigeonholes that people insist you fit into. And that's my enemy. The pigeonholes. I'm sure after this film, I'll be offered parts like Franklin Wills. For a while, I was only getting German emcee offers. After each role you play, people say, 'Oh, that's what he does.' They have difficulty in coping with the fact that an actor needs to play many roles."

What does he think of extrasensory perception?

"I'm yet to be a believer but F'm not an unbeliever," said the 42-year-old star. "I think everyone has psychic experiences. The person I'm most extrasensory about is my wife. And I think that's because we are very tuned in. Most recently I was in San Francisco, and I bought a crystal heart for her. When she came to San Francisco (from Malibu where they reside), I gave her the heart and she gave me...."

Grey stopped in mid-sentence, sprang up, flew into the adjoining room and returned with a clenched fist. He opened it to reveal a perfectly heart-shaped piece of sea glass.

"My wife found this on the beach taking a walk just before she came to see me."

True to his contention that he wants to play many roles in all areas of show business, he was doing a two-week stint at a night club here.

Hot Line

Hot line answers questions, looks into complaints, solves problems and generally serves readers and protects their interests. Write Hot Line, The Sedalia Democrat-Capital, Seventh and Massachusetts, Sedalia, Mo. 65301, or call 826-1000 between 7 a.m. and 11 p.m. Hot Line will appear as often as necessary to serve our readers.

All calls and letters to Hot Line must include name, address and phone number of inquirers. Names will not be used but are needed should additional information be required to answer questions.

Q — A real estate assessor wanted in my house to check it, but I wouldn't let him in, and told him to come back when my husband was at home. He told me that if he couldn't get in, my taxes would just be doubled. Do you have to let these people in your house, and does he have the right to double my taxes? — Mrs. W. E. R.

A — County Assessor William McCune informed Hot Line that if he or his deputies are denied permission to enter your house for the purpose of assessing property, state law requires him to estimate as best he can and then double the total assessment figures as a penalty. Assessors who fail to levy such penalties, McCune said, are liable to a fine of $50.

However, McCune said, "I haven't had to do this yet and I hope I won't have to. I'm going to make a bona fide attempt to secure the cooperation of every person. If one of my deputies is denied permission to enter a house, I will go there myself and talk to the property owner and see what can be worked out."

Q — Could you tell me who is responsible for the up-keep of the drainage ditch running down behind the houses on South Wagner drive in the 1600 block? The children in this area play down there a lot, although I don't allow mine to. But they will do it at times when they see others down there.

It is very dangerous for them as there is broken glass, boards, nails, rusty cans and everything including snakes in there. Weeds and brush overrun it. It draws all kinds of bugs. When it rains, it is a mess. Is there any planning in the near future for sidewalks to be put in on either or both sides of 16th street, from Engineer to the park? If so, when? — J. S.

A — City Engineer Robert Cunningham told Hot Line that the city street department annually cleans pre-selected drainage ditches by bulldozing and other means. He said he, or a street department representative, will personally inspect this particular drainage ditch to determine it's condition. Such inspections, he indicated, are necessary before authorization for clean-up can be given.

Cunningham explained that, under current city regulations, all sidewalk construction is privately funded. Any decision on whether sidewalks are going to be built in the area you mentioned is up to the individual property owners involved, and not the city.

Q — Why did the Pettis County Court find it necessary to pay $140,000 for an "imported" firm to re-assess county property, when we have a duly, elected, salaried assessor? Why is this not his duty? — G. B.

A — County Assessor Bill McCune explained that it would take his office "probably 15 years at least" to perform the work currently being done by the Continental Appraising Co. In addition, McCune said, the appraising company is re-evaluating, and not assessing, county property. These two functions, he said, are different. The county assessor is responsible for seeing that county property is assessed according to the property evaluation information compiled by professional appraisers.

Charge second person in murder case

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A second person has been charged in the killing last month of Barbara Ann Mingo, 21, whose bound body was found wrapped in a rug in a ditch near Dupo, Ill.

Arrested Friday was Curtis Lee Simmons, 21, who has been charged with first-degree murder. His cousin, Kamika Pearl Robinson, 29, was charged in connection with the killing Tuesday.

Police said Miss Mingo's hands and feet were tied and two plastic bags were over her head when her body was found March 23.

Country singer lists big honor

NEW YORK (AP) — Merle Haggard, the country music singer whose album "Okie from Muskogee" sold over a million copies, says his greatest honor was performing in the White House in March 1973 for First Lady Pat Nixon's birthday.

"I was impressed with (President) Nixon and I will admit I was not a Nixon fan when I went to the White House," Haggard said in an interview Friday. "I found him to have a fantastic mind. Since then things have happened which changed my opinions....

"I don't think anybody can feel the same about the man they did a year ago or before Watergate happened."

Noted stock forecaster sees bull market

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Busness Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Edson Gould is an elder statesman among securities analysts, a forecaster who has made some notably accurate estimates and whose word sometimes is taken as gospel. He is also considered a bear.

Gould, 72, has been dour in his outlook since the mid-1960s, when he suggested an end had come to a bull market that pushed the Dow Jones industrial average from 92.69 points in 1942 to more than 1,000 in 1966.

Since then the average has never substantially or for any length of time exceeded that figure. It dipped as low as 631 in 1970 and rose to 1,067 early in 1973, before descending to its present range of 840 to 850 points.

Gould maintains it will break out of that range, however, and in both directions. After a decided drop, perhaps to under 700 points late this year or very early in 1975, he foresees the beginning of a major bull market.

The bull's first steps will be a bit shaky, in Gould's view. He believes there might be a turndown, but not a very bad one, in 1976. Then he expects the ascent to resume in 1977 and 1978 and to erupt to 3,000 to 5,000 points in the 1980s.

Assuring an incredulous listener that such a jump wasn't unprecedented, Gould recalled the post-World War II advance, which was even larger in percentage, and an earlier leap that brought the average from 40.52 in 1932 to 195 in 1937.

But before those jagged graph lines pierce the financial stratosphere, "we're going to go through a hell of a lot of grief," says Gould, referring to his expectations of a decline this coming winter.

Why a decline? Gould explains that every major move in the market has three stages. When it rises it does so in steps, he insists. And when it falls it usually trips three times. It has already happened twice.

"In February 1966 the Dow reached 1,001 points," Gould relates, retrieving figures easily from a data bank mind.

"In October 1966 it fell to 735. In December 1968 it rose to 994. In May 1970 it fell to 627. In January 1973 it reached 1,067. And now its getting down for the third time."

While believing in the three-step theory, Gould has enough battle scars to be wary of a possible fourth. By that time, though, even the most obstinate will be shaken out of the market. There'll be no more sellers.

"Thus, rather than regarding the near-term outlook for declining prices with worry, fear and trembling, the investor should welcome it .... " he related in "Findings & Forecasts," a publication he writes for Anametrics, Inc.

Gould's rationale for an advance is compounded of many factors. There are the numbers and the tracings of the graphs, which all technicians examine for signs and signals. There is mass psychology, which Gould feels the market reflects.

He believes no market can become bullish unless international monetary affairs are sound. The worst market fears, he declares, are war and a shaky monetary structure.

He deplores the welfare ethic but believes the country soon will show a renewed appreciation of the work ethic. "We've got a soft generation," he maintains. "Welfare is the opposite of free enterprise."

Volunteer workers will be recognized

A reception honoring area persons who performed voluntary work in Missouri Valley Human Resource Development Corp. programs will be held April 22 in the MVHRDC Manpower office in Sedalia.

The volunteers work in the of Manpower, Head Start, Neighborhood Youth Corps, Mainstream, Family Planning, Community Organization, Foster Grandparents, Youth Development and Drug Abuse.

The MVHRDC will honor the workers, executive director Ronald E. "Bob" Schultz explained, because they "are important to the operation of our corporation because in order to receive federal funding, at least 20 per cent of the needed costs must be provided through local resources such as volunteer man hours, facilities or financial contributions. The federal government allows us 80 per cent of our budget."

Among those participating in the event will be MVHRDC area board members Ralph Lee, William Giles, Myrtle Griggs and Geraldine Ford, all of Pettis County.

Body search continues

A widow waits at Consol No. 9

(Editor's Note: When Sara Kaznoski's husband died in a coal mine explosion in 1968 she bought "the nicest cemetery plot I could get him." But today, more than five years later, the gravesite is still empty; despite what may be the longest body search in American mining history. Mrs. Kaznoski's man, and 22 of his fellows, remain trapped in unlifted West Virginia rubble. Tom Tiede reports from the scene of the long, long wait.)

By TOM TIEDE

FARMINGTON, W. Va. — Until recently, Sara Kaznoski had the sympathy and support of much of the nation.

The 1968 disaster at Consolidation Coal Company's No. 9 mine killed 78 men and so injured the public conscience that people near and far joined widow Kaznoski in condemning the company safety procedures and demanding that every lost miner be found and "returned home."

But slowly, predictably, the public support vanished.

When the U.S. Congress passed new laws concerned mine safety, many who used the Consol No. 9 holocaust as a rally point felt satisfied enough to go to other causes. When the Consol Company let it be known that the $6 million being spent on the continuing search should be used to expand coal mine employment, local sympathy gave way to pragmatism.

Finally, when the widows were each offered $10,000 by mine owners, in exchange for a possible end to the hunt, even the anguished began to mellow.

Now it seems only Sara Koznoski is on the front lines of this war of attribution. She says she refuses to be begged, bought or broken off. "I want my husband out of there. I want all the remaining husbands out of there. I want them buried in Christian earth, with proper flowers about. I want these men to rest in peace."

The history of this nasty coal mine incident indicates that what Sara wants, Sara often gets. A coal miner's daughter, now slim and pleasantly blonde at 60, Mrs. Kaznoski was among the first to recognize the Consol No. 9 disaster as a battleground.

She says no one from the company "ever came to say I'm sorry," and at first began to treat the disaster as routine.

It wasn't. It was the worst mine tragedy in six decades, so Mrs. Kaznoski organized a miners' widows committee to bring the point home to Consol; the committee's chief goal, of course, was complete body recovery.

The company naturally did not like the pressure. Nor did executives cherish the idea of spending money to dig for anything but coal. Several Consol officials made intemperate remarks. Early on, the company said there was not much use trying to evacuate the dead men because explosion fires "likely cremated everybody."

Mrs. Kaznoski's committee, however, perservered. Though neither state nor local regulations mandated anything else than routine search attempts, Sara's widows invoked the ageless law of the coal miner:

"If I'm trapped, I'll never be abandoned. No matter how long it takes, someone will come and get me."

Faced with public relations complexities, Consolidated Coal has been reluctantly obeying that law since; Consol crews continue to work five days a week clearing out the rubble from 10 square miles of mines, more than 100 miles of mine tunnels.

"The search," says one worker, "has been an unprecedented pain in the butt."

The search has also been somewhat successful. Crews have recovered 55 of the 78 dead — 14 of them in one recent week alone. Recovered bodies are now decomposed beyond visual recognition (identification is made by company employes, not anxious widows), but the remains have put the lie to Consol's early theory of ashes among the rocks; most men are intact, dead often of asphyxiation and not even their chewing gum has been melted.

Yet although the major portion of the search seems to be accomplished and only 17 miles of tunnel remain to be cleared, there is no certainty that the job will be completely finished. Local sentiment seems now to favor an early end to the matter. "Six million to dig out old bones?" yelps a local. "It's a waste. I say seal off the remaining tunnels as a sort of cemetery inviolate."

The mining company says that, too. Only not so bluntly. Negotiating with United Mine Workers Union attorney Ken Yablonski, Consol agreed to pay each widow the $10,000 compensation and also continue the No. 9 search "so long as it is safe, reasonable, and practical to do so."

Yablonski thinks the agreement is sound, not only for the compensation but because "It puts the company signature on a statement to continue the search. As of now, they could stop looking tomorrow. This agrement at least insures they will continue searching until it's no longer possible to do so."

To date, 70 of the 78 widows have signed the agreement. Sara Kaznoski is the most enthusiastically adamant of the holdouts. "Never, never," she says. "All the company wants is a way out of the search. If we all sign, the hunt will end inside a month."

There are those here who feel the Kaznoski obstinacy must be rooted in something more than lingering grief. She's being called "mixed up," a "headline grabber," even "crazy." Such complaints betray short memories, says a regional newswoman.

"It was Sara," she says, "who made the company jump, and it was Sara who has stood up for the little people. She made the company return the husband's personal effects; she won the right for widows to keep the company welfare cards (free clinic use); if it weren't for her, Consolidation would have forgotten both men and families long ago."

Of course, the company may still forget both men and families. But with Sara Kaznoski around, not very easily. Every other day the widow is on the phone with an executive, cornering a federal man in the shopping district, or crawling over the rubble at a worksite:

"How's it going? Anything new?"

"If we ever do stop," says one excavation worker, with naught but respect, "I think old Sara will come down here and start removing the stones herself." (NEA)

Celebration for H. D. Monsees

Centenarian found life was difficult — but well worth it

By MARY LOU VOSSMEYER
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

SMITHTON — Last week Harry D. Monsees received a birthday card from Richard and Pat Nixon. He's neither a political figure nor a war hero. But he is 100 years old.

Monsees was born a century ago on April 7 to Gevert and Mary Kahrs Monsees. He grew up about two miles south of here and married a local girl, Tillie Ringen.

He sang bass in the United Methodist Church choir since he was 12 and played first base on the Smithton school baseball team.

Though he had a short career selling lightning rods with a cousin, Monsees was a farmer at heart. Early in his farming career, Monsees rented some acreage from Mrs. John Selkin, Stover. He farmed it for several years with a horse-drawn plow, and later acquired his own land just west of here.

"I had a big wheat crop there and I sold it all to the elevator

"I like to be friendly ... It's better than being sad."

... I made big money," Monsees said.

"When I took Mrs. Selkin her third of the pay for the crop and gave her a check for $735, she said 'Harry, that's more than I've ever got from this place in one year in my life.' "

Monsees farmed mostly crops and had a few head of cattle. But he retired from farming before tractor equipment replaced the horse-drawn plow.

"All the farming I've ever done has been with horses," Monsees said.

Had livery stable

Monsees loved to work with horses and while in his late 40's he ran a livery stable here. He worked at that for about 12 years and went into partnership with another local horse dealer, Charles Martin.

The two bought and sold horses and mules and shipped them to Dallas. Monsees recalls that at the time, round trip to Dallas on the M-K-T Railroad cost $10.

Monsees and his wife had two sons, Auren, Smithton; Dillard, McAllen, Tex.; and a daughter, now Mrs. Sylvia Carpenter, who lives with her father. His five grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren are now scattered across the U.S. from Hawaii to North Carolina. However, Monsees still lives in the home on Main Street that he and his wife shared as a young couple.

"I remember when they built the Mo-Pac side track. I had some of my horse teams working on it to do the grating.

"I've had to fight a hard fight to keep living."

I hired out those horse teams and got the men to work them," he recalled.

Monsees never had the opportunity to enter the service because when World War I rolled around he was already in his 40's. He registered for the draft with his son, Dillard, and both were rejected. At the time, 18-year-old Dillard was too young and at 45, Monsees was too old.

Though Monsees lived through the Spanish-American War, both World Wars, and the Depression, he doesn't remember those times as particularly disastrous, though he is reluctant to talk about it.

No real hard times

"The people at home had it alright I guess, We had no real hard times," he said.

Monsees does recall with delight the historic flight of the Wright brothers. And he remembers the day Charles Lindbergh made his flight across the Atlantic.

"That was a great thing, when Lindbergh went across the ocean. I remember thinking that was something terribly risky," Monsees said.

But Monsees wouldn't have believed that men would someday land on the moon. That was something far beyond his imagination.

"I didn't have time to think about those things at that time. When I was a very young man we didn't even have airplanes," he said.

Monsees attributes his long life to an age old cliche. He said he always was told that an apple a day would keep him healthy. So, he really did eat an apple every day — and still does.

Mrs. Carpenter, said that when she asked him what he wanted for his 100th birthday, he immediately replied: "Apples."

"I've always been pretty strong all my life. I've had pretty good health," he said.

Though Monsees was an active youth, he has grown more feeble in recent years. "I've had to fight a hard fight to keep living. I was in the hospital for a while and it kind of got me down."

Because he is not well enough for a big celebration, Mrs. Carpenter planned a quiet family dinner for his 100th birthday. She doesn't intend to put a hundred candles on the cake, but Monsees is determined to tackle what candles there are.

"I can do it," he chuckled "I can still blow pretty hard."

Though Monsees said an apple a day kept him out of the hospital for a good part of his life, his main claim as a centenarian is his frame of mind. According to Monsees, the proverb holds true that a happy man lives long.

"I always like to be friendly and humorous. It makes anybody happy and it's better than being sad and sober all the time."

Monsees is happy with the way he lived and says he is satisfied with what he has accomplished in his 100 years.

"I don't want to go anywhere now. I'd rather keep put ... and let the others do the singing," he said.

Tokyo cycle gangs problem for police

TOKYO (AP) — They tear through the crowded streets of Tokyo at 60 miles an hour, taunting motorists with jeers and police with mock salutes. Sometimes they tangle with rival groups and violence erupts.

Still far from a Japanese version of the old Hell's Angels in the United States, the 210 motorcycle gangs of Tokyo have nevertheless become one of the police department's headaches.

Last year, they committed more than 10,000 moving violations during their night runs. Patrol cars keep a watchful eye over them, radioing in their whereabouts. With the police, the cyclists are careful not to go too far. That is not the case with rival gangs.

Early this year, 100 motorcyclists battled with chains, wooden swords and gasoline bombs at a highway service area.

Sgt. Toshio Hoshino, who follows the gangs' activities for the Tokyo Metropolitan police, described the average Thunderbolt kid as 15 to 22 years old, still in high school, or employed as a blue-collar worker.

"They're out at night usually for a good time. They buy their big bikes because they want to possess something they can be proud of, I suppose," the police sergeant said.

Prof. Takao Sofue, a cultural anthropologist and psychiatric counselor at Tokyo's Meiji University, believes the average gang member is a troubled youth, unhappy with home life if still a student or with his work if already employed.

"Alone, he may appear a very good youngster, although possessing unexpressed frustrations," he explained. "In group activity, these frustrations are released."

Car sales gain makes layoff unnecessary

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Gains in new car sales in March have made the planned layoff of 13,000 St. Louis-area Ford Motor Co. workers unnecessary, the manufacturer has announced.

A company spokesman said Friday increased sales of Mercury cars and indications of further sales gains this spring has caused the firm to cancel plans to shut down the Hazelwood Ford plant for a week beginning April 15.

The company said St. Louis workers will be among 8,000 recalled with the reversal of a decision to shut down eight plants across the country.

Sewing no longer labeled 'for women only'

By JOANNE SCHREIBER

"Honey, I need a new formal for the PTA dance."

Traditionally, this line is the lead into a rousing family argument and budget discussion. But today, Dad may instead head for the sewing machine and whip up a home-sewn original, guaranteed to dazzle the competition.

Nor will he stop at making a dress for his wife. He's perfectly capable of making a jacket, shirt and slacks for himself, clothes for the kids, draperies for the living room, and a winter cover for the boat. Sewing is no longer labeled "for women only." Men have equal opportunity to invade fabric shops, select patterns and join the sewing spree.

Take the case of Burton Gerke of Baltimore, Md. In less than a year, he completed the following items:

3 suits, size 43 (two with extra pants)
2 sports jackets, size 36
5 pairs slacks, 28" waist
1 white bikini, girl's size 8
1 women's fake fur coat
1 women's crushed velveteen blazer
1 women's polyester blazer
1 women's white velvet blazer
1 man's all-weather topper

According to Mrs. Gerke, it all began just a year ago last Christmas when her husband had a week's vacation. He spotted a pile of mending by the sewing machine, tackled it, and discovered that sewing is both easy and fun. Then he ventured into a local fabric shop, discovered the wonderful world of double-knits, and a book which promised to set him on the road to successful sewing for himself.

This book, a straightforward spiral-bound volume, is titled "Sewing Knits — Menswear," by Judy Lawrence of Boulder, Colo. It gave Gerke the basic information he needed concerning fabrics, patterns, sewing techniques and construction details for slacks, vests and golf shirts. Now, he can turn out a perfect pair of slacks for David (28 waist, 33 length) in four hours, and is currently tailoring a suit for himself.

Gerke does his sewing in the "back room," which also holds the TV, a piano and an organ. He averages a day-and-a-half per weekend, plus a couple of evenings, at the machine. Mrs. Gerke sews, too, and likes to crochet and knit. Debbie is learning to sew, and the family works together on draperies and other household items.

What makes Mr. Gerke such a whiz? He says that his work with a tool firm has nothing to do with it. "It's not the machine I enjoy — it's the saving, and the accomplishment."

Mrs. Gerke says that his patience has a lot to do with his success — "He loves little tedious things." He applies the same precision to woodworking, and is currently building closets for a neighbor. Last summer, he installed a swimming pool himself.

The dress form problem was solved by a 95-year-old former cabinetmaker, James B. Tripp of Garden Grove, Calif. When he began to sew his own jacket-shirts about 10 years ago, he, too, needed a form. He put on an old knit turtleneck; covered it with a layer of masking tape, cut it off, taped it back together, stuffed the stiffened shirt and mounted it on a stand.

Relaxation is the reason given by Richard Washington of Savannah, Ga., head football coach for the Johnson High Atomsmashers. After a touch practice session, he relaxes by stitching himself a flashy pair of doubleknit bells. Working on a vintage Singer, with guidance from his wife, Clem, he has created jump suits, bikinis, vest suits and lots of slacks.

The male ego, or anything-accounts for quite a bit of manly stiching. Forrest Hodge of Roanoke, Va., made himself a pair of yoked slacks — "just to prove to my wife that a man can sew."

There are men who simply enjoy the intricate machinery of a sewing machine, which can certainly do more tricks than the most advanced power drill, lawnmower or outboard motor. To Joe Sammons of Norfolk, Va., "It's more complex and exciting than a sports car."

Fashion-conscious males turn to sewing just because they can't find what they want in the stores. Says Joe Winters of Raleigh, N.C., "I want to make suits. Something different. Mod. My own thing."

Economy is often mentioned. As Coach Washington aks, "Why should I pay fourteen dollars for a pair of slacks when I can invest a dollar in a pattern and produce the same thing for around five dollars?"

Then there's the competitive factor, which causes boys to enter and win sewing contests. The Singer Company reports that two boys sewed their way to the national semifinals of their annual World Stylemaker Competition, placing among the top 75 in a field of 71,000 entries. Both are from North Carolina — Charles Pruitt of Winston-Salem, and Gary Smith of Concord.

Another Southern boy, 14-year-old Nathan Kincaid of Fairmont, W. Va., won in the local level of the competition.

In high schools across the country, boys are enrolling in cooking and sewing classes, while the girls learn shop and metalwork. In St. Louis, Mo., 23 boys were enrolled in an all-male home ec. course. Mrs. Rosemary Seidel, their instructor, plans to make all the home ec. classes co-ed, so boys and girls can learn together.

In Spearman, Tex., sewing instructor Beth Bourland says this of her boy students: "They are as good as girls are when first introduced to sewing. They've shown themselves to be every bit as dexterous. And the boys seem to catch on faster to the reasons why a sewing operation must be done a certain way."

Do the boys take a ribbing from their nonsewing pals? Not as much as you might expect — possibly because the sewing classes often number football players and track stars among the students.

Women's Wear Daily, noting the new phenomenon, predicts that more and more men will join the 45-million women who sew. "Only the stigma of femininity has kept more men from sewing," observes WWD, "and the younger generation doesn't seem to have such hangups."

Quotable women

By The Associated Press . .

"I thought I was an outsider for the Oscar. I was so amazed. I'm more pleased about this one than my first. Mum will get enormous pleasure out of it. We now have bookends." Glenda Jackson, winner of the Academy Award for best actress.

"It was predictable that sooner or later Time would begin to pay the price for its editorial overinvestment in the destruction of the President. That price is the loss of journalistic prestige and credibility." Clare Boothe Luce, widow of Time magazine's founder, seconding a television commentator's criticism of the magazine's Watergate coverage.

"It's just lovely, isn't it? It is one of the most marvelous places I've ever seen. I'm having a wonderful time just doing nothing." Mrs. Henry Kissinger, the former Nancy Maginnes, talking about the honeymoon spot she was visiting in Acapulco, Mexico.

"Some women say they would rather not know if they have cancer. What they should know is that 75 per cent of all breast lumps are nonmalignant. Research and cancer tratment has advanced greatly, but sadly the rate of detection has not improved in 35 years." Mrs. Marvella Bayh, mastectomy victim and wife of the democratic senator from Indiana, speaking about Reach for Recovery and the American Cancer Society.

Doll house made by hand

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Polly Keener's three-story house has crystal chandeliers, gold leaf picture frames on its walls, hand-worked planking for its floors and an ancestor's picture — all in miniature.

It's an elaborate doll house Mrs. Keener made to help the Women's Board of Akron General Medical Center raise funds for the hospital. It brought $450 in that auction, but Mrs. Keener's father, George Leonard, did the high bidding and gave the house back to his daughter.

Mrs. Kenner followed no plans but drew freely from homes she loves. The stairway with its curved railing is a copy of one in her own house, for instance.

She built in a closet beneath the staircase because, she said, "I remember how much fun it was to hide in those little closets when I was a child."

When she discovered that crystal chandeliers for doll houses could cost $150, she used crystal beads from jewelry counters and made her own chandeliers. For candles, she rolled tiny paper scrolls, coated them with wax and added fake wicks.

Reproductions of oil paintings from museum catalogs adorn the doll house walls, in gold leaf frames she carved and finished herself.

"I cut up a petit point purse to make the rugs," says Mrs. Keener, "and took a locket-sized picture of my great-grandfather to put in its easel frame on a table in the library."

The house's own frame came from France, from a crate in which a painting was shipped from Paris. Its Colonial-styled windows are of Plexiglas.

"I made little hangers for the closets in the bedrooms and put a tiny doll house in the nursery," Mrs. Keener says. "There is even a tinier doll house in the nursery doll house."

She carved all of the planking in the house, finishing the floors in mahogany. She paneled the library, using precarved lumber yard supplies for the wainscoting. The house is 40 inches high, 36 inches wide and 12 inches deep.

She made all the books for the library, though only one — "the hardest to do" — has pages.

Did her husband, Bob help?

"No," Mrs. Keener said, "he is working on his own doll house," a Tudor cottage with a thatched roof, though not of straw.

Real straw is too thick, Mrs. Keener said, "so we bought eight dozen paint brushes, much to the amazement of the salesman." Even that wasn't enough; the roof must await a new supply of matching brushes for its completion.

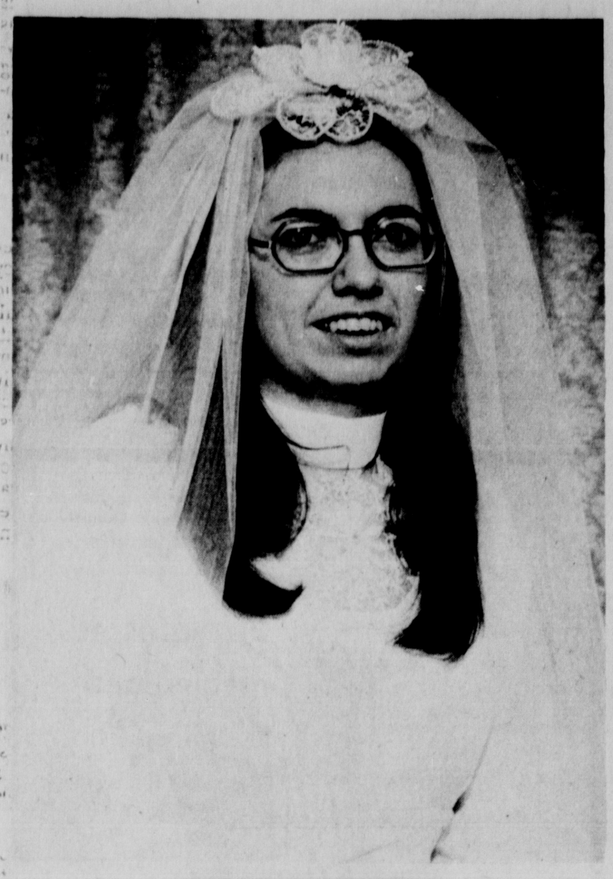
Double ring ceremony unites Vogler-Smale



MRS. RONALD LEE SMALE
Miss Bonnie Lou Vogler

KNOB NOSTER — Wedding vows were solemnized for Miss Bonnie Lou Vogler and Ronald Lee Smale at 7 p.m. March 22 at the Mt. Zion Christian Church, Knob Noster.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin E. Vogler, Knob Noster, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. William R. Smale, Euless, Tex.

The Rev. William J. Hilderbrand officiated at the double ring ceremony before a chancel decorated with two seven branch candelabra trimmed with greenery and pink satin bows and two standing baskets of pink daisy poms and pink delphinium. Four hurricane candles trimmed with greenery and pink bows lined the aisle. Mrs. Thomas E. Fairlie, pianist, accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Leo McNeal and Mrs. Bryon Melvin, vocalists.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an empire gown of polyester crepe with a pearl trimmed waistline and an embroidered pearlized illusion yoke insert with high banded collar. Her train of imported embroidered pearlized illusion was attached at the shoulders and a lace and pearl petal headpiece held her fingertip veil of illusion. She carried a cascade of pink poms and white pixie carnations tied with pink picot ribbon.

Miss Patricia Vogler, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Miss Laura Smale, sister of the groom, was junior bridesmaid. They wore matching A-line gowns of printed crepe in shades of pink. The small stand-up collars and sleeve bands were trimmed with pink velvet ribbon. Their headpieces were bows of pink with pink net and they carried long stemmed pink carnations tied with pink picot ribbon.

Don Houston was best man and Roger Vogler, brother of the bride, was groomsman. Ushers were Mark Strickland, Terry Craig, Wayne Wagner and Brian Lees. Phillip Vogler, brother of the bride, and Miss Kimberly Smale, sister of the groom, were candlelighters. Miss Smale's gown was identical to the attendants.

A reception was held at the church immediately following the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth with a pink underlay. A nine branch candelabrum trimmed with pink and cranberry ribbon centered the table. The four-tiered wedding cake, accented with pink roses and sugar bells, was topped with a miniature bride and groom. Servers were Miss Sandy Strickland, Mrs. Alan Everts, cousins of the bride, and Mrs. Adolf Heins. Mrs. Don Houston attended the guest book while Miss Linda Stallard and Mrs. Robert Bird assisted with gifts.

Mr. and Mrs. Vogler hosted a rehearsal dinner the evening before the wedding at the church.

The couple is at home in Knob Noster where the bride is employed as a secretary at Knob Noster Junior High School and the groom is stationed at Whiteman AFB.

Golden anniversary

COLE CAMP — Mr. and Mrs. John Heisterberg, Cole Camp, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary April 21 with an open house from 2 to 4 p.m. at Trinity Lutheran School, Cole Camp. Hosting the open house are the couple's children, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Davis, St. Louis, and Mr. and Mrs. Arlie Heisterberg, Lee's Summit. Relatives, friends and neighbors are invited to attend.

What you should know about vitamins

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Nutritionists stress that the best way for the majority of persons to get all the vitamins necessary for better health is through a balanced diet. But to pay for the necessary meat, fowl, fish or eggs, fruits and vegetables, cereals and dairy foods each day may at times stretch the budget to the limit. Or so some people believe.

Therefore, many turn to vitamins believing them to be a substitute for eating a variety of foods. In fact, many take them in massive doses believing they will perform miracles without considering the costs of this faddist "megavitamin therapy" as part of a weekly budget.

But Philip White, Sc.D., director of Department of Foods and Nutrition of American Medical Association, warns of the possible danger in self-prescribed doses of vitamins.

In a recent issue of Today's Health, he states:

Vitamin A is vital to overall vision, growth and bone development in youngsters and the health of tissues lining our bodies inside and out. It is present in eggs, butter, cream, cheese and fortified milk. Other good sources are meats, deep yellow and dark green vegetables. Overdoses of vitamin A can lead to thinning hair, mouth ulcers, extreme fatigue, anemia, inflammation of the optic nerve and an alarming build-up of pressure within the head that mimics a brain tumor.

Vitamin B. The B-complex vitamins seem to work in concert. They are important to the body's over-all functioning, especially in the nervous system, the circulatory system, digestion and metabolism. Because the B-complex vitamins do work together they need one another. Thus a surplus of one could lead to a deficiency of another. And certain of the B vitamins are known to interact with other drugs which could lead to serious trouble.

Vitamin C is essential to the maintenance of health. The supply must be replenished daily because man cannot synthesize or store it. Marked deficiency can lead to scurvy, with extreme weakness, deterioration of gums and excruciating joint pains.

Studies of the efficacy of massive dosages of the vitamin in controlling or preventing colds have been inconclusive. In short, the jury is still out. There are respected figures on both sides of the controversy which has raged ever since Dr. Linus Pauling's book appeared which recommended massive dosages of vitamin C to combat the common cold. Most physicians, however, advise against the practice because they don't know what the long-term effects of overdosage are.

Vitamin D is naturally formed within the body by the action of sunlight. It is also found chiefly in fortified milk, margarine, cereals, butter, eggs and liver, plus saltwater fish. The vitamin aids in the assimilation of calcium and other minerals essential to good bone development. Therefore, the need for the vitamin decreases dramatically as we grow older. Some of the result of overdoses are nausea, appetite loss, kidney stones, increases in blood-cholesterol levels, bone fragility and dangerous boosts in blood pressure.

Vitamin E. The vitamin's function is still not fully understood. Also, the recommended daily allowance is easily obtainable from common foods. Yet an extraordinary number of claims have been advanced for vitamin E, including boosting sexual prowess, prevention of heart attacks, averting miscarriage, relief of constipation, curing cirrhosis of the liver, staving off aging, smoothing wrinkles, relief of arthritis, banishing body odor, etc.

None of these claims has been proven, Dr. White concludes.

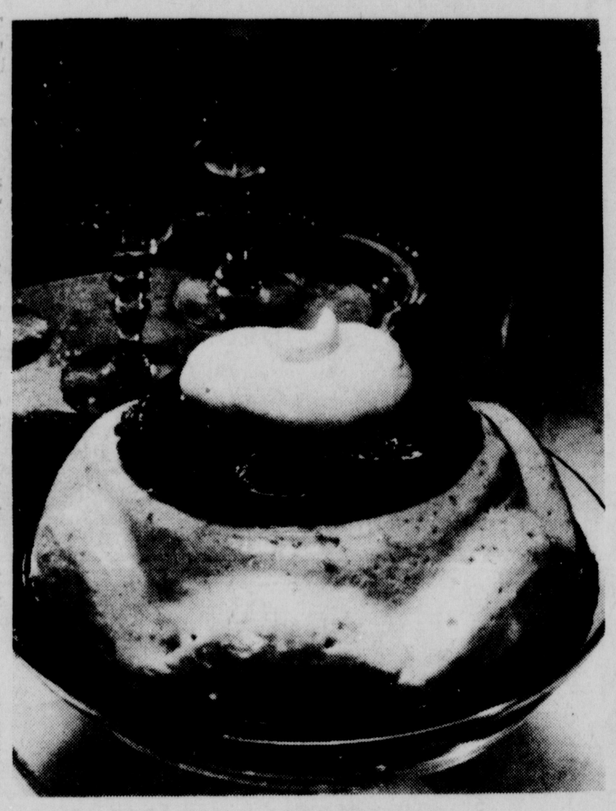
Sweet and satisfying



Sweet and satisfying

A prune marmalade mold makes a colorful, fruity tasting dessert.

By AILEEN CLAIRE

A light, fix-ahead dessert comes in the colorful form of a Prune Marmalade Mold. The combination of prune juice, orange marmalade and lemon juice with whipped cream gives this just the right tartness to offset a heavy meal, leaving the sweet tooth satisfied in a most refreshing way.

PRUNE MARMALADE MOLD

- 2 cups prune juice
- 2 teaspoons lemon juice
- 2 tablespoons orange marmalade
- 1 package (3 ounces) lemon gelatin
- 1 cup whipping cream, whipped

Heat 1 cup prune juice with lemon juice and orange marmalade. When just at boiling pour over gelatin. Divide gelatin mixture and pour one-third in top of 4-to-5 cup mold. Cool remainder until mixture mounds on spoon. Divide gelatin in 2 parts. Whip 1 part and fold into whipped cream and add to mold. Add remaining gelatin mixture to form final layer. Makes about 6 servings.

ELIOT FELD STARTS BALLET COMPANY

NEW YORK (AP) — Choreographer Eliot Feld has announced the forming of a new ballet company, Eliot Feld Ballet, with its first season set for June at the Newman Theater in the Public Theater complex.

Feld formed a company in 1968, to dissolve it two and a half years and 10 ballets later, because of the lack of money. Since then, Feld has created two ballets for American Ballet Theater and one each for the Joffrey Ballet and Royal Danish Ballet. But he prefers working with his own company.

The new company starts with a $35,000 development grant from the Rockefeller Foundation. It is planned that there will be two weeks in June, three weeks in the fall and four weeks next spring at the 300-seat Newman Theater. The company will begin with from 12 to 14 dancers and music will be by small groups or on tape.

Mother's loss

With one of her children holding tearfully to her skirts, a Cambodian mother mourns bitterly for another of her children who was killed in fighting near Oudong, the former royal capital of Cambodia. Oudong fell to the Communists in bitter fighting in March and government troops waged a bloody battle this week to retake the city. (UPI)

Readers oppose legal gambling

A solid 81 per cent of The Democrat-Capital's readers who responded to last Sunday's survey said this week they were opposed to any form of legalized gambling in Missouri.

They were asked: "The Missouri House of Representatives has rejected a proposed constitutional amendment to legalize certain gambling in Missouri. Backers of pari-mutuel horse racing and a state lottery, among other types of gambling, are now mounting a state initiative campaign to put the question on the ballot. Do you favor some form of legalized betting in Missouri?"

Mrs. V. L. Shipwright, 1001 South Limit, was one of the few who did. She wrote: "Living in this area, I will be very surprised if my 'yes' vote is not a minority. Don't you sometimes wonder if gambling might be like prohibition was — if legalized, it may not be as tempting and if an individual is inclined to gamble, having it illegal will not deter him. People are afraid gambling might attract the criminal influence — how about the many 'legal crooks' who live among us daily? They don't seem to be too frightening."

An unidentified reader who felt society was already heading in the wrong direction added that "betting will not help one bit."

A reader who asked she not be named said, "I am certainly against legalizing any form of gambling, drinking, drugs, stealing and lying. We have enough evil things going around, why vote for more?"

Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Miller, Warsaw, do not feel this way. They wrote: "Yes, we believe Missouri should legalize gambling and use the profits for the schools.

"The liquor and gambling profits could take care of schools and relieve the property tax for people. In a short time, propety tax, is going to run people out of their homes. Missouri people go to other states and spend thousands of dollars that could be used in our own state, if allowed, and do a lot of good. We don't think it would raise crime either, as most crimes are committed in states where no gambling is being allowed," they said.

A similar view was held by an unidentified Pettis Countian, who said, "Why should we force Missourians to go to Illinois and other places to gamble? It's a shame that the state is losing all this revenue because some narrow minded individuals have the feeling that gambling automatically leads to crime. Besides, there are so many forms of unenforced gambling in this county already, and if it were supervised, our government agencies could realize some revenue from these sources and lighten the tax load on those of us who can't afford it."

Aid payments are cut

Nightmare created for blind persons

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A welfare windfall two months ago has turned into a financial nightmare for many Missouri residents receiving aid-to-the blind payments.

A Kansas City woman who is blind and suffering from multiple sclerosis and diabetes has had her payments cut by a third since February, making it difficult for her to pay for the 12-15 kinds of drugs she needs and frequent visits to the doctor.

A Kansas City couple which has experienced a similar cutback since February has had to turn to friends, relatives and private relief agencies to help pay medical, food and rent bills.

Spokesmen for state and federal agencies say about 400 persons have been cut off from some payments because of an administrative foul-up. The error was caused by a switch in the administration of the program from the State Welfare Department to the Social Security Administration in December.

The state agreed to make up the difference if a recipient received less under the new federal plan, called Supplementary Security Income, than he had under the old state plan.

The program apparently worked fine in the first month but fell apart in February when the federal SSI checks contained overpayments, ranging from a few dollars to as much as $200.

The higher federal payments resulted in a reduction or — in many cases — elimination of the state payments. The SSI payments were returned to their normal level in March, but state officials are still trying to work out a solution.

In the meantime, many blind recipients have not received state supplemental payments for February or March.

Sid Rogers, an aide to Lt. Gov. William Phelps, said an effort is being made to send March and April checks to recipients as soon as possible, leaving the February problem for further study.

Eldo Throckmorton, assistant chief of the Bureau of Family and Children's Services in Jefferson City, says he hopes to get the March-April checks in the mail in a couple weeks. "We're having a dickens of a time," Thorckmorton said.

While the recipients are left waiting for state supplemental checks, they also face the prospect of having to pay back the federal government for the overpayments.

"Our normal policy is that if a person is without fault, and this would deprive them of enough to live on, consideration would be given to writing off the overpayment," said Tom Riat, assistant district manager for the Social Security Administration.

"This will be handled on an individual basis," he said, adding that no effort had been made to recover the overpayments so far.

Some of the aid-to-the-blind recipients returned their higher checks in February, or tried to. Others spent the additional money, apparently thinking they were entitled to higher payments under the federal program.

A 40-year-old Kansas City woman, who is blind, suffers from multiple sclerosis and diabetes and lipes alone, is supposed to receive about $45 monthly from SSI, $94 from the state and $114 in disability benefits.

In February her SSI check was about $100 higher than usual.

"I called the Social Security office and the county welfare office both twice and told them I have received too much," she said. "I was told it was okay to cash it, the money was mine. I still waited two weeks before I cashed it."

She said she has received normal SSI checks in March and this month, but no state supplemental checks since January.

"I'm just bogged down in bills. Most of my money goes for doctors and drugs because I take 12 to 15 different kinds of drugs.

A friend had to loan me money to pay my rent.

"If this keeps on very long or if I have to pay money back to the government, I don't know what I'll do," she said.

Spokesmen for governmental agencies say that over the long haul the aid-to-the-blind recipients will receive what is due them.

"What's facing these people, who are having trouble making a living anyway, is a drop in some future payments," Rogers noted.

Nixon's claim is debated

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government official disputes President Nixon's statement that a decline in the welfare rolls was the major reason for a $783-million surplus in the federal welfare budget this year.

Instead, James S. Dwight Jr., public assistance administrator in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, said in an interview Friday, at least 60 per cent, or $459 million, of the surplus represents funds unspent by the states for social services.

"States just aren't using this authority to the extent we thought they would," Dwight said.

Nixon announced a week ago that he was asking Congress to cut about $800 million from the fiscal 1974 welfare budget, citing a cumulative loss of 255,000 persons receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) assistance.

In actuality, the AFDC decline accounted for "just a small part" of the surpluse, Dwight said, giving figures of $67 million in reduced cash grants and $165 million in Medicaid savings.

Dwight said the administration previously had anticipated a substantial drop in AFDC costs through more efficient management and had trimmed $852 million from states' requests before submitting its fiscal 1974 budget proposal.

Car injuries are fatal for woman

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Ruth Henry, 72, of suburban Gladstone, died in a hospital Friday about five hours after she was injured in an accident on Interstate 35 in the north part of the city.

Police said Mrs. Henry swerved her car to the left to avoid a car that had slowed in her lane. Her car collided with a tractor-trailer truck and was pushed 135 feet into the median.

Alternate-nostril breathing for snorer

Dear Ann Landers: Two years ago, I was on the verge of a nervous breakdown because I couldn't get a night's sleep. My husband's snoring was getting louder and louder. I couldn't understand how he could sleep through that horrendous racket.

One day a friend suggested something she had learned in yoga class. It solved the problem for her. It is called alternate-nostril breathing, and it works!

Now when I say "Honey, please do the breathing exercise," he closes one nostril with his thumb and breathes four times. Then he closes one the other nostril and breathes four times. After five rounds, he is sound asleep — and so am I. — Forty Winks

Dear Winks: Here's your letter and I'd be interested in hearing from readers who have tried it.

Dear Ann Landers: Four years ago, I married a fine man for companionship. It seemed like a sensible arrnagement for two people in our mid-60s. His wife had passed on within weeks of my husband.

I had a modest amount of money and my second husband and I have made some good investments. I never had children of my own, but I have two nieces and a nephew I love dearly. My husband has one daughter who has resented me from the day I married her father. She has a well-to-do husband and two fine youngsters. I can't understand why she hates me so.

Last week her father had a bad cold, nothing really serious. She took me aside and said, "If anything happens to father I want you to know that I am his sole heir."

I was so hurt by her remark I did not reply. I hesitate to say anything to my husband for fear he will think I am critical of her. Furthermore, I would not want to start trouble in the family. Please advise me. I am — Very Upset

Dear V.U.: Say nothing to your husband about his daughter's crude remark. But, if you haven't seen a lawyer about the rightful distribution of his estate (and yours), by all means do so the first thing tomorrow morning.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm becoming serious about a man who is a junior partner in one of the city's most distinguished law firms. Greg wants me to go with him to select a ring. I have another year of college ahead of me and don't feel I'm ready to make the commitment. I must confess Greg turns me on and is terrific company. We see each other only weekends because I'm a serious student, carrying a double major. Greg keeps saying he's dying of loneliness.

A friend of my brother works in the same law firm and tells quite another story. It seems Greg rarely gets to the office before noon, his eyes looking like two tomatoes. He apparently is chasing around five nights a week with an assortment of dollies.

When I asked him about it he said, "Yes, I do go out, but only with sex-starved clients (mostly widows) who run after me. It's strictly business."

I'd hate to be made a fool of. What is your opinion? — Linda

Dear Linda: A healthy young man should be able to run faster than any sex-starved widow. Tell him you'll consider marriage after you've finished your education and he has finished his fooling around.

Xenia looks to future, but won't forget terror of tornado

By JOHN BARBOUR
AP Newsfeatures Writer

XENIA, Ohio (AP) — They are cleaning the streets of this quiet family town. They are carting away the rubble, cutting up the fallen trees and making plans for the future.

But they will never be able to erase the memory of those 15 minutes or so when a black whirlwind sped up from U.S. 42 and cut a path three-quarters of a mile wide and seven miles long through the heart of this town of 25,000.

Forty per cent of Xenia is demolished. Six of 12 schools are laid low. Thirty people are dead, 1,000 hurt, all from that wicked black funnel that struck from the sky late Wednesday afternoon.

Even now, in their quiet moments, the people of Xenia offer thanks for their homes and their lives.

Ron Anderson, 30, was sitting on the prone water heater in front of the cement slab that was once his home in the Pinecrest section. He had moved into his new home with his wife and two daughters, Karen, 9, and Rhonda, 7, only the Saturday before.

On Wednesday, shortly before 5 p.m., his wife was fixing supper and he was watching television in the living room when he heard the news: A tornado was hitting Xenia.

Fearful sight

The awesome sight of a tornado touching down to begin its devastating swath of destruction continues to plague the memories of many residents in areas hit by the storms this week. This picture was made by Cincinnati Post photographer Ken Stewart last Wednesday. (UPI)

The next few seconds were a blur.

When it was over, the entire house was gone and so was the rug they had been lying on, sucked out from under them. They laid there on the cement slab, bruised, cut, but alive.

"I'm just happy we're alive," he said, managing a smile.

"The house we moved out of in the Arrowhead section, it's flattened too."

Mrs. Peggy Schmidt was home with her 16-year-old daughter, Michele, and her daughter's boyfriend. They heard the approaching tornado and went to the front door. They could see it carving its way across the city.

"Michele said it looked like it was full of birds," Mrs. Schmidt said. "I told her those weren't birds. It was debris.

"We went into the downstairs bedroom and opened the sliding glass door, like they said to do so there wouldn't be any suction. Then we laid between the two beds. At the last moment we pulled a cover over us." It was just in time. The bedroom window smashed and hurled wind-driven glass all over the room.

It was over in seconds. They looked up and were amazed they had fared so well. But when they went outside, they found the whole second story missing.

And back in the bedroom, they discovered that the funnel had lifted up the entire house and had sucked all the electrical cords into the recess between the walls.

The weather remained unkind to Xenia in the wake of the storm. The day after was bright and sunny, but a heavy wind blew the dust of the debris into the eyes of rescuers and stung the faces of those sorting through the rubble of their homes.

Trees were hung with pieces of sheet metal, cardboard, cloth — ghastly decorations that played a clanging carol in the wind.

In the front of one home, the wind stretched an American flag taunt, snapping its edges. Its staff was twisted bizarrely around a tree trunk.

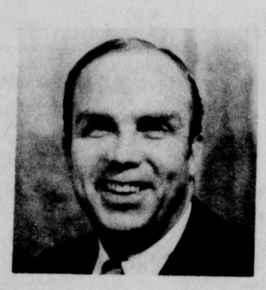
And on Friday, temperatures dropped and a drizzle turned to snow. After that it was below freezing in a town where many are homeless and without proper clothing.

The streets have been mostly cleared. But in the town sliced in half by a tornado, people were still searching for loved ones.

One man, his son dead, looked for his wife, who was supposed to have been home. Mrs. George Roach was at work and her husband was home alone. He suffered a stroke three years ago and just managed getting around the house. The tornado tore the Roach home apart, and miraculously he was found unhurt in the rubble of the hallway.

She tried desperately to reach him by phone and finally had to walk the several miles from downtown through the devastation to find him alive. "We're too old to start over again," she said. But then she said, "We will."

Finally, the pieces will fit together again. The insurance companies will pay off. The dead will be buried, the wounds will heal, and the memories will soften. The chain saws and the wailing sirens will still.



Mind your money

Black market gas is tricky

By PETER WEAVER

Q — I heard that some of the gasoline we might be getting has some water in it because it's bought on the black market. Is this true? If so, how can we protect our car? — Mrs. J.W., Weston, Mass.

A — There are rumors that black market gasoline is being sold and that it might be contaminated with some water. It's also a fact that a number of filling stations have had to pump gas right down to the bottom of their tanks where moisture tends to collect.

You can protect your carburetor and engine from damage caused by too much moisture in the gasoline by adding a can of dry-gas or gasline antifreeze once every five weeks or so (once a month is easier to remember).

You can buy it at gasoline stations but it costs anywhere from $1.00 to $1.25 a can. If you buy the dry-gas additive at a chain store or independent auto parts store — on sale — you can get it for a case price that comes out to around 20 to 25 cents a can. Get a case and pour a can into the gas tank the first of every month or whichever date is easy to remember.

Put the dry-gas in regularly, winter and summer, mechanics say, and your engine will have a better chance to go longer without major repairs.

One other warning. Gasoline stations, according to law, must now offer no-lead gasoline, which is necessary for upcoming anti-pollution devices on cars. Older cars, before 1971-72 mobels, should not use no-lead gasoline. Check your car's manual to see if your car can take no-lead. Some cars made in 1971 or 1972 can take no-lead but not all the time. Using no-lead gasoline in an older car could seriously damage the engine.

Q — My son was injured in a school football game. The school's football insurance paid for treating the original injury but will not pay for recurring problems relating to the injury. What can we do? — Mrs. D.T., Greenbelt, Md.

A — Whenever you have a personal injury problem with an insurance company it pays to be represented by a lawyer. Check with your employer, union, lending institution or local bar association for lawyers' names. Lawyers can take personal injury cases against an insurance company on a contingency basis which means, if you win, your get money from the insurance company minus one-third or so which goes to the lawyer. If you lose, you don't have to pay the lawyer anything.

Q — I want to put my money in a Swiss bank. I'm worried about the way things are going in our country. Where can I get names of reputable Swiss banks? — Mrs. E.M.L., Lexington, Mass.

A — There are many reputable Swiss banks. Three of them have correspondence branch offices in New York. They are: Swiss Credit Bank, 100 Wall St., New York 10005; Union Bank of Switzerland, 14 Wall St., New York 10005; Swiss Bank Corp., 15 Nassau St., New York 10005.

A word of warning. Swiss savings accounts pay considerably less interest than accounts in U.S. banks. If you have your money in a U.S. savings institution (bank, savings and loan, savings bank or credit union) which is federally insured, your money is going to be as safe as it would be in a Swiss bank — and it will be a lot closer for quick withdrawal.

If you're thinking of putting your money into Swiss currency, it's sort of like playing the stock market. In relationship with the Swiss franc, the dollar may be worth more or may be worth less over the next year or so.

Increase in inspectors is required

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Rep. Winifred Weber, D-House Springs, has called for more state inspectors to help bring homes for the mentally retarded in Missouri up to standards set in a state licensing law passed in 1972.

Rep. Weber said Friday she will attempt to get appropriations approved in this legislative session to hire inspectors to check homes where mentally retarded persons are placed by the Missouri Division of Mental Health Services.

Officials of the division said only 183 of the 538 homes housing the patients at present have been licensed under the law.

The division is "not moving fast enough at all," Rep. Weber said.

Dr. Duane Hensley, mental retardation services director, said, however that Gov. Christopher S. Bond has refused a division request for 10 additional inspectors and recommended a total of 13 to handle the entire state.

Hensley said he did not belive the division could get more than 12 inspectors currently on the division payroll.

Rural America gets diluted version of city, suburb problems

EDITORS NOTE — Has the energy crisis left an imprint on American life? To find out, Associated Press reporters talked with government leaders, businessmen and the man on the street to get a preliminary reading. In the final installment of a three-part series, the effects on rural areas are examined.

By CRAIG AMMERMAN
Associated Press Writer

The gasoline lines, the renewed emphasis on mass transit, the skyrocketing utility bills are all things people in rural America have read about. But in most cases they've seen little of them.

The energy crisis, like other sudden changes in the country's lifestyle, has had some impact on rural America. But it is less noticeable and more likely to be ignored than in the cities and suburbs.

The problems of the cities generally reach the rural areas, but in a diluted form. And the millions of people who live there for the most part go about their daily lives much the way they always have.

Associated Press reporters who visited rural communities in five states in recent weeks reported there have been some changes because of the energy crisis. But the problems endured by many cities and suburbs translate into aggravations rather than crises for rural areas.

It is almost impossible to gauge what impact the energy situation will have on the future of small towns. But many who live there find it hard to believe any lasting changes will be forced upon them with the exception of high prices for gasoline.

Most rural areas visited by AP reporters have endured some changes:

—Gasoline prices are higher, and a few service stations have gone out of business. Small motels have experienced a drop in business.

—Citizens generally keep their thermostats lower.

—Some local stores report increased business because local residents are less likely to drive 50 miles or so to urban shopping centers. Other stores, such as clothing concerns, report a drop in business, and attribute it to local residents spending less because of higher prices for food and gasoline.

—Local residents who drive considerable distances to shop or to watch the local high school athletic teams are more likely to form car pools, and they aren't taking as many trips.

"There's been really no gasoline shortage here," said Mayor Shelby Combs of Nicholasville, Ky. "If it (the energy crisis) were to get worse I don't know what would happen here. I suppose we could be hurt, but we haven't been yet."

John Sutherland, an automobile dealer in Nicholasville, said "people around here were looking for small cars for a while, but that's beginning to change already."

All of which is not to say the latest American crisis hasn't been felt in Nicholasville. One local motel reported its business down 40 per cent and some residents said they were making fewer shopping trips to Lexington.

And for some in rural America, like Jay Davis, there has been an energy crisis.

Davis, 28, moved to Colfax, Wash., last year and began managing a service station with a staff of six, a large repair business and gasoline sales of 1,000 gallons a day.

"Then this energy crisis thing started, with allotments of gas always going lower and lower," he said. "We were down to 350 gallons a day when I left" to be a fire department captain. By that time, Davis said his monthly income had plunged from $1,300 to $600.

In Colfax, a wheat farming area where last year's record prices have brought a degree of prosperity, the local Sears store said orders were up 10 per cent; the manager attributed it to persons who make fewer shopping trips to Spokane. The local library said it could not keep how-to books on the shelves any more. "People are staying home more and need things to do," explained the librarian.

In Harvard, Mass., an affluent town of 3,300 people located 32 miles west of Boston, the housing industry has suffered. In recent years towns like Harvard have grown as people moved farther out of the center city. But that has stopped, at least temporarily.

Inquiries about homes have been cut in half, realtors say, and in the first 10 weeks of this year seven houses were sold in Harvard. Last year, in the same period, 16 were sold. Of 18 houses built last fall in a Harvard subdivision, only three have been sold.

The only service station in Harvard is open about half the days of the month because of the gasoline shortage, but the state's odd-even rationing system has ended the long lines that used to prevail.

In Plant City, Fla., a town of 20,000 about 25 miles east of Tampa, a gasoline station went out of business and there were long lines until a voluntary odd-even rationing plan took effect. But the winter strawberry crop—the main industry—got to market except when there was a truckers' strike. The local gift shop's business went up when local residents didn't want to drive to Tampa. Service stations closed early. Some residents formed car pools for shopping. Now it's getting back to normal, officials say.

Plant City was generally typical of the small towns the reporters visited. They found people coping with their problems, and some of them cynical about what had caused the trouble.

Speaking of the oil companies, Joan Stockwell of Colfax said:

"I just think they wanted more money. It's like the wheat shortage. There was one, we were told ... We were told there would be no flour. But at the store, there was flour. Of course, it cost more ... This is the kind of thing you just learn to live with. There's no sense making a big deal out of it. As soon as that damn Watergate is over with, it will all go off — there will be no shortage."

Wisconsin couple raising wolves

By JAMES A. CARLSON
Associated Press Writer

SHAWANO, Wis. (AP) — Still night air covered the woods of east central Wisconsin as a family of three prepared to retire for the night.

Suddenly, the cry of a timber wolf broke the silence and brought echoed cries from other wolf throats.

"They really enjoy howling," Joan Gehr explains. "Many times it's almost like a ritual with us," she adds. "Someone sticks his head out the window and starts howling, and they howl with us."

The timber wolf or grey wolf, once an important predator in northwoods areas of the Midwest, is only a rare resident today.

In Wisconsin, the Department of Natural Resources says the spread of civilization caused the wolf population to disappear during the 1950s, although occasional wanderers from adjoining states are sometimes spotted.

The Gehrs say they hope to contribute to replenishing the populaton of wild wolves by restocking some of the animals they raise.

They began the wolf-raising venture with Canadian-born male and female animals purchased as pups in 1969 and 1970.

Two litters later, the Gehrs have seven offspring and the original pair of wolves living on the wooded tract.

They say living closely with the wolves has given them many insights into the lifestyle of the tightly knit wolf family and into the character of the wolf itself.

Mrs. Gehr uses such terms as "joyous, straightforward and honest" to describe the wolves, adding that they possess a dry sense of humor which she can interpret from "the position of the ears, the facial expression, and the position of the tail."

The Gehrs are able to pet the wolves, which may reach a weight of more than 100 pounds, but they say they are somewhat wary of the wolf pack during mating season.

"The wolf considers man either equal with or below him," Mrs. Gehr explained. "He's not subservient like a dog."

"During mating season the male wolf can consider man as a rival," she said, adding that a wolf's attitude toward man will vary with the power of the man's personality.

Gehr has a permit to salvage injured deer, and Mrs. Gehr said the wolves are fed a main diet of venison from animals killed along area highways.

She contended that the wolves would be able to adapt to the wilds instinctively on their release, although they might need some help at first.

So far, the Gehrs are still looking for the right situation to offer their animals for release.

"After all this work we put in, I would hate to have them shot right away by someone who didn't know what he was doing," Mrs. Gehr said.

The volunteer Army is off and running

Despite the show-me skepticism of many people, the all-volunteer Army is working, reports Secretary of the Army Howard H. Callaway.

When the draft ended on Dec. 31, 1972, the Army had 10 fully-formed combat divisions. Today, it has 13 such divisions, 10 of which are considered combat ready.

"The Army's on board, it's more disciplined, it's a better Army," says Callaway.

What this means is that for the first time since before World War II, except for a brief hiatus following the war, the United States is not relying on conscription to fill the Army's ranks. For the first time in a generation, young men can plan their futures without the threat of the draft hanging over their heads.

Actually, the development is more momentous than that.

For all of its history, until the onset of the Cold War, the peacetime Army was a volunteer organization. But the tiny, neglected, sometimes scorned and always poorly equipped forces that existed between the wars hardly qualified as armies. They were a nucleus only, a cadre of professionals, expected to hold the line if war came, while the nation slowly mobilized itself.

The United States will never again enjoy that kind of leisure in the event of another major war. In this nuclear age, the exchange of missiles would be over, and the outcome probably decided, long before the country could whip its civilian population into a fighting force.

The Army, along with the other services, must be ready at all times —trained, competent and equipped—to play whatever roles they would be able to play in the ghastly scenario of nuclear war.

As for any more so-called "limited" wars, which scarcely seem conceivable in the light of the Vietnam experience, here, too, it must be the job of a professional Army. Although the draft law remains on the books, the nation is not likely again to give a president a "blank check" to send erstwhile civilians into dubious battle. (NEA)

St. Clair demands to cross-examine

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's wily Watergate attorney, James St. Clair, has thrown the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment inquiry into a tizzy by demanding the right to cross-examine and even subpoena witnesses.

The impeachment investigation, like a grand jury probe, is merely supposed to determine whether charges should be brought against the President. It would take a two-thirds vote of the Senate to convict him.

Defense attorneys normally don't participate in grand jury proceedings. But committee Republicans desperately want St. Clair to be involved in the impeachment investigation. With the President's counsel present, they would be relieved of the burden of defending Nixon.

Indeed, the Republicans feel so strongly that they voted 12 to 0 behind closed doors to reject the advice of their own top lawyer, Albert Jenner, who had argued against St. Clair's participation.

Committee Democrats, however, fear that St. Clair's celebrated courtroom skills could interfere with the impeachment inquiry. Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J., has emphasized that the probe "is not an adversary proceeding."

In an earlier column, we reported that Jenner is being undercut by the committee's No. 2 Republican lawyer, Sam Garrison, who is working behind the scenes to obstruct the impeachment investigation.

Many observers believed Jenner, a distinguished Chicago attorney, was hired to take the Watergate onus off the Republicans. His experience and integrity, it was thought, would serve as the excuse for Republicans to move away from the President.

Instead, our sources say the senior Republican, Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., has bypassed Jenner and given real authority over the GOP staff to Garrison.

Both Jenner and chief counsel John Doar have tried to maintain lines of communication between the Democratic and Republican staffs. But Garrison has blocked the goal of an integrated staff. He has refused to work on any of the fact-finding task forces but confines himself instead to strictly partisan efforts. He is now hard at work drafting a partisan brief on the St. Clair issue.

BACKSTAGE BUSINESS: The powerful National Association of Manufacturers is giving its top lobbyists a secret battle plan for fighting new consumer legislation by twisting arms in the White House and Cabinet.

Because the NAM includes heavy GOP contributors among its well-heeled members, its lapel-grabbing has always had a persuasive effect on Republican administrations.

We have obtained a copy of NAM's battle plan with focuses on the Consumer Protection Agency Act. The agency would make it easier for consumers to get action on phony warranties, pollution, excessive interest rates, shoddy merchandise and numerous other consumer afflictions.

Since reform of the business world often costs manufacturers money, the NAM has told its lobbyists in a secret memo to "build a climate of controversy" against the bill.

The purpose, as the secret memo spells it out, is to delay the bill in the House Rules Committee, or filibuster it in the Senate, or get a presidential veto and then get the veto sustained.

The NAM wrecking crews are urged by headquarters to talk to "Cabinet officers, and heads of major agencies and programs" including the White House, and to convince them they "will lose their authority to conduct their affairs in orderly fashion," if the agency is set up.

The lobbyists are instructed to see a "Presidential directive" as a means of "generating a flow of adverse comment."

The plan high-handedly instructs the NAM lobbyists to "direct each major Cabinet Department and agency or program administrator" to organize congressmen against the bill. One of those the NAM is least likely to have success with in Congress is Rep. Chet Holifield, D-Calif., Holifield first opposed a strong consumer bill, but now, as he heads toward retirement, is zestily returning to his crusader spirit of two decades ago, and is personally shepherding the fledgling agency through Congress.

New twist to the energy crisis

WASHINGTON — I went into Burberry's house the other night and, much to my surprise, I found every light in his house on.

Buchwald

"Burberry, have you taken leave of your senses?" I said. "Don't you know there is an energy crisis?"

Burberry plugged in the toaster, the coffee-maker and the iron. "I know it," he replied, "And I'm trying to do something about it."

"By turning on all the lights and using all these electric gadgets?"

"That's right," he said, turning the thermostat to 80. "You see, the electric companies say they can't make any money if we conserve electricity. The only way we can bring prices down is if electric usage goes up."

"You're putting me on."

"I'm not putting you on," he said, plugging in his wife's hair dryer. "A few months ago the President and George C. Scott went on the air, separately of course, and said we had to conserve energy if we were going to be able to maintain our great way of life. So everyone cut down on using electricity. We turned off our lights, cut down our thermostats and reduced the use of all our electric appliances. They estimated the American people saved between 10 per cent and 20 per cent during the winter. Everyone thought if they conserved they would at least save money on their electricity bills."

"Well, it turned out just the opposite. The electric companies all asked for rate increases because people weren't using enough of their product. It turns out they all want to be paid for electricity we haven't used."

"But that doesn't make sense," I said.

"What the hell does make sense about the energy crisis?" Burberry said. "My family froze their butts off this winter as a patriotic gesture, and now we find the electric companies want to put a surcharge on them."

"On your butts?"

"No, not on our butts, on our conservation methods."

"The electric companies are the only ones who want to charge you more for using less electricity. I cut down on smoking last year. The cigarette companies didn't send me a letter saying because I cut down on smoking they would have to charge me more a pack. We gave up high-priced steaks. My butcher didn't send me a bill for not eating steaks. Why should the electric companies send me a letter saying because I didn't use enough electricity I'm going to have to pay more for it?"

"I guess if they don't sell enough electricity to their customers they lose money on it."

"Okay, so that means if I use more electricity, they'll make money and then be able to charge me less."

He yelled into the kitchen. "Honey, did you put the stove and oven on?"

"Burberry," I said. "I know what you say is true, but I think you've missed the point. Everyone is expected to make sacrifices during an energy crisis. I'm not talking about real sacrifices. What could be a greater sacrifice for an American than to use less electricity but at the same time compensate the electric companies by paying more for it? That's what George C. Scott and President Nixon were talking about when they asked you to turn your lights out."

By this time Burberry had turned on his vacuum cleaner, and I didn't hear his reply. But as an accomplished lip reader, I was just as glad I couldn't.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

A man's income is generally directly related to his educational attainment. Of all employed men age 25 to 64 without high school diplomas, 33 per cent had 1971 incomes of less than $6,000. Only 13 per cent of this age group with diplomas had incomes below $6,000. Only 6 per cent of the men without high school diplomas had incomes over $15,000, while 22 per cent of the men with diplomas and 43 per cent of those with college degrees had incomes above $15,000, The World Almanac notes.

The mystery box

A deep freeze is a mystery box,
Or so a couple has found —
She took out, for a meat loaf,
A package of beef — ground,
That was in the morning,
Then off to work did they go,
The meat would be thawed, they thought,
When they came home — and so
That evening she opened the package
Prepared to make her meat dish
But she suddenly changed her menu,
The ground beef turned out to be fish.
Another day they planned on soup
And he, to make it thaw faster,
Ran the package under hot water,
And while it was no disaster,
They didn't have soup as they planned
And again she felt a bit silly
For when they looked in the package
They decided to settle for chili,
She had written on the packages plain
So she would know what they were Still she thought she knew what was in them
As she looked at the moisture blur,
So now when they leave of a morning
And her husband smiles as she guesses
For it's likely to be a surprise
But to him it just doesn't matter
Whether it's soup, chili, fish or meat,
Whatever is in the thawed package
He knows will be something to eat,
He watches with a grin on his face
Because he loves to tease her
As she opens a thawed package
That came from the mystery freezer.

Workshop personnel get tour

By CYRENE DEAR

WASHINGTON — President Nixon described a movie he had been watching to a group of grassroots newspaper people during a recent workshop, but couldn't remember its name. It starred Clark Gable and Doris Day and was about an ambitious young journalist who after he had won the girl discovered that one of the best editorials he had ever read was in an old yellowed weekly newspaper.

The President made his point in emphasizing the importance that "small town" newspapers play in national affairs as well as local news. He didn't tell his story very well — using frequent lapses and trying to be entertaining. Mrs. Nixon seemed to be wondering if he was ever going to make his point.

The several hundred news people assembled on both sides of the aisle as the President and Mrs. Nixon marched in the usual manner accompanied by "Hail to the Chief." This group of publishers is regarded as mostly Republican, but many loyalties have changed and most of them believe that the President should and will be impeached.

The buses that took the workshop group from the Russell Building Caucus Room to the White House caused the President to open his remarks, "I wondered what could have happened, because the Press is never late."

The President and Mrs. Nixon received in the Blue Room, which has recently been done over since the Kennedy days. Both seemed in good spirits and looked carefully at the name tags and often identified the wearer or his community. Those who partook of the refreshments remarked that the drinks certainly were not watered and the tidbits were excellent. Many of the women put on their long dresses for the 5 o'clock party, and the children they brought were all slicked up for the occasion.

Conference questions often involved district problems, but certainly the subjects covered by the conference centered on the energy crisis, which Chairman William Simon of the Federal Energy Office admitted was real, although the lifting of the Arab oil embargo had eased the situation somewhat. Inflation, economy, campaign reform, communication and postal services were covered by administration and congressional speakers.

The politicians tactfully avoided Watergate, the resignation or impeachment of the President. The newsmen and women sought their own congressmen for such information. They visited the offices on the Hill and often had lunch or dinner with their congressmen.

The congressional reception was held March 28. About 50 members from the Hill came down to shake the hands of the newsmen and discuss their upcoming campaigns.

Mrs. Anne Armstrong, the beautiful lady from Texas, counselor to the President and the only woman in the Cabinet, made a great hit. She talked about the Bicentennial, of which she is chairman, and urged the publishers to help put on local celebrations in their own communities. Mrs. Armstrong likes to tell jokes on Henry Kissinger, but now that he has married his Nancy she probably will refrain.

Some experts are more expert than others. If you don't think so, just take a look at the bidding shown in the box. Six clubs is a poor contract, six notrump a good one and six hearts even better.

South failed to make the club slam. He led a club to dummy's king; let the nine ride to West's queen and tried unsuccessfully to drop the jack.

The experts at the table and a writer who analyzed the hand later, went to a lot of trouble to show that after letting the nine lose to the queen, South could have made the hand by a trump coup following a finesse of dummy's jack of diamonds to give an extra entry.

None of these less talented experts pointed out that the correct play with the actual holding would have brought the club slam right home.

The correct play is to lead a club toward dummy and play the nine if West follows low. This line of play works against all 3-3 breaks and any time West holds Q-J-x-x, Q-x, J-2, or xxx.

The actual chance of success is 61% which is far better than the chance offered by any other play.

The monsters of Holy Loch

By London Economist News Service

LONDON — Those American missile submarines look like staying in Holy Loch after all, in spite of the Labor election manifesto's proposal to "seek their removal."

The knee-jerk reaction of the Labor left never had much of a base in practical terms; it is hard to imagine Harold Wilson ever so beholden to the forces of anti-Americanism or pacifism in his party as to evict the Americans from within shouting range of Britain's own missile submarine base.

The United States found its knees jerking as well; it trotted out several of its top admirals to tell the world that the base at Holy Loch in Scotland is "absolutely essential" if its missile submarines are to be able to cover their targets.

This is true only in the sense that Holy Loch is necessary if the present selection of targets is to be covered as effectively as now in the cheapest and most convient way. Desirable and handy as it is, Holy Loch is not absolutely essential to the American strategic deterrent, nor even to that part of it contributed by the missile submarines in the north Atlantic.

When a submarine starts its patrol it proceeds to the nearest "station" — a suitable place for lurking under water — and covers the closest targets. During its patrol, it moves progessively forward to closer-in stations, covering targets deeper in the Soviet heartland, and then comes back out along the chain again, finishing as close as possible to its base, thus maintaining "target coverage" for as much of the 60-day period as possible.

A forward base such as Holy Loch, close to the patrol areas, was required to keep the stations within 1,200 miles of the targets and the off-station time down to a reasonable level.

But the days of the A-1 missile are gone forever. Most of the submarines now operating from Holy Loch have Poseidon, which carries 10-14 warheads (the A-1 had one) up 2,500 miles.

What the U.S. Navy has done with their extra range is to aim at some targets they couldn't reach before, and also to move the patrol stations farther away from the Soviet Union in order to complicate Russian efforts to locate and track the submarines.

Both of these things are highly desirable, but not essential, at least over the next few years; and in 1978 the C-4 missile with a 6,000-mile range will appear on the scene and could make Holy Loch, as well as Rota in Spain, superfluous.

If the Americans were chucked out of Holy Loch they would have to go back to ports on the east coast of the United States. This could be done without sacrificing much target coverage by making high-speed runs to and from a point near the first patrol area (but far enough away to avoid giving away its exact location; highspeed submarines are relatively noisy and easy to track) and, on top of that, by lengthening the patrols from 60 to about 68 days.

A little tougher on the sailors, perhaps, but not much; anyway, being where the families are for refit and turnover would more than make up for this.

The major cost would be a sharp reduction in the life of the nuclear reactor cores because of the higher speeds. The fissionable material itself is expensive, and it takes major shipyard work to put it in.

★ ★ ★

These costs are important to the Americans. Throwing them out of Holy Loch would thus be an expensive irritant that would neither make Britain safer nor alter American nuclear policy significantly. However, as the American demands for Europe's defense become more insistent, it would seem reasonable to ask that the saving from using Holy Loch be counted as part of Britain's contribution.

Stewardesses will get their back pay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Northwest Airlines has been ordered to pay back salary and interest to stewardesses who were paid less than men for the same job.

The action came Friday as U.S. District Judge Aubrey Robinson set damages in a decision he issued in November finding that Northwest had violated the Equal Pay Act and Civil Rights Act.

The actual number of stewardesses affected and the amount of money involved was not known immediately. Robinson did not specifically apply his order to any other airline, although it could set a precedent in future legal moves.

—Imposing a chain of command in which all male cabin attendants, regardless of classification or length of service, were superior to female cabin attendants.

—Providing a uniform cleaning allowance for male cabin attendants but not for females.

—Setting weight limits for stewardesses and not for pursers and prohibiting only female cabin attendants from wearing glasses while on duty.

Robinson ordered the airline to pay back salary and interest to all stewardesses fired since 1965 for being overweight and to reimburse them for each time since 1968 that they were forced to share a room with another stewardess while males doing the same work had a single room.

Defense case gets started for officer

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP) — The defense will start presenting its evidence Monday in the U.S. District Court trial of police Capt. Tom Dailey and attorney Anthony Russo.

The two are charged with conspiracy to promote prostitution and bribery.

The government finished its case Friday and the court overruled a defense motion for directed verdicts of acquittal.

Dailey has been suspended as commander of the police vice squad.

Jerry W. Lawson, former policeman, and William Lowman, operator of massage parlors, have pleaded guilty to vice charges and have testified as government witnesses against Dailey and Russo.

Chapin insists on his innocence

By DONALD SANDERS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former White House aide Dwight L. Chapin, convicted of lying to a federal grand jury investigating political espionage, vows "to continue to fight for my innocence."

A federal district court jury of seven men and five women on Friday found the 33-year-old former appointments secretary to President Nixon guilty of two counts of perjury and innocent on a third.

The maximum penalty on each of the two counts is five years in prison and a fine of $10,000. U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell set sentencing for May 15 and invited Chapin to submit "all the information about yourself" before then. He remains free without bond.

"I am going to continue to fight for my innocence. On the day I was indicted I went out on my front lawn and said I was innocent. I intend to fight this thing all the way through."

Chapin, on leave from the position with United Air Lines which he took when he left the White House a little more than a year ago, showed no emotion when the jury announced its verdict. His wife broke into silent sobs when he came over and kissed her.

The jury deliberated nearly 11½ hours Thursday and Friday before reaching its verdict on Chapin, the eighth former White House aide convicted either by guilty plea or trial.

His troubles stemmed from his recruitment of a college friend, Donald H. Segretti, to infiltrate the ranks of Democratic presidential contenders and create confusion and dissension.

Segretti, who admitted making up phony and scurrilous press releases and campaign literature, was the principal witness against Chapin a week after he himself was released after serving a 4½-month sentence for violating federal election laws.

There were two parts to the first count. The jury found that Chapin had lied to the grand jury when he said he never discussed distribution of campaign material with Segretti. It found he had not lied when he said he did not know Segretti had distributed literature. His conviction on that count stands.

He was convicted also of lying when he said he had never given Segretti "any directions or instructions with respect to any single or particular candidate."

He was acquitted of a charge that he lied when he said he told Segretti to talk to FBI agents after they had contacted him.

Judge Gesell had dismissed a fourth count.

Found guilty

Dwight L. Chapin, President Nixon's former appointments secretary, leaves U.S. District Court after a federal jury found him guilty on two of the three counts that he lied to the Watergate Grand Jury. Chapin faces a maximum of five years in jail and a $10,000 fine for both counts. (UPI)

Better mileage cars expected

DETROIT (AP) — After years of declining fuel economy, the auto is expected to stage a big comeback in the 1975 model year with gasoline mileage improvements very likely exceeding 7 per cent.

The federal Environmental Protection Agency said Friday that preliminary results on some 1975-model test vehicles showed efficiency improvements would be greater than anticipated.

Coupled with increased use of steel-belted, radial-ply tires, which the EPA says can cut fuel use an average 10 per cent, the improvement could be an important factor in dealing with the nation's petroleum problem.

EPA deputy administrator Eric Stork said the latest projection was based on the first tests of 1975 cars equipped with catalytic converters. The converters will be used on most of the new autos to meet tougher pollution standards.

The agency previously said it expected about a 7 per cent average improvement over-all and 11 to 13 per cent for its own models will probably turn out to have been too conservative," Stork said in a telephone interview from his Washington office.

With the catalysts bearing the burden of emissions control in the new cars, auto makers have said they are able to recalibrate the rest of the engine for better gasoline mileage.

Automakers have complained of a total fuel penalty of about 15 per cent over the past five years because of engine and body changes designed to meet federal pollution and safety standards.

Stork said GM will record the largest gain because its model line is the heaviest.

"The greatest savings are going to be on the biggest cars because they lost the most and have more to gain back," he said.

Stork said he could not release detailed test information at this time. Release of fuel economy figures is slated to coincide with the September model introduction.

Girl is crushed to death by a car

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A driverless car crushed a 2-year-old girl to death in the driveway at her home Friday afternoon.

The victim, Shelly Phillips, was riding a tricycle in the driveway and her sister, Bridgett Phillips, 3, was playing in the parked car. Police said Bridgett apparently bumped the gear shift lever, allowing the car to roll downhill and crush Shelly against a concrete wall.

Police said the children's mother, Mrs. Ethel Phillips, was not at home but their uncle and another man were working on another car in front of the home.

AL roundup

Royals score 23 runs

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Designated hitter Hal McRae slammed a home run, double and single and figured in seven-run and six-run uprisings, helping power the Kansas City Royals to a 23-6 rout over the Minnesota Twins Saturday.

McRae, who drove in four runs and scored three, singled in the Royals' seven-run outburst in the first inning against starter Bill Hands, scoring Cookie Rojas. He homered in the third, driving in John Mayberry and Amos Otis, who both had walked, giving the Royals a 10-0 lead.

McRae doubled leading off the fifth, touching off a six-run rally after the Twins had pulled to within 10-6.

Eleven batters went to the plate for the Royals in the first. Fred Patek, Jim Wohlford and Mayberry singled in succession before Rojas doubled to score Wohlford and Mayberry.

After McRae's single, Paul Schaal was hit by a pitch, and Fran Healy singled in McRae. Schaal and Healy both came home when rookie shortstop Sergio Ferrer misplayed Patek's grounder for an error.

McRae's double, Patek's run-scoring single, walks to Wohlford and Healy, Vada Pinson's two-run single, a double by Mayberry and Ferrer's throwing error that allowed Pinson and Mayberry to score produced the six runs runs in the fifth.

California 3, Chicago 2

CHICAGO (AP) — Mickey Rivers singled home the winning run with two out in the ninth inning Saturday, giving California a 3-2 victory over Chicago, the Angels' second consecutive American League triumph over the White Sox.

Ellie Rodriguez drew a one-out walk from Stan Bahnsen, who led the majors with 21 losses last season, and went to second when catcher Ed Herrmann tried to pick him off and threw the ball into right field. Rodriguez held second as rookie Dave Chalk grounded out, but moved to third on a wild pitch and scored on Rivers' single to left.

Chicago's two runs came on homers, Buddy Bradford connecting against rookie Frank Tanana in the first inning and Bill Melton hitting one in the sixth.

Detroit 3, Baltimore 2

BALTIMORE (AP) — Jim Northrup doubled with two out in the 10th inning and scored on a single by designated hitter Al Kaline, lifting the Detroit Tigers to a 3-2 victory Saturday over the Baltimore Orioles.

It was Detroit's first triumph in two games under new Manager Ralph Houk and pinned the setback on Dave McNally, who went all the way for Baltimore.

The Tigers pulled even at 2-2 in the sixth inning when Mickey Stanley doubled and scored on Bill Freehan's hard ground smash off the leg of third base umpire Nestor Chylak.

Detroit, which stranded six runners in the first four innings, scored an unearned run in the third on a walk to Aurelio Rodriguez, pitcher Dave McNally's fielding error and a single by Kaline.

Bobby Grich knocked in both Baltimore runs. His fifth-inning home run put the Orioles in front 2-1 and his bloop single in the third scored Mark Belanger, who had walked and moved all the way to third on a passed ball by Freehan.

Milwaukee 5, Boston 4

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Pedro Garcia's two-run homer capped a four-run seventh inning, propelling the Milwaukee Brewers to a 5-4 victory over the Boston Red Sox Saturday.

The Brewers had been held to one hit by loser Bill Lee until George Scott doubled to open the seventh. John Briggs walked and Bob Coluccio followed with a two-run double off the left centerfield wall. After Darrell Porter lined out, Garcia smashed the next pitch into the left centerfield bleachers.

Milwaukee starter Jim Slaton was tagged for four runs in the first inning, but settled down and blanked the Red Sox on five hits until being relieved by Eduardo Rodriguez with one out in the ninth.

New York 6, Cleveland 1

NEW YORK (AP) — Mel Stottlemyre scattered seven hits and Graig Nettles belted a two-run homer Saturday to lead the New York Yankees to a 6-1 victory over the Cleveland Indians in the American League opener for both teams.

It was the Yankees' debut at Shea Stadium before a crowd of 20,744 fans and marked the first time in 52 years they haven't opened their home season at Yankee Stadium, which is undergoing a two-year refurbishing.

The game was enlivened by a spitball controversy between Cleveland starter Gaylord Perry and umpire Marty Springstead, who invoked a new league rule and called an automatic ball on the right-hander for throwing an illegal pitch.

Perry, who permitted six hits through 6 1-3 innings, held the Yankees hitless until the fourth inning, when Thurman Munson led off with a single. With two out, Nettles slammed an opposite-field home run over the 371-foot sign in left-center. The Yanks added a run in the sixth and three in the seventh, chasing Perry.

Ted Kwalick signs with WFL team

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — San Francisco 49er All-Pro tight end Ted Kwalick has signed a multi-year contract for an estimated $500,000 with the World Football League's Honolulu Hawaiians, the San Jose News reported in its Saturday editions.

Kawlick will play out his option year this season with the National Football League team before jumping to the WFL in 1975 for the offer that reportedly includes a pineapple plantation and a condominium.

"They offered a heck of a deal and I took it because I felt it was best for my family," said Kwalick in a telephone interview with the newspaper from Honolulu. "I feel the 49ers were as fair to me as they could be in their offer. I only wish that they could have come closer to the Hawaii offer."

Kwalick, who has caught 151 passes for 1,324 yards and 21 touchdowns in his NFL career, said he was looking forward to a good final season with the 49ers.

Birds start fast

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Veteran right-hander Sonny Siebert, making his first national League start, scattered four singles and delivered a two-run single Saturday, helping the St. Louis Cardinals beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 8-0.

Ted Sizemore rapped four straight singles and Reggie Smith and Ken Reitz rapped run-scoring doubles for the Cards, who whipped the Pirates for the second straight time.

Sizemore's steady hitting and two hits by Smith keyed a 15-hit Cardinals attack against three Pittsburgh pitchers, including loser Bob Moose.

Siebert, a former American Leaguer, aided his cause by singling in two seventh-inning runs after the Cards had mounted a 5-0 lead.

Philadelphia 5, New York 4

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mike Schmidt, whose wide throw had helped New York score the tie-breaking run in the seventh inning, blasted a two-run homer in the ninth, lifting the Philadelphia Phillies to a 5-4 victory over the Mets Saturday in the National League opener for both clubs.

Schmidt's drive over the left field fence off Mets' ace reliever Tug McGraw scored Billy Grabarkewitz, who had pinch run for Tony Taylor. Taylor had opened the ninth with a pinch single, then Bob Boone sacrificed.

San Francisco 3, Houston 2

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rookie Steve Ontiveros' tie-breaking leadoff homer in the fourth inning carried the San Francisco Giants to a 3-2 National League victory over the Houston Astros Saturday.

Ontiveros, who also had knocked in the go-ahead run in the Giants' opening-day triumph over the Astros Friday, smacked Tom Griffin's first pitch in the fourth inning to left field for his homer that broke a 2-2 tie.

Mike Caldwell, making his first start for the Giants, yielded two runs in the first inning, then settled down and blanked the Astros until being relieved by Randy Moffitt in the seventh.

Cincinnati 7, Atlanta 5

CINCINNATI (AP) — Atlanta slugger Hank Aaron, on the brink of immortality, sat on the bench Saturday and watched his teammates lose a 7-5 decision to the Cincinnati Reds before a national television audience.

Consecutive solo home runs by Tony Perez and Johnny Bench enabled the Reds to break a 5-5 tie in the seventh inning.

Aaron, who tied Babe Ruth's all-time home run in Thursday's opener, was held out of the lineup by Manager Eddie Mathews in a move that may draw a rebuke from Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Los Angeles 8, San Diego 0

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jimmy Wynn homered and drove in three runs, and Tommy John scattered seven hits Saturday, helping the Los Angeles Dodgers shut out San Diego for the second straight day 8-0.

The home run was Wynn's second in two games, with a sacrifice fly giving him six runs batted in for two games for his new team.

Dave Lopes singled, doubled, walked and stole three bases — twice stealing third. He has stolen four bases in the Dodgers' first two games.

John's shutout was the 26th of his career and followed a six-hit shutout by Don Sutton, giving Dodger pitchers 18 consecutive scoreless innings to start the season.

New coach for Gremlins

Longstreth, who is completing his masters degree at Central Missouri State University in Warrensburg, has served as head coach for one year at Orrick High School, where he lead his team to a conference championship with an 8-1 record.

From 1970-72, he was an assistant at Liberty High School. He started his teaching career in the Shawnee Mission, Kan. school system.

He said he doesn't know when he will be moving to Sedalia, because, "I'm snowed under with school work right now. And I want to look for summer employment first."

"My first contact will probably be with the principal, and then I'll set up a date to meet with the team," he said. "I'll have to outline what I expect from them in the way of conditioning programs during the summer."

Longstreth is married and has one child.

Longstreth replaces Tom Beer, who coached the Gremlin's for the past four years. Beer recently accepted the head coaching post at Kansas City Lillis.

Beer's teams at Sacred Heart won 84 and lost 29, and won two Kaysinger Conference championships, 1971-72 and 72-73. His teams won 25 and lost only seven in conference play during his four-year stint.

S-C Tigers take over first place

COLUMBIA — Smith-Cotton pitcher Paul Kostopolus fanned 15 Kewpie hitters to cap a double header sweep Friday over Columbia-Hickman, which boosted the Tigers into sole possession of first place in the Central Missouri conference race.

The Sedalians won the first game behind the pitching of sophomore hurler Mark Thomason 8-4 and also won 7-3 when Kostopolus stopped the Kewpies in the nightcap.

The S-C line-up gave Thomason all the runs he needed in the first inning when they put together a five-run outburst. A three run double by Jim Vansell was the big blow in the inning.

Bengal pitching held Hickman to a meager eight hits in the two games played.

Columbia, which is the defending CMC champion, is having its difficulties at the plate this year. The usually lusty-hitting Columbia club has collected only 17 hits in 48 innings of play this season.

Smith-Cotton gains the first-place lead as a result of a double-header split between Hannibal and Jefferson City Friday. Jefferson City, which was leading the race for the bunting before Friday, dropped the first game 5-3 and then had to scramble to eke out a 2-1 decision in the second game.

The capital city's diamond squad record of three wins and one loss in conference play drops them one-half game behind the Tigers, who stand 3-0 in loop play.

Jim Sanders, S-C's senior shortstop, collected five hits in eight trips to the plate to help his team in the offensive department. Rick McRoy picked up three hits in the two games.

Mike Coleman and Mike Mallett were saddled with the losses for Columbia.

Smith-Cotton and Jefferson City will clash next Friday afternoon at Liberty Park in Sedalia in a conference double header. A sweep for either team would stregthen that team's chances for the league title.

The Tigers will meet Lee's Summit Wednesday at Liberty Park to prime themselves for the upcoming loop clash with the rival Jays.

Bennett decides on Roadrunners

By Vaughn Hart
Sports Editor

Part of Bill Barton's recruiting worries are over with the signing of Glyndon "Buggar" Bennett of LaMonte, who led the Kaysinger Conference in scoring for the past two seasons.

"This is really an honor," Barton said yesterday. "I felt like we had a pretty good chance at getting him, but a lot of other schools have been after him too. . .I'm just real pleased that he picked our place," he added.

Bennett, who scored 2,022 points in four years as a starter for the Vikings, is only 5' 8". But his size bothered LaMonte's opponents, not Bennett.

He averaged 24.9 points per game as a junior when LaMonte went 21-7. Leading LaMonte to a 17-8 record in 1973-74, Bennett scored 592 points for an average of 23.7.

He gained a starting berth the third game of his freshman year. Since then he's been a giant among the "big men" despite his 5' 8" height.

"He possesses excellent quickness," Barton, for four years the head coach of the Roadrunners at SFCC said.

"He is as good a high school passer as I've ever seen," Barton added. "He's also verry, very unselfish."

Noting his height, Barton replied to the question on whether or not he felt Bennett's size would work against him on the junior college level.

"No. . .look at players like Monty Towe at North Carolina State. . .players like Bennett who might look like they are handicapped by size are an inspiration to the "little men" in the game. Considering his quickness, determination and unselfish outlook on the game, he shouldn't have much trouble competing in college even if he is 5' 8"," Barton said. The SFCC mentor added, "He's definitely the type of player who can step in and start for us."

At least one starting guard position will be open in the Roadrunners' alignment next season with the graduation of Jack Easley, Kansas City.

Bennett is a two-time All-State choice by the Missouri Sportswriters and Sportscasters Association. He was also named by the association to the All-Central District Team as a junior and senior. He was a three-time pick on the All-Kaysinger Conference Team.

Bennett is probably best remembered for his achievements in the last three Missouri State High School Activities Association's Regional Tournaments.

He hit a short jumper with one second left in regulation in the 1972 regional championship game against Sedalia Sacred Heart in Lincoln, sending the game into overtime. Bennett went on to score all of the Viking's points in the extra period and canned a 10-foot jumper that brought LaMonte its first regional championship in 20 years.

When he was a junior, Bennett turned in an unbelievable tournament performance when he averaged 35.3 points including a 47-point outing against Montrose, which went into the semifinal match-up undefeated. In the 1973 championship game against Sacred Heart Bennett scored 40 points in a double-overtime loss.

This year, Bennett closed out his high school career with a 25-point performance against Sedalia Sacred Heart on a 67-66 loss. He played a good portion of the game with a cut on his head that required seven stitches to close after the game was completed.

In Masters

Nicklaus wears favorite's coat

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, favored as usual, faces the challenge of impatient, victory-hungry, competely unafraid youth in the 38th Masters Golf Tournament.

Nicklaus, called by many observers the greatest player the game has ever seen, will be seeking a record fifth title and another shot at the unattained Grand Slam in this annual spring rite that is generally acknowledged as one of the world's premier sports events.

Arrayed against him, however, for the Thursday start of the 72-hole tournament, is a youthful group that has dominated the pro golf tour this year.

Heading the lollypop brigade is the All-American-boy figure of Johnny Miller, the current United States Open champion, winner of four titles already this year and the probable second choice to Nicklaus as the man most likely to walk off with the famed green jacket that goes to the winner.

He's supported in the Young Bunch cast by Jerry Heard, golf's whistling man; Hubert Green, a two-time winner this season; rookie Ben Crenshaw and boyish-looking John Mahaffey, each a two-time runnerup this year and a proven winner; gritty, determined little Lanny Wadkins and possibly easy-going Leonard Thompson, winner of the rich Jackie Gleason Classic.

There are other threats, too.

There's the foreign field, smaller than usual but stronger than in most Masters. It's led by doughty little Gary Player of South Africa, who had to miss last year's Masters because of major surgery, and Australian Bruce Crampton, a $1 million winner in America, the Vardon Trophy holder from 1973, a former runnerup in the Masters, U.S. Open and PGA, but never the winner of a major title.

There's Tom Weiskopf, the tall and sometimes temperamental guy who got the tag Tom Terrific after his 1973 exploits that won him seven titles including the British and Canadian Opens.

There's Arnold Palmer, a four-time Masters winner, now 44 and graying, but still insisting he can win. Palmer is playing in his 20th Masters and is returning to perhaps his most favorite spot in search of the lost magic that once was his.

There's the familiar figure of Sam Snead, still sporting the twin trademarks—the jaunty Panama straw hat and the sweet, sweet swing—that distinguished him four decades ago. Though 61 years old, he's still very, very dangerous, as witness his second place finish in the Los Angeles Open just a couple of months ago.

One man won't be a threat. Lee Trevino sent back his invitation and will be making a television commercial.

It's the third time Trevino has declined the coveted invitation. He caused an international sensation in 1969 when he said he would never again play in the tournament because he simply couldn't play the rolling hills that make up the famed Augusta National Course.

Giant featured in wrestling

Andre the Giant, a 7-foot, 4-inch, 424-pound Frenchman, will wrestle two opponenets Wednesday at Convention Hall. The combined weight of the Japanese team of Tokyo Joe and Kabayoshi, Andre's opponents, will be 478 pounds.

Doors open at 6:45, p.m., matches start at 8:15.

Loyal Order of Moose regular meetings on second and fourth Tuesdays of each month at 8 p.m. All members are urged to attend.

Bill Noble, Sec'y.

Pokes overtake Mizzou

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP)—Dan Massari turned things around with a two-run homer and Oklahoma State added five unearned runs in the seventh inning to take a 9-6 Big Eight baseball victory over Missouri Saturday.

Massari's slam erased a 3-2 Tiger lead in the sixth and ended a personal hitless string of 16 at bats for the Cowboy leftfielder.

O-State sewed up the victory in the seventh when it scored five times with two out. A single by Rick Ollar started the rally before Gary Brandenburg reached on an error. Massari and relief pitcher David Lewis walked to force in a run.

Dan Burns then lifted a towering fly ball to right center, where Tiger center fielder Tom Ellis dropped it. The error allowed three runs to score and Burns rode home on a single by Harold Sinclair.

Ellis had given the Tigers an early lead when he cracked a two-run home run in the first. Missouri attempted a comeback when it scored three times in the eighth, but it was not enough.

Oklahoma State is now 5-1 in the Big Eight and 14-6 over-all. The Tigers dropped to 4-2 and 14-7.

Cyclones take two

AMES, Iowa (AP)—Iowa State collected its first Big Eight baseball victories of the season Saturday but the Cyclones had to go 11 innings in the second game to top Colorado.

Outfielder Mike Curran stroked a pair of run-scoring singles to lead Iowa State to a 5-2 victory in the opener. Jerry Winter went the route on seven hits to pick up the win.

In the second game, Dennis Francis was walked in the bottom of the 11th inning and advanced to third on a wild pitch by the Colorado pitcher. A bunt by Doug Wessling brought Francis in for the winning score.

Iowa State is now 7-6 over-all and 2-3 in the Big Eight while Colorado dropped to 5-11 on the season and 0-5 in the league.

They were scheduled to play a single game Sunday.

Oklahoma in first

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Oklahoma stayed atop the Big Eight baseball standings Saturday, drubbing the Nebraska Cornhuskers 8-3.

The win was the Sooners' 15th straight, upping their mark to 23-2 overall, 6-0 in the league.

Lashley struck out 10, allowed just one earned run, and limited the Huskers to only four hits.

Sophomore second-baseman Keith Drumright led Oklahoma at the plate, picking up a double and two singles in five turns. Drumright scored twice, and knocked in one run.

Mathews told to start Aaron

CINCINNATI (AP) — Atlanta Manager Eddie Mathews said Saturday night that Hank Aaron will start Sunday against Cincinnati after Commissioner Bowie Kuhn ordered the Braves to have the superstar in the lineup.

"It's the first time the Commissioner ordered me to directly start Aaron," Mathews told a packed news conference in the teams's hotel.

Mathews had withheld the 40-year-old Aaron, one homer away from setting an all-time record of 715, from Saturday's 7-5 loss to the Reds.

"He said we faced very serious consequences if we did not start him," Mathews related.

Mathews made his comments while reading a prepared statement in traveling secretary Donald Davidson's room. Atlanta General Manager Eddie Robinson was present when the Braves' skipper read the statement.

Charles takes Greensboro lead

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Lefty Bob Charles, a 38-year-old veteran from New Zealand, came from two strokes off the pace with a four-under-par 67 and grabbed the third-round lead Saturday in the $220,000 Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament.

Charles, now only a part-time performer in this country, had a 54-hole total of 202, 11 under par on the cold, windswept, 7,021-yard Sedgefield Country Club course.

The thin, dour New Zealander, a former British Open champion, held a one-stroke lead over John Mahaffey, Jim Jaimeson and rookie Joe Inman, tied at 203.

Inman, a Greensboro resident who was followed by a huge gallery of friends, relatives and former classmates at Wake Forest, bolted into contention with a brilliant, seven-underpar 64, the best round of the tournament.

Jaimeson and Mahaffey, who shared the 36-hole lead, had 70s in the gusty winds and temperatures that dipped into the 40s.

Mahaffey, who has finished second twice and third once this season, had a share of the lead until he bogeyed the 17th hole, missing the green and chipping poorly from a difficult lie.

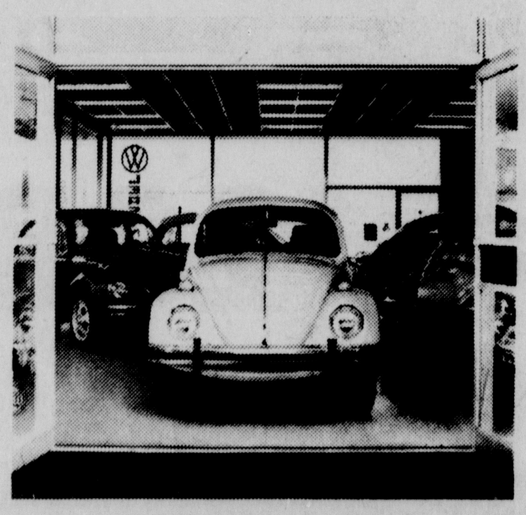
OUR PLACE IS CRAWLING WITH BUGS.



We have a full supply of every kind of Volkswagen. Beetles. Super Beetles. 412s. Buses.

Chances are, we have the exact model you want. Equipped the way you want it. If not, we'll order it. And we won't take forever to get it.

One thing you won't have to order, though, is good gas mileage. That's already built into every Volkswagen we sell. That's also why we have to keep so well stocked.

As the supply of gas gets smaller and smaller, the demand for our Volkswagen gets bigger and bigger.

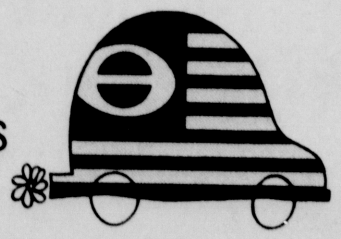
STRETCH

GASOLINE THIS SUMMER.

Smart motorists are getting the most from every gallon of gasoline. By reducing their usual speed. Avoiding jackrabbit starts and prolonged idling. Checking for proper tire pressure. Keeping their cars in tune. If every driver played it smart and saved just one gallon of gasoline each week, it would save millions of gallons of gasoline. And that's what much of this section is all about.



Compulsory inspections for cars

Test is a must

All eyes are on the "scoreboard" that flashes results of the mandatory emissions test all Chicago cars must undergo. Since introduced in June, 1973, tests have been held for tens of thousands of Chicago car owners. About two of every three get the green light and one-third the red "fail" light. The "abort" light is for a small percentage of vehicles that cannot be tested due to major engine malfunctions or unadaptability to the testing equipment.

Little children leap up and down in glee and their parnets smile when they see it. This source of pleasure for Chicago residents is a multi-colored "scoreboard" that flashes results of the recently-introduced compulsory emmissions tests in the second largest U.S. city.

The scoreboard with its green and red lights that tells motorists they "Pass" or "Fail" their emissions probes may be a showman's touch to the serious program.

But when it flashes green for a car that has just completed the test, the car owner seems to feel genuine joy and a sense of satisfaction that his or her car is not part of Chicago's air pollution problem.

The emissions inspection program was begun un Chicago in June of 1973. Since then tens of thousands of cars have been probed to see if they meet hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide limits established by the city.

To date, about two out of every three cars have been able to meet the standards. The one-third who have failed have been told the probable causes of their problems and asked to return for a retest after the necessary engine adjustments have been made.

The test itself is short and simple for the motorist. He drives to one of 18 check lanes situated in various parts of Chicago. The car is hooked up to a test equipment van, with an infra-red emissions probe inserted in the tail pipe and a lead attached to the ignition system. Information about the car is fed into a computer and emission readings are taken at two speeds — one at normal idle and a second at fast idle.

It is the computer and test machines, rather than the operator, that determines pass or fail. Since allowable limits differ for age of car nad for private or commercial vehicles, the computer instantly compares the emissions of the car being tested and what permissible levels are. Results are simultaneously printed out for the car owner and flashed on the "scoreboard for him to see.

Cars that pass are adorned with a blue and white sticker which is valid for 12 months.

Despite the fact that the emissions checks are mandatory, helpful to the environment, fairly fast and painless, the Chicago inspection program has one major problem. Not enough cars are being brought in to utilize the capacity of the check lanes.

According to program director Joe Seliber, "We try to remind motorists time is of the essence.

THIS QUIZ IS A GASSER:

What does the expression 'Mind Your P's and Q's' mean? According to some theories it was an English bartender's admonition to mind the Pints and Quarts he was dispensing. Today, the watchword is more appropriately, 'Mind your G's' or gallons.

This quiz is intended to help motorists prove how much they know about operating and maintaining a car to get the best possible gasoline mileage.

Knowing the right answers will do more than gratify your ego. It can also save you money in this time of rising prices and dwindling gasoline supply:

1. A freshly tuned engine can save you this much gas compared to one in need of tune-up.
   A. There's no measurable difference.
   B. About a gallon per tankful.
   C. Nearly two gallons per tankful.

2. Replacing worn spark plugs alone can save this much gasoline.
   A. About a half gallon per tankful.
   B. Better than a gallon per tankful.
   C. Almost three gallons per tankful.

3. Switching to a higher octane gasoline than your car requires has the following effect on fuel economy.
   A. None.
   B. It actually increases fuel consumption.
   C. It can save about 25 per cent fuel.

4. By running on underinflated tires you
   A. Burn less gasoline.
   B. Burn more gasoline.
   C. Do nothing more than provide a more comfortable ride.

5. When defective, the following adversely affects gasoline mileage.
   A. Wheel alignment.
   B. Windshield wipers.
   C. Alternator.

6. Brake problems affect gas mileage except
   A. When brakes are improperly adjusted.
   B. When you habitually ride the brake pedal.
   C. When brake lights aren't working.

7. A dirty air filter means wasted gas because:
   A. It produces an improper air-fuel mixture in the carburetor.
   B. Should dirt get into spark plugs, they can't function properly.
   C. The added weight creates "hyperstatic flux."

8. According to some sources running your car's air conditioning can cost you as much as
   A. A mile per gallon.
   B. Two miles per gallon.
   C. Three miles per gallon.

9. Only the following has no effect on gasoline mileage.
   A. Jack rabbit starts.
   B. Unnecessary use of turn signals.
   C. Prolonged periods of idling.

10. Reducing speeds from 70 to 50 miles per hour can
    A. Save over 20 per cent gas mileage.
    B. Cost you 5 per cent more gasoline.
    C. Has no effect.

ANSWERS: 1. C, according to tests conducted by Champion Spark Plug Company; 2. B, according to the same tests; 3. A. Consult your owner's manual for recommended gas; 4. B, not to mention tire wear. (Check for correct tire pressure when you get gas.); 5. A; 6. C; 7. A; 8. C; 9. B; 10. A.

Hints of safe trailoring

If you are an experienced trailer hand, you might want to turn the page. But if you're one of the growing army of motorists who's going to haul a trailer for the first time this summer, these tips from the Ontario Ministry of Transport can help make the experience a more pleasant one.

Whether you'll be pulling a sleek, 35-footer from coast to coast or hauling some furniture to the cottage in a rented two-wheeled trailer, certain driving techniques are recommended.

Starting: accelerate carefully. Take it slowly and easily.

Turning

Right Turn: Look in your right mirror. Signal, slow down. If turn is sharp, move ahead until car's front wheels are well ahead of curb ... then turn to the right.

Left Turn: Check traffic. Signal. Proceed slowly. When you make your turn, drive well into intersection in order to swing wide, to allow for the trailer.

Slowing, stopping: A sudden stop can jacknife your trailer or shift your load, so keep a greater distance than normally between you and the car ahead. Keep out of the fast lanes and maintain a speed that makes sudden stops and slow-ups unnecessary.

Passing: When towing a trailer you can't accelerate as fast as without it. Then too your car plus trailer is much longer. Before you pass, make sure there's enough time and room. When you have passed, allow more room before you move back to your lane. Don't cut in and swerve ... this can make your trailer swing and sway.

Being passed: Help other drivers pass you where necessary. If you're holding up a line of traffic, the right thing to do is signal, pull off, and let them pass.

If a large bus or transport passes you, air pressure may push the rear of your trailer to the right. Almost instantly, this pressure will push the front of your trailer. Be prepared to steer out of this situation. Accelerating a bit may help. Braking will not.

French lack maintenance

By ROBERT AHIER

In France one must take as good care of a car as of a wife, better if possible.

At least, this is what people used to say. Now Frenchwomen take very good care of themselves, thank you, and cars are becoming more and more difficult to service.

France is still far behind the United States in mass production of automobiles, highway construction, garages, parking lots and servicing. But since World War Two, the development of automobiles in this country has been startling ... from an output of 34,625 cars in 1945 to a total 3.2 million in 1973.

Even more important, a big 55 per cent of the total production is exported all over the world.

Different in France

But maintaining a French-built car is basically different from doing the same in the United States. Cars here are smaller. An American compact ranks as a large car in Europe. Construction material is lighter.

A low-cost automobile weighs from 1,500 to 2,000 pounds. Engines are small, too, with the exception of sports cars. A typical widely-sold model boasts only 60 horsepower, three to four times less than an average American car.

French-built motors turn faster to reach maximum power, and thus they are more vulnerable to breakdown. An average car rarely makes it past 60,000 miles. Often city dwellers resell their cars to country folks who are in a better position to get proper servicing.

In urban areas, garages generally devote their time to one single make of car. It is very difficult and very expensive to get servicing, spare parts and work done. Body finishing has not reached American standards and often rots or peels off.

All done by hand

Hours are spent by motorists fixing minor malfunctions with a screwdriver in hand, washing, polishing and painting, all by hand.

This kind of kid glove treatment has become impossible with mass production and the lack of space for personal repairs within big cities. This leaves drivers with a big problem: how to take care of a car without spending too much money?

There is no real answer to this question.

Each of the four French automakers has tried to give its own answer by offering a year guarantee on parts, or a mileage guarantee on parts and labor or some combination of both, in their own registered garages.

But there are hardly enough garages to go around and a one-year guarantee means relatively little to a buyer who spends at least $2,000 on a small car.

year than do Americans. Average mileage runs between 8 and 15,000 miles yearly. This means people want to keep their cars operating satisfactorily between three and five years.

Studies being made

The Common Market has now initiated wide and expensive studies to improve highway safety, pollution control and dependency of cars in the coming years. The Common Market governments are also taking measures to slow down the mass slaughter on roads and highways every weekend and during holidays.

A mandatory check-up of all cars every year or two years by a government-accredited body is also under discussion in government circles, in spite of the heavy costs involved.

A safe tip to North American drivers visiting Europe: don't take your car along with you. Rent one in Europe with as much inclusive insurance as possible, then close your eyes and go ahead ...

American inspection law has variations

It's a 95 mile drive from Benton Harbor, Mich. to Chicago, Ill. Yet in that short distance a motorist will pass through jurisdictions with three different types of vehicle inspection laws.

In Michigan, the only inspection law is a random spot test of a few safety-related items. Indiana has compulsory vehicle inspection on an annual basis. Chicago has no safety inspection law but has compulsory emissions tests.

To eliminate such confusion and help alleviate three major problems involving motor vehicles, a new group has proposed a solution. The Motor and Equipment Manufacturers Association has formed a periodic motor vehicle inspection Task Force.

According to Task Force Chairman Wayne E. Rapp of Walker Manufacturing Co., "The Task Force's objective is to help formulate and establish at the state level, with federal approval, a uniform national periodic motor vehicle inspection program which includes safety, emissions and noise inspection standards and procedures."

Only 31 states have compulsory inspection of safety items like tires, brakes and lights. Along with Chicago, New Jersey has emissions inspection laws.

According to car experts, inspection laws now in effect have value beyond contributing to vehicle safety. Inspections also make motorists more conscious of the over-all condition of their cars, including engine components affecting lower emissions and better fuel economy.

WATCH YOUR BATTERY

Hot, dry summer days are particularly hard on batteries since fluids evaporate more quickly. Be sure to check your battery often.

The Jac Pac 175 Air Adjustable Shock Absorber System puts you in control of your car's rear ride height. From your driver's seat, you dial the air pressure you want. There's no quesswork . . . no walking back and forth to the trunk to add or release air. When added height is no longer needed or desired, you simply dial the pressure down again.

A special feature of the Jac Pac 175 System is the pressure bleed-off valve located in the dash-mounted regulator. This valve helps maintain a more constant air pressure in the shocks by releasing excess pressure caused by traveling over bumpy roads.

In addition, this ride control system works equally well whether your car is moving or stationary. So you can raise or lower your car's rear ride height whenever and wherever you desire. What could be easier or more practical?

Japanese demand inspections

By EIZO IKEDA

Eizo Ikeda

Japanese passenger car ownership has increased tenfold during the past ten years. More than half of the enormously enlarged number of drivers are first time car owners, short on experience. Compared to other countries the background of the average Japanese car owner is unusual.

The older driver here, also his fellows abroad, has a deep mechanical knowledge, gained from past experience. He knows how to care for his car and keep her running in a trouble free manner.

For the inexperienced driver, car maintenance presents a problem. He has to have someone keeping his car in shape for him.

The average private car runs about 1,000 miles per month, say 11,000 miles per year. Therefore little trouble should be expected during the first two years of ownership. New cars have the advantage that if, and when, they give trouble, it is only necessary to call for the dealer's mobile service unit. So, as a piece of general advice to the mechanically innocent — "Buy a new car and have fewer problems."

There are strict regulations in force concerning the safety maintenance of cars. As a condition of registration, all vehicles in Japan must pass an inspection every two years (one year for trucks).

To pass this test, every car, even one which has been driven only 20,000 miles in 2 years must be serviced completely.

Thanks to this obligatory system, vehicles in Japan are kept in a reasonably safe state. Suspension, brakes, lighting, windshield wipers and non-standard modifications are checked for safety.

It is advisable for owners to get more frequent maintenance for their cars, such as taking them to the dealer's service facility periodically. However, if this is not possible, the driver should ask for a quick "check-through" when he stops at the gasoline station.

Service stations are capable of simple engine tuning and of course they check oil, water, tires and spark plugs.

Japan is a small country and the average driving distance is short. So the private owner is unlikely to wear his car out. Because of this, he gets by on infrequent maintenance.

There are very few enthusiasts who service their own cars. I was surprised to find how few people even washed and waxed their cars themselves. In this respect it is advisable for the car owner to learn to detect problems early and turn his car over to the experts.

There is a time when sleep is bad

"Asleep at the switch," an expression current during the days when railroads were a major means of transportation, could have a counterpart today, "Asleep at the wheel."

About 20 per cent of all automobile accidents are believed to be the result of driver sleepiness. A survey in Oklahoma indicated that 48 per cent of drivers involved in fatal accidents during the past 11 years had "fallen asleep" at the wheel.

Extended driving without rest is the chief cause — even three hours of driving without stopping can cause attention lapses of three or four seconds while driving.

Offer some answer to gas pinch

If you think the gasoline shortage is a drag, then there is something you can do to make it less of one. Make sure critical components of your car are in good condition to eliminate conditions that waste fuel.

For instance, lack of maintenance in areas such as tires, brakes, shocks, wheel alignment and transmission can affect gasoline mileage as well as safety. In some cases, these faulty components help create a "drag" on the engine, thus requiring more gasoline to keep the car running.

Underinflated tires create such a drag. So can poorly adjusted brakes, especially when the driver has a habit of "riding" the brake pedal. Gas-wasting engine drag also can result from improperly aligned wheels.

Worn shocks also can cause road wandering with resultant fuel waste.

Slipping transmission bands or low transmission fluid levels can hinder proper changing of automatic transmission gears, thereby causing fuel wastage.

Neglected, these components can cost you money in premature tire and brake wear as well as possibility of expensive transmission repairs. With the extra bonus of better fuel economy and safety, routine maintenance of these items is more important than ever.

Proper camera care a must item for all vacations

Just as you would have your car inspected before taking a vacation trip to make sure it's running smoothly, check your camera. Shoot a test roll of film before leaving. If the pictures are satisfactory, you can be reasonably sure the camera is working properly. If not, bring it to a dealer and have him check it over.

When you pack your camera for the trip, the first thing to do is "unpack" it and keep it handy for any photo scene that presents itself en route. It won't help to see just the shot you want if your camera isn't easily available.

A word of advice: film is perishable. Heat and humidity are harmful to film. In summer, don't put your camera or film in the trunk, glove compartment, or on the rear-window deck. The handiest place for your camera equipment is on the seat beside you.

While driving to your camping site, you will want to take some pictures. It is always best to stop the car, but sometimes this is not possible. If you must shoot from a moving car, shoot through the front window, the foreground of your picture will be blurry. Hold your camera as steady as possible without bracing it against the car, because vibration will blur your pictures.

Right lighting

While most amateur photographers want bright sunlight to illuminate their still shots or films, some dramatic effects can be obtained on cloudy or partly cloudy days. This is particularly true on beach shots where the white sands can cast an annoying glare when the sun is too bright.

Campers, more than other vacationers, have a love of the outdoors and a feeling for nature. Your pictures should reflect this.

The most attractive nature pictures often are those taken close-up — the flowers in bloom, the shells or unusual rocks your child finds, even the toad he brings back to camp; all are perfect subjects for close-up shots.

With extreme close-ups, it's important to measure distance accurately. An easy way to do this is with a piece of string. Whatever close-up distance your camera permits, measure this distance with a string and tie a knot at that point. Tape one end of the string to the lens mount of your camera and you're ready for perfect close-up shots. To take a picture of a flower for example, simply hold the string in front of the camera and move in until the knot touches the flower; then drop the string and shoot.

When taking pictures in a forest on a sunny day, you will find excessive lighting contrasts, from the dark shadows spawned by the trees to the bright sunlight when the sun shines through. To avoid this striped effect, scenes in the deep woods are best when taken on an overcast day or in hazy sunlight. An exposure meter will be a big help.

Bright sunlight is best for distant mountain vistas, but don't overlook dramatic storm-cloud effects. Generally, mountain scenes are improved by cross-lighting, plus a foreground object — a child looking at the scene, overhanging tree branches, a rushing stream, or colorful flowers. These will frame your picture, set it off, and create the desired depth.

Your family silhouetted against a setting sun is always a good shot to include in your picture-story. If you can look at the sunset without squinting your eyes, it can be photographed in color. In other words, with automatic cameras, wait until the sun is below the horizon or behind a cloud, and then shoot.

After you've taken your pictures and removed the film from the camera, store it in a cool place until you can take it to be processed.

Tune-up can pay for itself easily

Question: What automotive service begins paying for itself once it is performed?

Answer: An engine tune-up.

In these days of sky-rocketing gasoline prices, the money saved on gas after a tune-up is performed actually can recoup the cost of the tune-up itself. In addition, bonus benefits from a freshly tuned engine include lower emissions, better passing performance and surer starting.

According to figures issued by Champion Spark Plug Company which contain research findings on the effects of tune-up on car operation:

✓ Tests show that an 8.2 per cent improvement in gasoline economy can be achieved with a tune-up, when compared to driving a car that's traveled more than 10,000 miles since the last tune-up. Thus, nearly two gallons of gas per tankful can be saved by a newly tuned engine.

✓ Champion idle emission tests revealed a tuned engine produced 57 per cent less carbon monoxide and 48 per cent less hydrocarbons than engines in need of tune-up. Corresponding reductions also were realized at driving speeds.

✓ Champion tests showed the following increase in passing performance following an overdue tune-up. There was an average 8.6 per cent increase in engine power which would allow the car t pass another vehicle in 8.0 per cent less distance.

✓ Tuned engines showed improved starting efficiency according to Champion tests. Untuned engines experience twice as many "won't starts" as tuned engines and required an average 15.4 per cent more time to start.

What drivers can do in emergencies

If your car should break down on a busy highway, the Ontario Traffic Safety ministry suggests you take the following actions to summon help and create the least possible hazard to yourself and other motorists:

✓ Use your four-way emergency flashers.

✓ Lift up the hood of your car and tie a white handkerchief to the radio antenna or door handle.

✓ Use flares if you have them.

Better maintenance solves car problems

"May I use the car?"

This question is no longer the exclusive property of some teen-ager asking dad for permission to use the family auto. With growing shortages of fuel, restrictions of emission limits and other regulations facing the motorists, soon the whole nation might be asking, "May I use the car?"

As we enter the period of the year when car ownership and operation is most pleasureable — vacation time — the motoring public must face up to some unpleasant facts.

The energy shortage is growing more severe and pessimistic sources predict that the price of a gallon of gasoline may climb even higher in the near future.

There is talk of revoking the very privilege of driving in certain areas of the country. This is particularly so in locales with high concentrations of cars and with smog-prone climatic conditions.

It may require uncommon optimism to see the flimsiest silver lining the these black clouds but there are some positives emerging from this negative state of affairs.

One such positive is the growing realization on the part of the car owner that there is indeed a "tomorrow" as far as the supply of gasoline is concerned.

The motorist can no longer operate a car without considering the need to conserve fuel.

Therefore, he accepts the fact that he must both drive sensibly and maintain his car to get the best possible fuel economy.

An increasing number of owners are aware high speeds and erratic driving are shameful wasters of fuel.

Add to this the car owner who neglects tune-up, who fails to keep his tires inflated properly and commits other maintenance transgressions and you have as much a compelling reason for gasoline shortages as all the problems in the oil-producing world combined.

The threat to your right to operate your car has its roots in the energy crisis and air pollution problem. However, the level of pollutants from cars is on a steadily declining plateau. All cars built since 1967 have some form of emission control devices. As low emission-equipped vehicles replace older cars without such equipment, the air is getting cleaner.

And as more motorists are made aware that engine maintenance keeps emissions low, even the older cars are emitting less pollutants.

It's no exaggeration that the average citizen would be lost without his or her car. Therefore, the average Joe and Jane is looking at his car in a new way.

The car is now being regarded as something to care for, so it will run right and last longer.

This Care For Your Car Section, recognizing this new trend, is dedicated to helping you get better gas mileage, lower emissions and longer use from your car. It is further dedicated to the tens of thousands of skilled technicians in this land who'll help you keep your vehicle running right.

Value of tuning

Gasoline prices haven't soared to the point where the fuel will be a substitute for cash at the bank. And a savings account for gas is not one of the services offered by even the most innovative financial institutions. But this young motorist and her banker friend demonstrate the fact that up to two gallons of gasoline per tankful can be saved when a car's engine is tuned. Driving sensibly is another sure-fire way of helping solve the energy shortage.

Bad cooling system waste gas

No one pours gasoline in his radiator, but a car's cooling system can be responsible for reducing gasoline mileage. So can other car parts that seemingly have no connection with fuel consumption.

Since the condition of the cooling system affects engine performance, abnormalities in cooling temperatures curtail gasoline mileage. A faulty thermostat, causing an engine to run too cool, creates a condition where more gas is needed to maintain power. An over-heating engine also hampers efficient combustion of fuel.

Inside the engine, a stuck heat riser valve also wastes gas. When this valve is not operating as it should, fuel is not vaporized efficiently and excess raw gas escapes into the exhaust.

As for the exhaust system itself, if there is any obstruction in it, fuel economy suffers. The reason is the obstruction will make the engine work harder and thus use more gas.

Pollution check

Checking more than a million cars in the 37 top pollution centers is the goal of the U.S. Jaycees this year. About 2,000 Jaycee chapters will conduct emissions tests in the 37 cities identified by the Environmental Protection Agency as clean air problem communities. Program director Bernie Brand points out the same engine problems creating high emissions are the same ones that waste gasoline.

VOLKSWAGEN INTRODUCES THE PERFECT CAR FOR ITS TIME.

The new Volkswagen Dasher does everything you want a car to do, and does it on about 25 miles per gallon. That's why it's the ideal car for today.

Dasher does a powerful 0-50 in only 8.5 seconds. It holds five comfortably. It has front-wheel drive and gives you control you've never felt in any conventional car. It has the amazing Skidbreaker. When one side of the car is riding on a slippery surface, Skidbreaker forces Dasher to move in a straight line as you brake. It needs maintenance at only 10,000 mile intervals. And it's covered by the Volkswagen Owner's Security Blanket.

Nobody else is even close.

Tuning failure wastes gasoline

Untuned engines will, on average, consume more than 8 per cent more fuel than when freshly tuned. However, tests conducted by Champion Spark Plug Company show that in extreme cases badly neglected engines waste even more fuel. Some engines were so badly out of tune that they were using 20 to 35 per cent more fuel than tuned engines.

Operating a car with an ıtuned engine is like having small hole in your gasoline nk. You're wasting almost 'o gallons of fuel for every you put in the tank.

According to tests nducted by Champion ark Plug Company, a tuned gine will consume 8.2 per nt less gas than one overdue r a tune-up. (That is an gine that hasn't been tuned more than 10,000 miles.)

In simple terms, the ternal combustion engine ed in almost all cars in use day is powered by the ıition of a gasoline and air ixture.

Two basic systems, rburetion and ignition are volved.

If those systems don't work ght, then fuel is wasted.

The carburetor receives a pply of gas and air and eters it in precise amounts the combustion chamber. ere, an electrical charge pplied by the ignition stem through the spark plug nites the air-fuel mixtuture. ıis source of power is nverted into the energy that entually drives the wheels the car.

Virtually any malfunction in e carburetion and ignition stems contributes to soline wastage. If the rburetor is improperly adjusted, one of two conditions may exist. Either there is too much or too little gasoline in the fuel air mixture.

If there is too much gasoline, the excess fuel will not be converted to power but will eventually escape from the engine in a raw state. This is not only wastes the fuel but contributes to air pollution. In some cases, a too-rich carburetor setting will cause engine flooding and an even greater waste of fuel.

With a too-lean carburetor setting and with too little gasoline in the fuel-air mix, you hamper engine performance. Thus, you must step on the accelerator harder to get sufficient power to operate. So, more gasoline is wasted.

Other carburetor-related defects that waste fuel include malfunctioning automatic choke and dirty air cleaner. If the choke is stuck, you'll be getting too much gasoline in the air-fuel mixture. If the air cleaner is dirty, then the air supply will be restricted, again creating a too-rich mix. In either case, you're dumping excess raw gas into the engine.

Any defect in the ignition system is likely to create misfire and a resulting incomplete burning of the fuel. Thus raw gasoline will end up in the exhaust, both squandering fuel and creating pollution.

The role of the ignition system is to convert about 10 volts of primary current from the battery to upwards of 25,000 volts at the spark plug firing end. Any defect in this system producing less voltage is apt to create a misfire.

Common defects that can lead to misfire include worn out of fouled spark plugs, deteriorated plug cables or boots, distributor or coil malfunctions.

If any of these components aren't working right, it is possible that the electrical charge provided won't be sufficient to fire one or more spark plugs. The air-fuel mixture will not be ignited in affected cylinders. So, not only will gas be wasted in non-firing cylinders, but you need to compensate for loss of power by feeding more gas to the functioning cylinders.

Other conditions that waste gas include poorly set ignition timing. A poorly timed engine means loss of engine power so more gasoline is needed to provide power necessary to operate.

Advice is given to women drivers

Dear Dede:

I am a minister in a small town which I do not wish to identify. Along with a small salary, I am provided with a car. I receive no allowance for gasoline, oil, or regular maintenance of the car. Frankly on what I earn, I cannot afford the new tires, brake job and new shocks that the car desperately needs. I really fear for my safety every time I go out in the car which is extensively used in my calling. I do not want to appear to be ungrateful or to make is seem I am asking our congregation for more money. Do you have any suggestions?

The Parson
(Town Withheld)

Dear Parson:

From the work your car requires now and will need soon, it appears that a dent of several hundred dollars would be put in your budget. Admittedly that's a large sum of money for a minister to spare. But, don't be afraid of discussing the matter with your Church Board. I am certain they don't want their minister involved in a tragic accident. Perhaps they can make some arrangement with congregants who are in the auto repair business to maintain the car. No matter who must pay for the repairs, future high repair costs can be anticipated by using a monthly savings plan, that is putting aside a certain amount of money each month exclusively for car expenses. Some months, there will be a big surplus in the fund. Other months you'll need to tap the till. Respectfully suggest that your church set aside a modest monthly stipend of $25 or so each month to maintain their car which is on loan to you.

Dear Dede:

Can you help me win an argument with my dad? I've taken and passed driver training and am ready to get my license. But my father thinks I am not ready for a license. Not because I can't drive well (he admits that I do). But he insists I show him I know how to change a tire and "jump" start a car before he'll let me get a license. He says a young lady has no business taking a chance of being stranded with a flat tire or a car that won't start. I think he's just using this as an excuse for me not to drive his car. Can't you tell my dad he's wrong since he does read your column.

CHERYL V.
Columbia, Mo.

Dear Cheryl:

Your dad's attitude may be unique but I can't say I completely disagree with him. It's too bad that more driver training classes don't spend more time teaching about car care, and simple repairs. Changing a tire and using a booster cable properly should be easy for anyone in decent physical condition — male or female. Since you don't indicate you are anything but a normally healthy young lady, why not give it a try. Show dad you can change that tire and start a car with a cable. Good luck driving.

Lack of car care major problem facing Italians

Cars neglected

According to Italian auto expert Marcello Sabbatini, the rapid growth of car ownership in his country has been accompanied by a general and regrettable neglect of car maintenance. So, frequent breakdowns of cars on crowded highways often lead to traffic jams like these. In addition, the typical Italian car owner pays little heed to gasoline economy or pollution, Sabbatini says in his report on the habits of his countrymen in caring (or not caring) properly for their cars.

By MARCELLO SABBANTINI

Driving in Italy is more of an adventure than ever. In town, the constant traffic jams lead to neurosis. Main roads are always clogged because motorists use them in preference to the expensive toll roads. Those who use the tollways find two conditions. When they are lightly traveled, everyone drives too fast. The other extreme is being forced to go for miles at walking speeds because there is a jam at the exit or road work ahead.

Symbol of freedom

The average Italian, who used to worship the automobile as property (at least until the mid-'60s), now doesn't value his car more than he would a washing machine. The automobile is no longer the status symbol it once was.

When Fiat in the '50s gave the Italians the opportunity of mass motorization, the Italian considered the motor-car as a symbol of freedom from years of poverty. With it they were buying a status symbol. And they kept themselves informed on everything relating to a car. And they cared for their cars.

But now this interest in car care is over. The Italian driver puts oil and petrol in when they are needed, but he habitually forgets to put water in the battery until the battery is ruined. He lets the tread of the tires become worn like racing car slicks. At most, he washes his car occasionally. He forgets his anti-freeze altogether.

Push to maximum

Two of the problems that today Italian motorists absolutely don't worry about: pollution and fuel.

Also, Italians in general drive with the accelerator pushed to the maximum, not only when they go fast, but even when they go slowly. There seems to be an allergy to the correct use of gears in relation to economy in consumption.

Driving with minimum throttle is completely out of fashion; the so-called "egg on the accelerator" (advertised by a firm to promote economy in driving) would continously beome an omlet under the foot of the average Italian driver.

But to over-accelerate also means to pollute. And the idea of shutting off one's motor at least in interruptions of traffic is an idea that rarely occurs to our motorists. Everyone is afraid if he turns off his engine, his neighbor will immediatley take advantage and pass him, as in fact it happens. (Even at the cost of traveling on the emergency lane, which should be reserved for emergencies.)

But after all what do you think the pale-blue exhaust fumes are for the Italians, used to seeing smoking chimneys in the exhaust pipes of thousands of mini motor-biked in between the web of a chaotic traffic that doesn't lighten even in the season of the great fogs in the North? Or in comparison with the smoke of the pollution in industries?

SAVE GAS.

A lot of it. In nationwide fuel economy tests, motorists' cars were tested before and after a tune-up. Results showed that a tune-up with new Champion spark plugs saved, on the average, a gallon of gasoline in every tankful. Considering that 3 of every 5 cars on the road need a tune-up right now, tune-ups alone could save us millions of gallons of gasoline each week.

Tune-ups benefit us in other ways, too. Quicker acceleration for safer passing. Dependable starts. Plus a substantial reduction in emissions.

See your mechanic regularly for a Champion tune-up. Once a year or every 10,000 miles.

Untuned motors spell certain trouble

By RUSSELL E. TRAIN

Protection Agency

Automobiles are an important part of the American way of life. Since the 1920's, while the population of the United States doubled, the number of automobiles has increases 800 per cent.

Today we have nearly 100 million registered automobiles in this country, virtually one for every two persons. And three out of every four Americans are licensed to drive those automobiles.

Our entire way of life has been restructured, especially since the end of World War II, to accommodate the tremendous increase in the number of automobiles and the mobility which they afford. We have built our lives around the automobile and are now almost totally dependent upon some form of personal transportation.

Relying on the automobile's capabilities most of us have situated ourselves beyond practical walking or cycling distances of relatives, friends, jobs, stores, churches, medical and recreational facilities, libraries and theaters. And on top of this, in most areas public transit today is either inadequate or nonexistent.

Major pollutants

As a result the automobile has become the single most important souce of three major air pollutants.

It is estimated that in 1971, on a nationwide basis, gasoline powered motor vehicles contributed 43 per cent of the hydrocarbons, 62 per cent of the carbon monoxide, and 31 per cent of the nitrogen oxide emitted into the air.

In many cities, however, these motor vehicles contributed far more than the national averages — reaching the 90 per cent range in some cities.

The Clean Air Act of 1970 requires the automobile industry to reduce these emissions by at least 90 per cent by 1976, as compared with 1970 or 1971 emission levels

Even with these major reductions, the Environmental Protection Agency had determined that more than 35 metropolitan areas in the United States, having a combined population of 88 million, would not be able to meet the health-related air quality standards of the Clean Air Act by the law's 1975 deadline unless stricter controls were imposed on pollution sources.

Half reach goal

About one-half of these cities can reach their goals by beigh tougher on stationary souces, primarily industrial and commercial facilities, and through transit improvements, parking restrictions and automotive inspection and maintenance programs.

Proper engine maintenance, enforced by sound inspection programs, is an important part of every community's effort to reduce and control air pollution. The amount of pollution reduction through inspection and maintenance programs varies among cities because nearly every city has to cope with circumstances somewhat different from the others.

Portland acts

Portland, Ore. anticipates a 12 per cent reduction in pollutants through its inspection and maintenance program; Denver and Sacramento look for about a 7 per cent reduction and Boston about 3 per cent.

Annual emissions inspection in State-operated facilities will cost an estimated $2 per vehicle. Annual maintenance costs are expected to be in the $20 to $30 range for vehicles which fail the inspection test. Most of this maintenance is routine work which would normally have been performed voluntarily by prudent motorists.

In addition to the pollution-control benefits, the Department of Interior estimates that an auto tuneup every six months will cut American oil consumption by 140,000 barrels a day.

A properly tuned car may seem like a small way to cope with today's polution and energy problems. And yet such an ordinary procedure may well be crucial in many situations. Of all the transportation control strategies devised to reduce air pollution, the one which causes the most public concern — is the "Reduction of Vehicle Miles Traveled".

Means "drive less"

In plain language, that means taking steps to insure that people drive less. New York, Los Angeles, Baltimore and Washington, D.C., have included such measures in their plans. Obviously, the more pollution can be controlled through other measures, the less need there will be for more stringent controls.

Handy book

Just about everything you'd want to know about caring for a car is contained in the Automotive Information Council's "Handbook for Automobile Maintenance." The booklet explains how various systems work, how to spot potential trouble and how to maintain various components. Copies may be ordered for 25 cents from AIC Handbook, P.O. British common denominator: cars

By DOUG MITCHELL

Any dry Saturday or Sunday in the residential streets of British towns you will see them. Legs sticking out from under a time expired heap, a torso bent over an engine compartment, or maybe a young couple adding a final gleam to shining bodywork.

The typical British motorist is tending his pride and joy. Old or young, they all have one thing in common — they love their cars.

And in many ways they are right to do so. A car, any car, given the attention it needs will respond like a healthy dog and run well. Neglected, it will become dull and lifeless.

We are very economy minded in Britain, and especially boast about the number of miles we can squeez from each gallon of fuel, and economy begins with a well tuned angine.

Probably the most important thing in tuning is to make sure that the ignition system is working properly. Some people will leave things to themselves until, one day, the engine refuses to start, but long before that happens fuel is being wasted by not being fully burned.

Plug check advised

Spark plugs are supposed to have a working life of around 10,000 miles but it is quite possible that they will be "off-song" well before that.

An electronic engine diagnosis is not expensive and if carried out every 5,000 miles, any weak spots can be located and rectified before they develop. Contact breaker points in the distributor are usually changed at 5,000 mile intervals but I prefer to change mine every 3,000. They cost little and the benefits are sure starting and better combustion.

A simple thing which will cause an over-rich carburetor mixture and, therefore, high fuel consumption, is a dirty air cleaner. This will restrict the air intake so that excessive fuel is drawn into the combustion chambers and, in addition to high consumption, performance will be down and engine wear up due to dilution of the sump oil.

An engine which reaches its full running temperature quickly is better all round. To encourage this, I recommend fitting an adjustable radiator blind, especially for winter driving. If you do, I also recommend fitting a temperature gauge if you haven't one already to avoid over-cooking it!

Right tire pressure

Another very simple maintenance job which repays handsomely is keeping the right tire pressures. If they are too high or too low the treads will wear more rapidly and, believe it or not, the extra drag from soft tires will increase fuel consumption.

But without doubt, the biggest factor in keeping down gas bills is your right foot. It has been proved over many Economy Events that light acceleration coupled with good traffic anticipation will result in savings of 25 per cent and more. So treat the gas pedal as if it had an egg on it!

One thing you must do — or have done — regularly is an engine oil change. The usual interval is 6,000 miles, but if a car is used mainly for short runs about town, I would halve that period.

On short trips the engine never really gets warmed up, and by-products of combustion collect in the sump instead of being boiled away through the exhaust. Acids form and nibble away at the vitals severely reducing engine life.

Qualified man

Obviously Doug Mitchell, editor of Popular Motoring, is uniquely fitted to write for his considerable readership of British car owners who like to service and repair their own cars, because he practices what he preaches. But he does not hesitate to recommend the services of professionals when maintenance problems require facilities and skills beyond the reach or capacity of the do-it-yourselfer.

Study finds growing belief devil is real

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The scientific elite were somewhat taken aback on being informed that amid all the modern technological advances, a new, national study shows people are believing more and more in the active reality of the devil.

When told of it, participants in a recent meeting in San Francisco of the American Association for the Advancement of Science "were absolutely shocked," says Clyde Z. Nunn, a social researcher who reported the findings to them.

He said the fact that Americans are increasingly convinced of the devil's existence runs counter to the scientific community's general assumption of "progressively increasing rationalism as an automatic evolutionary process."

Most scientists "want to believe that society has become so rationalized that it has moved out of the nonrational world," he said. But he added that the newly gathered data reveal an opposite trend at work.

The new study, made by the Center for Policy Research here, found that in nine years the number of people believing in the certainty of the devil has risen from 37 to 48 per cent of the population, with another 20 per cent considering his existence probable.

Altogether, 68 per cent is either sure about it or thinks it likely.

Nunn, the center's senior research associate, linked the upsurge in such belief to "times of great stress, when things seem to be falling apart, when there is great uncertainty in society and limited resources to cope with it."

"It's apparently an attempt to make sense of a world of ambiguities and to explain the evil in it," he said in an interview. He said it also made for an atmosphere vulnerable to demagogic promises to hunt out the devil's instruments.

It has the potentiality of "some new round of witch hunting," said Nunn, a University of Nebraska sociology professor before joining the center, which aims to search out trends so social policy can be shaped to deal with them.

The new study, involving a scientifically selected cross section of 3,546 people, was made last spring. Consequently, the results don't reflect the recent movie-stirred interest in demonology but derive from other conditions.

Nunn said the study, by using identicially phrased questions as a parallel survey in 1964, provides the first comparative measurement of shifts in intensity of beliefs about the supernatural.

While the major change was the sharp 11 per cent upturn in those considering the devil's existence "completely true," the 68 per cent total either certain or partly so also rose by 3 per cent.

In regard to God, however, absolute certainty about His existence dropped 8 per cent, from 77 to 69 per cent, although another 25 per cent believed in God with some reservations. Only 6 per cent registered no belief, but the disbelief was 3 per cent higher than before.

"Whatever advantage God has had over the devil in the polls of the past, the devil now appears to be getting his due," said Nunn, a Kentuckian who has a master's degree in religion from the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville and a doctorate in sociology from the University of North Carolina.

He said the rising certainty of the devil's activity — along with the slight drop in certainty about God — suggests people have difficulty seeing any good purpose or reason in events and consider the balance of "good versus evil to be tipped in the direction of evil."

The study also brought out that those convinced of the devil's reality are much more likely than others to feel that threatening forces are at work in modern life, and that things are likely to get worse.

They also are less tolerant of nonconformity, less concerned with civil rights and more likely to "express authoritarian dependency" on leaders.

Nunn said these attitudes are most susceptible to some rising demagogue promising to drive out the devil's agents, "get us back to fundamentals, and set things straight."

Car's best tires should be in the back

When a person buys a new dishwasher, he's going to put it where he needs it most — in the kitchen. Safety experts say the same rule applies when buying new tires. Unless the car has front-wheel drive, tires should go where they're needed most — on the rear wheels.

"When selecting a pair of replacement tires in the same size and construction as already on the car, they should be put on the rear wheels for better traction and handling," says Ross R. Ormsby, Chairman of the Tire Industry Safety Council.

Many experts feel motorists who develop tire problems on the front axle, because of skidding or disablement, still have a certain degree of control over the vehicle with the steering wheel. However, when the problem occurs on the rear wheels most drivers have no way to compensate for skids or swerves before the vehicle can be stopped.

Tire safety experts from the National Bureau of Standards Office of Vehicle Systems Research Institute for Applied Technology surveyed independent studies conducted throughout the country and involving thousands of passenger cars. Their findings appear to agree with the Council's recommendations.

There is strong evidence that a significant number of car owners place least worn tires on the front wheels, whereas available accident experience indicates the least worn tires should be placed on the rear.

"Bald tires on the rear appear to be more of a safety hazard than on the front, a finding at variance with automotive folklore. And bald tires on wet pavement make a particularly hazardous combination.

"Vehicles in accidents have a larger number of severely worn tires on the rear than on the front, suggesting that it is safer to put newer or less worn tires on the rear."

Pre-vacation car check is essential

No one would think of mailing a valuable package without making sure it was wrapped carefully and completely protected. Yet if statistics are correct, most people aren't as careful when sending their most precious possession on a long journey.

If that invaluable cargo is a family and the carelessly prepared container is a car, then odds are almost even that there is at least one serious defect in that vehicle. The odds are based on reports from official vehicle inspection agencies showing approximately one out of every two cars cannot pass simple safety checks.

To help make certain you and your loved ones have a safe and breakdown-free trip, here's a list of items to check with your favorite service outlet before you depart.

Brakes, tires, and wheels: Have brake linings inspected, check fluid levels and seals and adjust brakes. Check tires for excessive wear or visible signs of damage. If needed, rotate the tires. Also, check wheel alignment and balance and make sure your shock absorbers are not worn out or damaged.

Vision: Check windshield wipers, headlights, turn signals, back-up and brake lights to make sure they are in good condition. Make sure washer reservoirs are filled and that all glass and mirrors are clean.

Cooling System: Clean out and flush the cooling system and refill with new coolant, and rust inhibitor if needed. Check the thermostat, fan belt and water pump. Inspect all belts and hoses and condition of the radiator cap.

Lubrication: If needed, change the oil and oil filter. As part of an overall chassis lubrication, check transmission and differential fluids, front wheel bearings, locks and hinges.

Tune-up: If it has been more than 10,000 miles since your last tune-up check compression, coil output, charging rate of generator or alternator, install new spark plugs, inspect plug wires and boots, service and replace distributor components, service carburetor, check emission system and replace air cleaner. Also check battery and cables, cranking, starting and operating voltages and electrical wiring.

Race driver offers mileage hints

By JERRY GRANT
Champion Spark Plug Co.
Highway Safety Team

Offers hints

Jerry Grant, noted race driver and a member of the Champion Spark Plug Co. Highway Safety Team, has gas economy on his mind. USAC, the official sanctioning body of Indy-type racing, has cut fuel allowances per race by some 30 per cent. So Grant and his fellow drivers will be practicing some of the same fuel savings procedures recommended for all motorists in this time of the gasoline pinch.

Maybe you believe that a professional race driver giving tips on saving gasoline is like a vegetarian offering advice on how to barbeque a steak. I don't know about the vegetarian and the steak. I do know that saving fuel is becoming a vital consideration to those of us who race at the Indianapolis '500' and other tracks around the country.

Since the United States Auto Club, sanctioning body of Indianapolis-type racing, recently reduced the fuel allotment per race car, the driver must be more fuel-conscious than ever. Getting that little extra mileage from a tank of racing fuel can mean the difference between winning a race or being an also-ran.

Since it is my business to know all I can about all kinds of driving, I can pass these fuel saving tips on to you with confidence.

1. Any car I drive, be it at Indy or my own private car, is in best possible shape. I don't waste a drop of fuel because my engine isn't tuned, my tires aren't properly inflated, my brakes are faulty or any other part of my car isn't functioning the way it should.

The average motorist can't say the same. If he has neglected maintenance he is wasting costly and scarce fuel.

2. Driving fast is the name of my game and I have the skill to do it safely. But I don't drive any faster than absolutely necessary to win. And that's part of the secret of driving with gas economy in mind.

Reducing your highway speed from 70 miles per hour to 50 can save you more than 20 per cent in fuel. With gasoline prices the way they are, you're saving almost four gallons or $2 or more per tankful by cutting speed.

3. If you've ever ridden with a professional race driver, you know that he is an extremely smooth driver, both on and off the track.

He doesn't indulge in gas-wasting, jack-rabbit starts. He keeps a steady foot on the gas pedal, doesn't pass erratically or lane hop.

All these maneuvers consume fuel unnecessarily.

4. The successful race driver always anticipates traffic patterns. If you do the same on the road, you'll save gas. Try to "play" traffic lights and don't tailgate to avoid sudden stops and starts.

5. None of you is apt to experience the pit stop where your tank is filled and tires changed in 20 seconds. But avoid, if you can, long periods of idling, either at a service station or any other place.

If you have to wait in your car for more than a few moments, turn off the engine. This holds true at a railroad crossing while waiting for a train or at a market waiting for someone to come out of the store.

As a race driver who needs every competitive advantage I can get to win and as a motorist who loves driving, I am truly concerned with the fuel situation. You can bet I'll be watching my gas gauge more carefully this year and I urge you to do the same.

Spark plugs should be serviced every 5,000 miles and changed every 10,000.

Woman driving alone is faced by many perils

The Ten Commandments were made for everyone, but the Lone Woman Driver must have a set of her own. Here is her Decalogue:

I

Thou shall not pick up hitchhikers: Being a "lady Samaritan" can be extremely risky when you're on the road alone. That innocent looking boy with the sweet face may be a Baby-Face Nelson in disguise.

II

Thou shall not give stranded motorists a lift: When you're driving along the highway and see an anxious motorist standing in front of his raised hood, keep right on driving. Instead of giving someone a lift yourself, go to the nearest service station and report the situation.

III

Thou shall be sure to carry spare change: Asking for handouts may work for a panhandler, but in times of emergency a few spare coins are a necessity. That pay phone won't work on love, and that dime might just be needed to call the police.

IV

Thou shall always lock the doors when driving alone: An unlocked door or window is an open invitation for intruders. Your side vent will provide enough fresh air. A locked door is not only a security measure, but in case of collision it'll prevent you from flying out the door.

V

Thou shall not enter an unlit parking lot alone: Having a personal bodyguard is not always feasible, but try to have someone accompany you to your car at night. A lone female walking through a deserted parking lot is a temptation few muggers can resist.

VI

Thou shall always drive defensively: Placing the blame on "the other guy" won't help you much if you're in the hospital. Always watch for the unexpected.

VII

Thou shall always keep the car up to snuff: Avoiding a problem is easier than remedying one. And listen to your "woman's intuition." If you think something is amiss, stop in at a service facility and have it checked.

VIII

Thou shall not let the gas tank go below half full: With the increased fuel shortage, many service stations are operating on reduced hours. It may be difficult to find an open station when your fuel needle nudges empty.

IX

Thou shall learn the mechanical basics of a car Your owner's manual wasn' meant to line your glove compartment; it was meant to be read. Try to acquaint yourself with this reference.

X

Thou shall be prepared for disabling situations: The basic ingredients for a well-stocked car include: a jack and spare tire, signal flare or lamps, flashlight, city and state road maps, first aid kit, ice scraper and snow shovel.

Precautions

When there's no Boy Scout around to help, always be prepared. Having a safe, properly maintained car and good driving habits are important to all motorists, but the lone woman driver must use an extra measure of caution when she drives. Driving the children to school every day is just one of the times when the lone woman driver must be prepared for every situation.

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR MIKE DOUGLAS, talk-show host*

Which of your many co-hosts has received the biggest reaction from the audience?—Mrs. M. Moore, Colorado Springs, Colo.

● The audience went wild when Burt Reynolds did a week with us in Miami Beach. Everybody wanted to meet him, and the girls wanted to kiss him (several got an opportunity to). Any nonbeliever must have come away impressed with what a great sport he is. As for a female guest, in 1962, despite the protests of some executives who said, "Who is this kook you've booked for a week?" a very young singer co-hosted and cast such a spell on the audience that they looked like an oil painting. Her name: Barbra Streisand. Finally, in a class by himself, is seven-year-old Mason Reese, who co-hosted two weeks and produced the biggest response in the history of the show.

FOR SALLY STRUTHERS

You're single. Which do you like better, living alone or with a roommate?—F. Lee, San Francisco, Calif.

● Alone. I've had my share of living with other girls. I think I have only one real friend, Roberta, and that's probably because I never roomed with her. I've lived with six or seven girls in the last seven years, and it always ended up miserably. I am obsessed with cleanliness. I don't mind picking up after a man—he has a right not to be tidy—but I hate picking up after a girl!

FOR SHELLEY FABARES of "The Brian Keith Show"*

Your series is shot in Hawaii and so is "Hawaii Five-O." Do all of you actors get together in the evenings and socialize a lot?—Chris Renworth, Schenectady, N.Y.

● No, not at all. To start with, I've never even met Jack Lord, who lives in a condominium next to my hotel. And Brian Keith, with whom I work every day, is a very private person—as I am. I'm happy just taking long walks on the beach myself and reading.

FOR FLORENCE HENDERSON of "The Brady Bunch"*

On "The Brady Bunch," you have six children. How do you feel about those who seek to limit a couple's children to one or two?—S. Allen, Manhattan Beach, Calif.

● I am the youngest of ten children. If someone had dictated to my parents, I wouldn't be here! I think the problem is one of education, since it is often those who can least afford children—mentally, physically or financially—who keep having unwanted babies. I feel there are answers other than mandatory restrictions.

FOR BYRON NELSON, golfer*

In what year did you win the most money as a player, and how much was it?—T. F. Lawson, Durham, N.C.

● In 1945, I won 18 of the 30 tournaments I played in and finished among the first 10 in all 30 tournaments. For this I won $52,311. At the end of the tour, a newspaper sports section headlined the news and said, "No man will ever win so much in golf in one year again." [Editor's note: In 1973, top-money-winner Jack Nicklaus won $308,362.]

FOR JIM ARNESS, star of "Gunsmoke"*

In a saloon fight scene, what is used in place of the glass that men are usually thrown through?—Bobby Gray, Boise, Idaho

● The glass used in fight scenes is made of glucose, a sugar compound similar to candy. It also is used for the bottles that are broken during a fight. The glucose is molded into the proper shape and must be kept away from heat and protected from the studio lights, which can melt it.

FOR JOHNNY WEISSMULLER, former movie "Tarzan"*

How did you get started as Tarzan? And what are you doing now?—Leonard Foltz, Scio, Ore.

● Cyril Hume, the famous screenwriter, discovered me at the Hollywood Athletic Club on Sunset Boulevard. I did the films because I liked the idea of becoming a movie star. Nowadays I live in Las Vegas. I represent Caesar's Palace as an ambassador of goodwill, host and greeter. I intend to spend the rest of my life helping handicapped children through the Joseph P. Kennedy Foundation and the International Swimming Hall of Fame.

FOR ANN SOTHERN

● Yes—if she wants to, particularly in show business, where a person's body is his business. Speaking for myself, I am constantly amazed at the animosity people display when they see me. I've been in show business since I was 16, so naturally I've changed! Other people have changed, too, but they seem to think I shouldn't, and they get really mad because I have!

FOR JULIA CHILD, the "French Chef"*

Do you always cook from scratch, or do you sometimes use convenience foods?—Mrs. Margaret Lewis, Dubuque, Iowa

● I prefer cooking from scratch, but that isn't always possible. Among prepared foods, I use lots of canned beef and chicken bouillon, Italian plum tomatoes and canned corn. And I love corned beef hash, fixed up with some chopped scallions and herbs, and topped with a fried egg!

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

Don Stewart

● If you value your life, never ask that question of a daytime perfomer. That's like waving a red rag at a bull. Soap-opera stars are thoroughly seasoned actors and actresses who, on the average, probably make more money than nighttime performers. One actor, Don Stewart—who has starred on "The Guiding Light" serial for the past five years—was so enraged at one newspaperman's assertion that daytime actors aren't up to par that he actually challenged—via an ad in a trade periodical—any actor to an "acting contest," with three peers as judges. Naturally, no one accepted Stewart's challenge.

What Makes Men Appealing to Women?

With 18 Selected "Types" Woman-Rated

By Max Gunther

What attracts a woman to a man? Obviously that depends on the woman. Any given man might excite one woman, bore another, repel still a third.

But suppose we talk about averages. What attracts most women most strongly? If a man wants to make himself appealing, can he improve his statistical odds by emulating the dark, brooding sensuality of a Marlon Brando? Or the roguish quality of a Steve McQueen? Or the no-nonsense pragmatism of an Archie Bunker?

I've spent the last year asking questions like these partly because I'm writing a book about virility and partly because—well, because I'm a man, and every man wonders what women think about men. Central to the research has been an analytical poll of 100 women. In one part of the poll, the women were asked to grade 18 prominent men in terms of sex appeal. The average grades scored by those 18 are shown in the table.

The women were asked to grade each man from A (highly attractive) to D (a dud) in terms of sex appeal. One additional grade was possible. If a woman found a man actually repulsive, she was invited to grade him R.

What's important to remember here is that even a C is a positive grade. It means the man is at least something more than a dud.

Every man on the list except one – Steve McQueen – got whacked with at least a couple of R's, and without exception every man received some D's. Even popular Burt Reynolds got his share. Despite his high total of A's, the low grades were enough to bring his average down to a B.

Conversely, every man won at least a handful of B's, and every man in the film and sports group won some A's. Even poor old Leonid Brezhnev got one A and two B's. In his own country Brezhnev is considered a pretty sexy fellow, but American women apparently don't go for his dark, jowly type. Still, at least one woman in America thinks he's great.

Now 18 men are not a very broad cross section. But these 18 men were chosen because, for one thing, all of them are almost universally known in America. Each has a name that instantly conjures up a face, a personal impact of some kind.

Other men might have been included. Mick Jagger, for ex-

The McQueen Woman

Steve McQueen is the only man of the 18 who received no R ratings. He won 30 A's—just a notch under Reynolds' total. But he also got one of the highest totals of C ratings, and this pulled his average down.

Boyish, puckish McQueen has a "neutral" quality—an absence of threatening traits – which may be what attracts some women to him. The composite McQueen admirer's poll answers indicate that she is somewhat disillusioned about men. Questioned about this, one three-time divorcée said, "Yes, Steve McQueen is a big, overgrown boy with a wrinkled face. He reminds me of the boys I liked in high school, before I found out what men are really like."

The Wayne Woman

In contrast to Brando and Namath, old John Wayne received very few extreme grades. He got more B's than anybody: 41. Wayne is a big, craggy, silent type of man. Evidently women find this type neither unusually threatening nor attractive.

Five women awarded Wayne an A. Let's draw a composite picture of the kind of woman who is strongly attracted to Wayne. She can be any age. She isn't sexually aggressive. When she sees an attractive stranger, her eye is drawn to his body build and the way he walks, not to his face. She doesn't like men with beards, moustaches or hair on their chests. She particularly likes men who are admired by other men. Thinking back over the men who have been prominent in her life, she finds them a grand group. Men have treated her well.

The Reynolds Woman

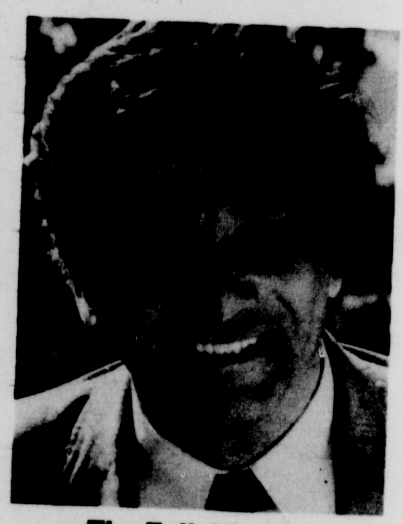
The Reynolds woman has been somewhat less content with the men in her life than the Wayne woman. She would like the social liberty to initiate courtships. The first thing that attracts her to a stranger is his face, but she also finds men's hands attractive. She prefers gentleness in a man but tolerates roughness and aggressiveness. She is drawn to men with beards and moustaches but insists they be well groomed. She particularly likes men who are successful in their jobs or careers.



The Falk Woman

Women who like Falk also tend to like David Carradine. According to the survey, the Falk-Carradine woman likes gentleness in a man and abhors roughness. She isn't greatly interested in how a man is groomed. She is attracted to wit and intelligence, and she likes a man to have an air of mystery about him. She has been very happy with the men in her life.

By Suzanne Schulz — as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

It all started when I was a kid. I was really rebellious, and my attitude showed up, especially at meal times. My mom had always been very strict with my brother and me about overeating. But her strong will just made me more stubborn. If she said I couldn't have a candy bar or an ice cream cup, I'd sneak it until my secret turned up on the scales.

Then, there was the time I got a job in the school cafeteria. The only reason I took it was to get free goodies — all I could eat. It was compensation for low pay. At first, Mom couldn't understand why I was gaining so much weight; then she learned the truth and made me quit. But the damage was done. At four feet eleven, my first bra was a size 36B, topped with a 14 dress. And from then on, things got bigger and bigger, including my appetite.

At 245 pounds, I not only stood behind my daughter, but in back of the sofa as well.

Even after I married and my lifestyle changed, my eating habits didn't. I thought, "Mom can't stop me now since I'm completely on my own. So I'll eat anything I want." And I stuffed myself until it was almost tragic.

During my first pregnancy, my doctor was so concerned about my weight that he hospitalized me for a whole month before the baby's birth. Then he restricted me to only 500 calories a day — or, at least that's what he thought.

But secretly, I had my husband smuggle food into my room. Double tuna fish sandwiches, pickles, salty snacks, cake, candy and as many other sweet and sour calories as I could think of. I'll tell you, it was lucky I survived. But I did, and after my second child, I grew even heavier.

I knew I had to lose weight, but when I tried reducing pills, my nerves took over. I didn't eat, but I didn't sleep either. I had so much energy, I cleaned the house from top to bottom. Then I needed tranquilizers to slow me down and later pills to pep me up. And in between them all, I'd take water pills to help me lose extra weight. It was crazy.

Finally, in desperation, I turned to Mom. She'd always been the sensible one about her figure and her food and I decided that she might have some good advice. Well, Mom suggested I try the Ayds® plan. She'd been reading an "article" which said that Ayds Reducing Plan Candy contained vitamins and minerals, but no drugs, so she thought the plan would be just what I needed.

Frankly, I doubted it. But in the end, I went to the drug store where I saw a big display of Ayds along with a picture of a happy loser in a bikini. And I thought if she can do it, so can I. So I bought a box of the chocolate fudge Ayds and started on the plan the next day.

I took one or two Ayds like I was supposed to — with a hot drink — and they actually helped curb my appetite. Without making me nervous, too. And the way Ayds took care of my craving for sweets, I didn't even have a problem giving up cream and sugar in my coffee. Me, who was once a "three cuber"!

I also cut down on salty foods, so I got rid of a lot of body water without depending on pills.

I'll tell you, for the first time in my life, I ate sensibly, without feeling deprived. I enjoyed salads and seafood and broiled meats. And I didn't even think much about desserts! But, more important, I felt good inside because I knew there was nothing bad in Ayds to upset me. The plan was really a wholesome, natural one and it couldn't have been more right for me.

The weight sure came off, too, and as my figure got better, my closet got fuller with new clothes. I really don't know who had more fun — my husband admiring or me buying.

But one thing I'm certain of — the Ayds plan is a natural way to lose weight. I took off 119 pounds on it, which I never could have done the un-natural way — with reducing pills.

What Makes Men Appealing to Women?

Continued

ample. I didn't include him because I found he didn't mean a great deal to women over 35—and some women had never heard of him at all.

Paul Newman was left off, too. The object was to create a list of diverse types. Newman's masculine impact seemed to be too close to that of Burt Reynolds and Steve McQueen—so he was dropped from the list. I left Robert Redford off for the same reason.

So these were the 18 men I used—and the most popular one turned out to be Burt Reynolds. But the grades represented only the raw-averages, and some intriguing phenomena remained hidden behind the averages. Let's poke around back there and see what comes to light.

Even the least popular men won some high grades, and even the most popular were smacked down with some low ones. No matter what the majority of women thought, there were always dissenters.

Pictorial Parade

Carradine

Age and Youth

Oddly, a woman's age didn't seem to affect the way she voted. It might be expected that 67-year-old John Wayne, for example, would win more A's from older women than from younger ones. This wasn't the case. Age was a significant factor for only one man: David Carradine of "Kung Fu." He received all his A's from women under 35 (although Carradine is 37) and all his D's and R's from women over 40.

The 100 women were a highly diverse lot. They ranged in age from 20 to 64, geographically from Connecticut to California and educationally from high school through graduate school. Among them were married women and single, suburbanites and city dwellers, housewives and professional women and wage-slaves. Not one of these differences had any really significant influence on the women's feelings about men.

Pictorial Parade

Brando Namath

The Loved and the Hated

Marlon Brando and Joe Namath received the highest totals of what might be called "extreme" grades—A's and R's. Namath got 23 A's and 19 R's, for a huge total of 42 extremes out of a possible 100. Brando got 23 A's and 12 R's, for a total of 35.

Apparently women aren't bored by these two men, who might be said to represent the aggressively sexy type. One way or the other, women react to the type violently.

In another part of the poll, women were asked whether they would like the social liberty to make passes at strange men. Women who said "yes"—the more aggressive women, presumably—tended to give Brando and Namath low grades. Women who said "no" gave the two men high grades. Inexplicably, the 17 women who said "don't know" liked Brando a lot more than Namath.

The Political Woman

One woman scribbled on her questionnaire, "I'm sorry, I can't separate sex appeal from politics." She graded President Nixon and Henry Kissinger R. Another woman wrote, "The way a man thinks is part of his whole personality."

There seems to be a lesson here for any man who wants to attract a woman: Until you know what her political beliefs are, keep your mouth shut.

Report Card on the American Male

What are we to make of all this?

The most notable general impression that emerged from the poll was that American women, on the whole, think American men are fine fellows. Despite all the nasty things that have been said about us in recent years—that we're conceited, chauvinistic, inept as lovers, and so on—these 100 women gave us much higher grades than most men might have expected.

One question asked: "When you think back over all the men who have been prominent in your personal life, which word or phrase below most nearly describes your general feelings about them?" The women were then given eight descriptions to choose from. Here are the eight, along with the numbers of women who checked each:

Super group—24
Very likable—30
Likable on the whole—31
Ho-hum—7
Bearable—4
Nasty but essential—4
Bad bunch—1

The numbers add to 104 because six women checked more than one answer, while two abstained. Women who checked more than one answer were evidently dividing their male acquaintances into categories.

The one woman who characterized her galaxy of males as a "bad bunch" was a radical feminist. Interviewed later, she said she had never met a man she liked over a sustained period of time. She included her father in this unflattering assessment.

But the great majority of women have apparently had happier experiences with men. Unless the poll sample was a group of freakishly contented women, unrepresentative of their sisterhood, we must conclude that American men don't do everything wrong all the time.

If A, B and C find out different personal details about you, and then all three combine their discoveries, they can really know a lot about your private life.

They can know your weight, height, color, personal successes and failures, income, debts, mental health, character strengths and weaknesses, family background. And on and on. You can be flattered by this—or embarrassed.

It's not dream stuff. Already, some people are gathering information on others from public records, personnel files, credit interviews, news clippings and elsewhere. They have computers to store the information and put it together at the flick of a switch.

Frightening? You bet it is! But what's to stop this invasion of privacy once the nation's sense of right and wrong disappears? Before that happens, find out what's going on. Then speak up, loud and clear!

The New Computer Crooks:

The Intricate Schemes That Net Millions

These crooks may not have made the FBI's "Most Wanted" list—but they've certainly made IBM's!

One morning not long ago, an unidentified man walked into a Washington, D.C., bank, deftly pocketed deposit slips at the writing counters and replaced them with his own electronically coded forms. In the next three days customers who came in without a personal deposit slip used those "blank" forms. Through a computer, their deposits went into the invisible bank robber's account. On the fourth day he withdrew over $100,000, vanished, and still hasn't been caught.

That elegant caper is but one of a mounting number of computer-assisted crimes involving uncounted millions of dollars in cash, goods and services. In this latest sophisticated crime wave, most of the victimized banks, corporations and computer companies don't report their losses because they're reluctant to encourage more. Yet in a study for the National Science Foundation, the Stanford Research Institute has collected a file of at least 150 known major computer "abuses" in the past three years, averaging about $1 million per crime.

"Business has probably never been so vulnerable to theft," warns Donn B. Parker, a Stanford senior computer specialist.

What can the wizards of the electronic underworld steal through computers? Besides embezzlement of cash—the most common loot—they have purloined trade secrets and computer programs (software) for resale. Some obtain accounts and mailing lists for a firm's competitors. Others have utilized the Brain to disguise their own fraudulent practices.

Hidden among the 2,230,000 people working with the nation's 140,000 computers, the new breed of thief represents the elite in the criminal hierarchy. Typically, he is under 30, very bright, probably armed with a degree in advanced electronics and ready access to a computer. Challenged by the notion of "beating" a complex system, he is apt to rationalize that stealing from a bank or giant company is not really "illegal."

Experts say that an electronic system is an easy tool for "breaking and entering" because it does what it's told and can be programmed to cover the thief's tracks. As the intricate computers perform faster and faster, telescoping several bookkeeping operations into one, fewer details appear on print-outs (printed records of the computer's activities). Thus, if a thief changes a program to include, say, a $50,000 phony payment to an accomplice, then switches the program back to its original, there would be no printed evidence of the bogus item that can be traced.

Also, so much record keeping is centralized in a computer's brain that a talented larcenist can pull off a sizable haul with only a few seconds at the machine and the ability to instruct it.

● In Salinas, Calif., an accountant plundered $1,000,880 from his company during a six-year period by recording in the computer higher payments for raw material than his company actually paid. Craftily, the accountant had the computer assign the extra cash to his own dummy firm.

● Last year, a chief teller at a New York savings-bank branch was charged with salting away more than $1.5 million from the bank's deposits. He was said to have cleverly shuffled hundreds of inactive accounts, feeding false information into the bank's computer so that the accounts always appeared up to date whenever quarterly interest payments came due.

● Incredibly, someone was able to manipulate Penn Central Railroad computers to divert 277 freight cars, worth $1 million, to a small Illinois railroad and hide them there.

● Every weekend a quiet employee in charge of computer cards at a brokerage firm went to his office. There, he arranged for computers to gradually transfer $250,000 from his company's account to his wife's account by showing the money had been used to buy stock. This went on for eight years, and the employee was even promoted to vice president before his filching was discovered.

● Unquestionably the most spectacular case of swindle-by-computer was the infamous Equity Funding Corporation case last year. Over $2 billion in dummy life insurance policies on nonexistent persons were artfully programmed into company computers, and tapes printed out sham assets, all accepted as legitimate by auditors. "Policies" were sold to other insurance companies for cash. To cover up the hocus-pocus further, fake death certificates were programmed into computers. Clearly, those magical machines turned out to be the key flimflam implements, used by Equity executives on a grander scale than ever before.

What's disturbing data-processing companies and big business is that fraud is so hard to detect. In the Equity Funding fiasco, the scandal exploded only after a former employee tipped off a Wall Street analyst. Usually, culprits are uncovered merely by accident rather than by audits. The New York savings-bank embezzlement, for instance, popped up after a police raid on a bookie joint. The police found records showing the chief teller had been betting as much as $30,000 a day. That led to his undoing.

One Minneapolis programmer had siphoned off a small fortune from a bank by having the computer ignore overdrafts in his own account. This speculator was apprehended only because the computer broke down and the bank's accounts had to be checked manually.

How to prevent such automated ripoffs? Not surprisingly, the menace has generated a data-security industry composed of about 20 private companies, and IBM has launched a $40 million research program to thwart frauds. All kinds of gadgetry and computer "audits" have been introduced in efforts to make the machines crime proof.

A top computer manufacturer, Honeywell, Inc., recently devised a scheme called Multics that restricts the total amount of information available to any user. In addition, every person with access to a computer will have to identify himself by a combination of passwords and project numbers. "We're plugging some of the holes in the old system," says Jerry Lobell, manager of Honeywell's data-security task force.

Still, according to Stanford research engineers, it will take at least five years, maybe ten, to develop wholly invulnerable systems. Meanwhile, smart crooks keep honing their skills. Convicts can even enroll in helpful computer courses offered as job training in many prisons.

On the bright side, there's the curious case of Jerry Schneider, a 25-year-old engineer who concocted a gimmick for ordering expensive equipment from a West Coast company through its computer by punching the right beep tones on his own touch phone. In three years he acquired about $1 million worth, setting up his own business to sell the loot—until a disgruntled confederate blew the whistle that landed Schneider in jail.

GOLDEN CHICKEN CALIFORNIAN
(Electric Skillet)

- 1 (5½-6 lb.) capon roasting chicken
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- Few twists freshly ground black pepper
- 2 onions, each stuck with 2 cloves
- 1 large orange, quartered
- 2 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 teaspoon curry powder
- 1¼ cups orange juice
- 1½ cups dry white wine
- Giblets from chicken, rinsed
- 3 cups water
- 1 stalk celery, broken
- 2 tablespoons flour
- Curried skillet rice (recipe below)
- 2 navel oranges, peeled and sliced
- 3 bananas, peeled and cut in chunks
- 2 avocados, peeled and sliced

1. Rinse chicken and pat dry with paper towels. Sprinkle inside with ½ teaspoon salt and few twists freshly ground black pepper.

2. Stuff chicken with 1 onion and orange quarters. Close body cavity with round toothpicks; secure with cord. Tie legs together.

3. Heat vegetable oil, butter and curry powder at 350°F. (medium) in electric skillet. Brown chicken slowly on all sides, turning with two large spoons so skin will not break. Browning will take 8-10 minutes.

4. Lift chicken and slide metal trivet or rack underneath. Pour 1 cup orange juice and 1 cup white wine over chicken; cover, leaving vent open. Turn heat to 250°F., or medium low, and roast for about 2 hours, allowing approximately 20 minutes per lb. Baste chicken once or twice with pan drippings, adding more orange juice if needed.

5. Meanwhile place chicken giblets, 3 cups water, ½ teaspoon salt, celery and remaining onion in 2-qt. saucepan. Bring to boiling; reduce heat and simmer for 45-60 minutes, until tender. Strain; discard vegetables, reserve broth. Chop giblets finely for gravy if desired.

6. When chicken is done, remove from skillet, cover with foil and keep warm. Pour drippings from skillet into measuring cup. Skim off fat, reserve drippings.

7. In 1-qt. saucepan blend 2 tablespoons drippings with flour smoothly. Stir in 1½ cups reserved chicken broth, remaining ½ cup dry white wine and remaining ½ teaspoon salt. Bring to boiling, stirring constantly.

8. Place chicken over bed of hot curried rice; place orange slices here and there on rice.

9. Gently toss banana chunks and avocado slices with remaining ¼ cup orange juice. Place around chicken. Cover and heat 1 minute, just till heated through.

10. Carve chicken at table. Serve gravy in heated sauceboat.

IS IT POSSIBLE?

An Automatic Income for Life of $20,000... $50,000... $100,000 a Year... Without Working... from a Business That Runs Itself!

"I'll show you dozens of plans you can start easily — without investing a cent!" says Ty Hicks.

Dear Friend:

Did you ever stop to think how great it would be to have an automatic income for the rest of your life — an income that goes on whether you work or not? An income of $200 . . . $400 . . . $800 . . . $1,000 a week or more, to do with as you please?

Believe it or not, there are actually scores of businesses that could be bringing you a fortune, without your lifting a finger! Easy, proven, money-making businesses that practically run themselves — to give you extra income without work! All you bring to them is a little ingenuity and the step-by-step methods outlined in this book!

Furthermore, you can get into many of these businesses, in your spare time — and build a fortune fast — starting with no money of your own! That's right! An automatic income, without investing a cent!

For Example —

- I'd like to tell you about a method a former blue-collar worker uses — requiring no equipment other than a pencil and paper, and no special skills. He helps other businesses get started. As part of his fee, he becomes a "silent partner" in each business. Today he has an income of more than $50,000 a year, from some 18 businesses. Yet he doesn't work even a minute a month at any of them!
- In another spectacular fortune-making method, all you do is make up company names, and sell them to companies that need names. Using this method, one fortune builder sold nearly $30,000 worth of corporate names in 6 months. And in the next six months, she sold $237,700 worth of names! All without investing a cent of her own!
- And I'd like to show you how another fortune builder acquired a business that practically runs itself — a parking lot — without spending a cent of his own, even though he was a bad credit risk. Today, he owns 14 parking lots. His net income from each lot is $15,000 per year, giving him a total net income of $210,000 per year!

I Want To Tell You All About These — And Many Other —"Automatic Income" Opportunities Entirely At My Risk! Like This:

Success can, and will be yours — if you use these suggestions and apply these techniques. I use them myself. My name is Ty Hicks. Today I have several automatic incomes going for me. "Automatic" because I spend less than TWO DAYS A WEEK, supervising these businesses — with ample time for things like travel, entertainment, hobbies!

You'll find the full details in a new book which I have written . . . an eye-opening, profit-laden book that shows you a dazzling array of powerful, proven, money-making opportunities . . . 90% of which require little or no cash, and even less effort!

How To Borrow Your Way To A Great Fortune!

Whether you're a man or woman, old, young, married, unmarried . . . Even if you haven't got a job . . . or are a member of a minority group . . . or have no permanent residence . . . these techniques will work for you!

You'll discover . . .

- How you can get up to $5,000 easily on your signature alone, even if you have been refused before!
- How you can get up to $5,000 for as little as $8 a month!
- How you can get as many as six signature loans, for $5,000 each — in ONE DAY — for a total of $30,000!
- How you can get a large sum of money — thousands of dollars — that does not have to be repaid, is interest-free, tax-free, and can be used for any business purpose, including your salary!
- Over 10,000 ready sources of cash for you (many by mail)!

I'll show you how to use a loan as your springboard to riches! For unlike a car or TV loan, which doesn't pay you anything back, except pleasure, a business loan will often pay you a PROFIT of $50, $100, $200 or more PER WEEK!

Put these wealth-studded tips to work and you can soon be richer than you ever thought possible.

Instant Money Can Be Yours!

Every year, thousands of beginning wealth builders hit the big money by using borrowed money. Many of these have no credit rating of any kind when they start. Yet they hit the big money! Let me show you how! I'll show you how you may get all the money you need in a few hours — maybe even a few minutes!

Fantastic Fortune-Making Bargains!

There are unbelievably powerful fortune-making bargains available to you today. Opportunities — open to everyone — that you can take advantage of, with little or no cash, that can stuff wads of profit dollars in your pocket, quickly and easily!

For example, you'll discover —

- How a $23,500 split-level home was purchased for only $180.22 — and sold for thousands of dollars profit!
- How a 27-room mansion on 13 waterfront acres was purchased for only $98.18!
- How a $12,000 farm-style home was purchased for $55!
- How you may "mortgage out"—a technique that gives you ownership of a property with no money down and with a cash payment to you!

Incredible as it seems, these opportunities are in your local area right now! You don't need any kind of "luck" to find them. I'll show you exactly how to find such fortune-making bargains right away, in the pages of my book. Just apply a little imagination to fit them into your own situation — and you're on your way to a fortune like these.

Shortcuts That Zoom Your Income!

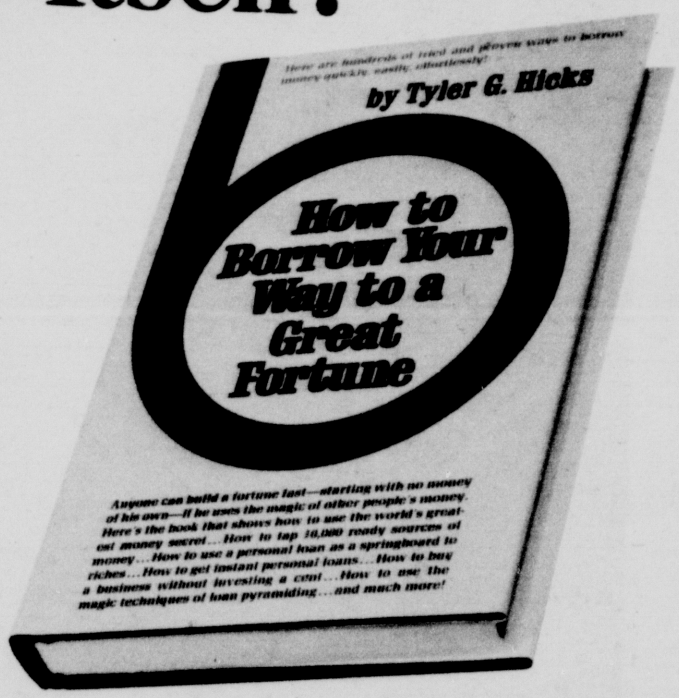
You can, by using the methods in this book, make yourself a millionaire. Others have done exactly that. I've watched them. People like—

- Cliff R. Using the secret just mentioned above, Cliff purchased and sold some 25 properties in a six-month period. His profit on these deals was $68,000!
- Sam T. used another one of the sources revealed in this book to get $400. He invested this money in valuable postage stamps, and sold them to fellow stamp club members. Within 3 years, he was worth $500,000!
- You'll see how Larry M. got the money he needed to buy $14,000 worth of paintings. In 2 years, he was offered almost FIVE TIMES as much for them. But Larry waited another year and sold them for more than SIX TIMES the purchase price: $100,000. This is a neat income — particularly when you remember that Larry didn't invest a dime of his own!
- Ben D., considered such a poor credit risk that six banks had refused him time after time, used a method revealed in this book to get a $50,000 five-year loan in less than 30 minutes! He used this money to buy a restaurant. Today, he has five booming restaurants, and more money than he can spend!
- Joel L. started with a gas station which he took over, using one of the many easy loans I tell you about. Once Joel had the gas station, he began to look around for other easy-money businesses. Soon he had a real estate office, a pet shop, a hardware store, a second gas station, and a laundry. His net income from these businesses was $75,000 the first year!
- Herb F. was a mailman for the Post Office, in a little town in the midwest. Using the method I tell you about — for obtaining large sums of money for as little as $8 a month — he obtained $40,000 without putting up a cent! He used this money to buy a $600,000 motel. Today he's on easy street. Yet it took him only a few weeks to hit it big!
- Clint T. couldn't stand the 9-to-5 routine of his job. He decided he had to make a pile of money as quickly as possible. Using one of the sources revealed in this book, he borrowed $2,000 and invested it in a meat business. In less than 2 months, he made a profit of $12,300 — OR OVER $200 PER DAY FOR DOING NOTHING, while he had other people's money invested!

Everywhere I go in this world I meet successful, wealthy people. Were you to travel with me you'd meet these rich people in the best hotels, the finest restaurants, exclusive clubs, and the biggest resorts. What's more, you'd learn a great secret from these wealth builders.

- Nearly every person who built great wealth for himself in recent years did so with little or no cash and wound up with a lot of money!

If you met these people, as I have, you'd soon be convinced that the best way to build a fortune today is by using OPM — other people's money. And you would be right. It is the most powerful, the greatest key to fast riches, starting with little or no cash, known in the world today!



Use A Loan As Your Springboard To Riches

Thousands of people have asked me — How, and where, can I borrow the money I need to start, expand, or improve a business?

My new book, HOW TO BORROW YOUR WAY TO A GREAT FORTUNE, tells you! It probably gives more sources of loans than any other book ever published — small loans, big loans!

There are hundreds of profitable deals you can set up, using this ready cash! You'll learn about these in my book. I'll show you how to get into a business that's

- Simple to run!
- Gives an immediate income!
- Can grow quickly!

. . . and give you an automatic income for the rest of your life, perhaps! An income that goes on whether you work or not!

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Ty Hicks has built several fortunes for himself and others, using the methods he gives you in this book. Today he has several automatic incomes going for him. "Automatic" because he spends less than two days a week, supervising these businesses — with ample time for things like travel, entertainment, and hobbies!

More amazing still, he began his search for wealth with no contacts, no private fortune, his father having died when Mr. Hicks was only 14. Today he is personal advisor to many aspiring fortune builders. His activities include conferences on business planning, at $50 an hour.

During his career, Mr. Hicks has made money in hotels, apartment houses, rental real estate, boating, shipping, publishing, amusements, the stock market, printing, engineering, and theaters. He is at present the owner of several important service industries, as well as the author of three other best-selling books: How to Build a Second-Income Fortune in Your Spare Time, Smart-Money Shortcuts to Becoming Rich, and How to Start Your Own Business on a Shoestring and Make Up to $100,000 A Year.

Fettucine (Noodles) Alfredo: Cheese and Pasta Lovers Take Note!

This dish was made famous by two restaurants in Italy, both of which claim to be the original Alfredo's. Each was founded by the same man; one was sold, the other is managed by a son of the late Alfredo. Son Armando follows the ceremony his father initiated: soft music, candlelight and the drama of watching a dish being prepared especially for you, right before your eyes.

You can find Fettucine Alfredo in American restaurants, too – but it is not an inexpensive dish! So why not learn to prepare it yourself? The ingredients are few; the method, simple. Follow our step-by-step directions and see for yourself.

FETTUCINE ALFREDO

2 tablespoons salt
4 qts. boiling water
4 tablespoons butter or margarine, softened
2 cups freshly grated Parmesan cheese
½ cup heavy cream, slightly warmed
Few twists freshly ground black pepper

1. Add salt to rapidly boiling water. Gradually add noodles so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, 7-8 minutes, until tender. Drain in colander.

2. Turn hot noodles into hot 2-qt. casserole or hot chafing dish over warmer.

3. Add butter 1 tablespoon at a time, and toss until well coated.

4. Add cheese about ½ cup at a time and toss again. Pour in cream; toss. Finish off with several twists of freshly ground black pepper.

Makes 6 servings

TIPS FOR SUCCESSFUL FETTUCINE ALFREDO

1. Have all tossing ingredients—soft butter, grated Parmesan, cream and pepper grinder—arranged on a tray.

2. The casserole must be warm. If using a chafing dish, have the hot water in the bottom and the candle or Sterno lit.

3. Once the noodles are drained thoroughly, proceed with the tossing steps.

4. Toss thoroughly after adding each ingredient, in order to incorporate as much air as possible But it must be done quickly, too, so the noodles stay piping hot!

Top with something crispy—French fried onion rings or coarsely crushed crackers or potato chips—and bake 5 minutes longer. (Or prepare in electric skillet, heat 15 minutes, until bubbly. ROD GILBERT:
Playboy With a Spine of Steel

Rodrique "Rod" Gilbert, star right wing of the New York Rangers, has been regarded as hockey's No. 1 "swinger." A 32-year-old bachelor, the handsome Gilbert is well-known on Manhattan's swinging East Side—or at least was, before he got engaged recently to Judy Preston, an airline hostess. Rod, who models Pierre Cardin clothes and is part-owner of a discotheque, says, "People think a 'playboy' is a man who stays out all night and drinks and carouses. I'm not like that. My professional life is hockey, and I keep in the best possible condition during the season." . . . Gilbert proved he was no soft playboy when he came back to his rough-and-tumble sport after undergoing two spinal-fusion operations that nearly terminated his career. . . . Gilbert is a fast skater and flashy shotmaker. A native of Montreal, he began playing hockey in the fourth grade. With old friend and playing mate Jean Ratelle, he was called to New York during the 1960-'61 season. He and Ratelle subsequently were joined by Vic Hadfield to form a "G.A.G. line" (Goal-a-Game line). . . . Gilbert now earns nearly $200,000 a year—which will enable him to support his bride-to-be in the most luxurious style.

The Diet Watch

Some Low-Calorie Tips for Desserts

Some dieters simply don't feel satisfied without something sweet to end a meal. In that case, replace the high-calorie tasty with the low. If you cook, and a dessert recipe calls for sugar (a half cup equals 385 calories!), you can often use artificial sweetener with no calories. If your mouth waters for luscious gobs of whipped cream on strawberries, whip up a half cup of evaporated skim milk (92 calories) instead of a half cup of heavy cream (420 calories), to serve two people. Make a gourmet rum-chocolate mousse dessert by adding a few drops of rum extract to a low-calorie chocolate pudding. Even if you don't cook, furnish a corner of a kitchen shelf with flavorful extracts: banana, maple, pineapple (the newest is chocolate). A few drops of the banana flavor turn a glass of skim milk into a tropical-oriented banana-milk drink. And don't forget fruits. They have enough sugar to provide a satisfied feeling, so they're ideal for topping off a meal.—By Harriet La Barre

Family Flak

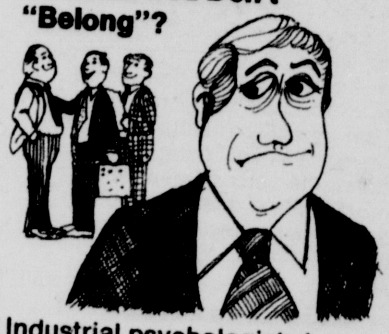
People and You

Why Single Women Are Happier Than Bachelors

If we've heard it once, we've heard it a thousand times: how the "poor guy was trapped into marriage" by some desperate woman. The truth is that many studies prove that single women are happier, healthier and more fulfilled than the footloose men. The single woman, it has been found, is better able to work through her problems, stronger in meeting life's challenges. The strain on the unmarried man reveals itself in his being much more susceptible to mental illness. Also, his chances of being accidentally killed are significantly higher. But women are apt to have strong ties to family and friends. This helps them keep their equilibrium.—By Shirley Sloan Fader

Jobmanship

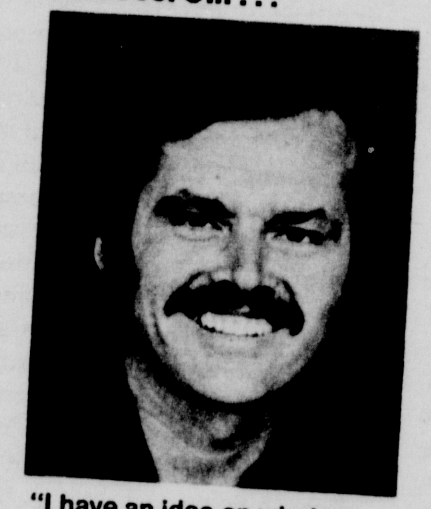
Are You Unhappy at Work Because You Don't "Belong"?



Industrial psychologists have proved that to be happy on a job you must know that you "belong," that you are accepted by your co-workers. They've also discovered that all of us have a strong desire to be proud of the people we work with. If your job depresses you, this could be the problem. No matter how you try to smooth this over, others will surely sense your true reaction to them. And your feelings will create a barrier, turning you into an "outsider." It's a basic fact of human nature that in order to have yourself accepted into a group, you in turn have to accept the group! One typical example: On a new job you may discover that the standard employee attitude toward the company is negative. You either go along with the gripes and adopt the group's negative viewpoint or you quickly find yourself living the "outsider" life. And if you don't like either alternative, consider finding work elsewhere.—By S. R. Redford

Celebrity Soapbox

JACK NICHOLSON:
"Let the President's Job Cool Off. . . ."



"I have an idea on what we ought to do with the Presidency," proclaims actor Jack Nicholson. "I think no one should run for President for a while. Let's wait until the right person comes along. Think about it. That's not as strange as it sounds. We should just let the Presidency sit there for a while without trying to fill it, and see what happens. Let the job cool off. What's wrong with that? The country would keep running. Everybody is so busy anyhow doing their thing in government that the country wouldn't stand still. We could just let the office sit there until the moment when there really would be a person with enough stature to fit the job." Jack Nicholson is currently starring in "The Last Detail." —Interviewed by William Wolf

A special presentation from the Lincoln Mint to commemorate the 10th Anniversary of the death of

John F. Kennedy

Now...the admirers of the martyred President can own a limited edition of Sterling Silver Commemorative Medals

Few men in history have so completely captured the hearts and minds of the peoples of the world as did John Fitzgerald Kennedy. Now, it is time to record his greatness—for all to cherish ... while each of us can personally feel his great impact.

ILLUSTRATED ABOVE ARE 7 OF THE 36 MEDALS IN THE SERIES

Limited Editions

You will have only one limited opportunity to acquire this historic Sterling Silver Collection—each album of which will be numbered and registered.

The 36 commemorative medals—The Legacy of John Fitzgerald Kennedy—will be limited to a maximum of 5,000 Solid Sterling Silver Sets. There will be no additional sets of this edition ever minted. Sets will be allocated on the basis of the postmark date and time shown on the envelope. Once the maximum number of sets is allocated, additional subscriptions will be returned.

Once subscription rolls are filled, you will never again have the opportunity to acquire this Sterling Silver Series unless you are able to persuade an original subscriber to part with his Set—or you can acquire a Set from an heir of one of the original subscribers.

In addition, a limit of one subscription per person will be strictly enforced. There will be exactly 5,000 Solid Sterling Silver Set owners. Many subscriptions have already been received. Thus, it must be emphasized that the sooner your subscription is mailed and postmarked, the greater your chances of acceptance.

Each commemorative medal will be minted in 39 mm size (slightly larger than a silver dollar) in Solid Sterling Silver. Each album will be numbered and registered.

Heirloom Quality

Because of the strict limit on subscriptions, each Set will have a basic heirloom quality: rarity. This very quality may help the Set to increase in monetary value as the years pass. It will also become increasingly valuable as a cherished family possession because it will portray, in precious metal, beautifully minted and exquisitely crafted, the major events and deeds in the life of the late President John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

Two Medals A Month

The first medal in the Series will be delivered to you shortly after your order is received and accepted, provided the subscription rolls have not been filled.* You will receive two medals a month over the next 18 months (1 medal the last month), together with an invoice for the next month's medals. Each medal consists of at least one full ounce of .925 Sterling Silver. And, although you might expect to pay a considerable amount of money for each of these Solid Sterling Silver Medals, the price has been established at just $14.50 each, plus 45¢ to cover postage and handling.

Beautiful Collector's Album

When you receive your first medal as a subscriber to this Series, you will also receive at no additional cost, an attractive album, numbered and registered in your name, in which to display and protect your medals.

A Distinguished Panel

We asked four distinguished Americans to select the events in President Kennedy's life which they felt were most worthy of commemoration.

Dr. Arthur Mann, Chairman American History Field Committee; Professor, U. of Chicago.

Newton Minow, former Chairman, FCC.

Harry Golden, Author-Editor, Carolina Israelite; Charlotte, N. Carolina.

You Must Act Now

If you are a collector, you will know the thrill of owning an original work of medallic art such as this. If you have never collected medals or art, you have a rare opportunity.

Included as a Gift with your subscription your own tape player and major excerpts of J.F.K.'s most famous speeches on an exclusive tape recording.

The Lincoln Mint is pleased to be able to include, as your gift with each subscription, a valuable tape player plus an exclusive tape recording created especially for this Series by the Columbia Records Special Projects Division, containing major excerpts from the most important and historic speeches of John F. Kennedy. The tape player is useable with any other cassette cartridge.

The Way You See Yourself – Does It Affect How Others See You?

True or False: The less confidence a person has in his own ability, the more likely he is to go in for gossip—even about his closest friends. (See number 5)

First of all, you should know that you are not alone. Thousands of people experience pain from dry, hard stools. The reason is often constipation or hemorrhoids. What's needed is something that will soften intestinal waste for smooth, comfortable relief.

And that's exactly what Serutan does. Serutan is a softening laxative that helps relieve painful elimination. It forms a smooth, mild gel that supplies moisture and bulk to bring effective relief without strain or griping.

Do you suffer from painful elimination? Try the Serutan way to gentle regularity. Soon you should discover that elimination can be as smooth, easy and comfortable as nature intended.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Your self-esteem—what you think of yourself—is related to how much you like what you see in the mirror.

2. The less a person thinks of himself, the less he is concerned with what others think of him.

3. How much a man thinks of himself has a direct bearing on when he will marry and whether he will wed a woman older or younger than himself.

4. If you don't like yourself, nobody else is likely to.

5. The less confidence a person has in his own ability, the more likely he is to go in for gossip—even about his closest friends.

6. There is only one way to increase your self-esteem.

ANSWERS

1. True. Psychological studies at Washington University have demonstrated that people who lack self-esteem tend to be highly critical of what they see in the mirror. Even if they have good-looking features and are considered attractive by others, they are prone to find fault, to nit-pick ("My eyes are too close together; I hate that cleft in my chin," etc.). On the other hand, people who are on good terms with themselves are likely to be quite charitable about what the mirror shows them, even if their features are not prepossessing. Their self-confidence and feeling of inner worth enable them to shrug off the blemishes philosophically.

2. False. Studies conducted by investigators from two leading universities show that a person with low self-esteem has feelings that are very easily hurt and that this makes him "more sensitive to criticism . . . more concerned about what people 'really' think of him."

3. True. As evidenced by the studies of sociologists Patrick W. Luck and Jerold Heiss, which showed that "men with low self-esteem were more likely to marry older women . . . and more likely to marry at an older age (28 or older) than those with high self-esteem." Findings were based on personality test scores and interviews to determine the degree of self-esteem, which was defined as: satisfaction with what one is—or has accomplished.

4. True—according to the findings of studies sponsored by the National Science Foundation, which indicate that self-acceptance and social acceptance not only tend to go hand in hand but are "inextricably combined." Other investigations have also shown that people who are on good terms with themselves are also likely to be on similarly good terms with others.

5. True As shown by a university study that compared students' scores on self-esteem tests with their penchant for gossiping about others. Results showed that "an individual who gossips indiscriminately will tend to have a defective image of himself." It's noted by the investigators that the indiscriminate gossiper does not possess the secure ties with others on which a secure self-image depends. And it's further observed that often the gossip itself is the only bond between the gossipers.

6. True. Consensus of psychological studies shows that lack of self-esteem results from a negative attitude toward oneself caused by the discrepancy between a person's ideal self-image and his actual self-image. He fails to achieve what he feels he should, and when this happens consistently, both his self-respect and his self-confidence begin to suffer. It may be that he sets unreachable goals for himself, and that he needs to reevaluate his potential and set his sights on objectives that are realistic and within his capacities to achieve.

How YOU Can Collect $1,000's In Free G.I. Veterans Benefits!

Amazing Facts Revealed — 265 Free Benefits For Qualified Veterans Of Vietnam, Korea, WWII — Up To 30 Years After Discharge!

by Paul Michael

© Copyright 1974, Good News Publishing Company

No matter what your branch of service—whether you've been a veteran for 30 days or 30 years—start collecting your free G.I. benefits immediately!

You don't know me from Adam, but I have dug up some absolutely startling facts and information that can mean thousands of dollars in YOUR pocket!

You served honorably to protect your country in time of great national emergency—in World War II, Korea, Vietnam!

But, when was the last time YOU got something from your Government?

Last week? Last month? Last year? Never?

If you are like most of us, you believe that you are not entitled to any free G.I. benefits and services—or, that all your benefits ran out a long time ago.

NOT TRUE!

For example, did you know that . . .

- If YOU are a World War II veteran YOU are entitled to up to $12,500 in G.I. loans to purchase, construct, refinance or improve your home—to buy a farm, farm machinery, supplies, equipment!
- If YOU are a Korean veteran YOU are entitled to borrow up to $10,000 to buy a mobile home—up to $17,500 if the site is included!
- If YOU are a Vietnam veteran YOU are entitled to up to $210.00 a month for 36 months to pay for your education or retraining.
- If YOU are the wife, son or daughter of a soldier who was killed or wounded in Vietnam, Korea or World War II—you have $1,000's in free benefits and services owed to you right now!

And, as a veteran or dependent, you may well be entitled to FREE medical treatment, FREE dental treatment—FREE education for your children—FREE job-finding assistance—Civil Service preference—special low-interest loans and mortgages—thousands upon thousands of dollars worth of benefits and services!

I made this discovery quite by accident. A friend of mine down in Miami told me that I was entitled to $210.00 a month in educational benefits, even though I was discharged over 20 years ago. He was right!

It started me thinking and digging into the mass of confusing rules and regulations on free G.I. benefits due to all veterans. Here are some of the things I found out:

- Free G.I. benefits and services DO NOT come to you automatically. You will NEVER get a letter from the Government or the V.A. telling you about them. YOU must know about them—YOU must qualify for them—YOU must apply for them!
- You are probably being "cheated" out of $1,000's in these free benefits and services.
- You are entitled to these free benefits and services—whether you have been out of the service for 30 days—or even 30 years!
- The money to pay for these free services has already been set aside by Congress. It is just sitting there waiting for you and/or your dependents to claim it.

It's a darned shame that you haven't been told until now. The veterans' rights mess is such a scandal that some Congressmen are calling for an investigation!

But, it's not too late. The important thing is that NOW you can claim your rightful share—the share you "paid for" with your time in service. Last year alone it added up to a $9 billion bonanza! Don't be too surprised to learn that you may be entitled to:

- G.I. Bill aid worth up to $8,000 during four years of enrollment in a qualified college or educational institution!
- The nation's best buy in life insurance that offers real protection!
- Fulltime or outpatient medical care in a VA hospital!
- Pensions as high as $130.00 per month even when the disability is not connected with military service!
- Preference in competing for and retaining a job with the federal government!
- VA guaranteed or direct loans to buy, build or improve a home in which you intend to live or a farm which you plan to operate!

These free benefits and services could fill a book. And now, with the help of a friend, that's exactly what I've done. I call it "How To Get What The U.S. Government Owes Veterans And Their Dependents!" It shows over 265 benefits and services available to qualified veterans of Vietnam, Korea and World War II. But it doesn't just list them, mind you, it tells you how to get them. It tells you what to do to qualify, who to contact (including all necessary names and addresses) and what to say. And perhaps most important of all, the editors have taken out all the technical language and have cut through the usual red tape to make it easy for you to apply for and get all the free benefits and services you are entitled to without problems or hassles!

Although this book can mean hundreds and perhaps thousands of dollars to you, it is priced at only $4.95. Remember, it is not enough to qualify for veterans benefits and services—you must know exactly how to apply for them.

2 Extra Reports—Free!

Yes! When you order right away, you get 2 Extra Reports—Free! Free Report #1: "How Veterans Can Get All The Help They Need From Veterans Organizations!" Free Report #2: "How Veterans Can Get All The Help They Need From The Red Cross!"

$100.00 In Benefits—Guaranteed!

In fact, you have a double, 100% no-risk guarantee. If you don't like the book when it arrives, return it for an immediate refund of your $4.95, no questions asked. Or, keep it and use it for a full year. If you don't collect at least $100.00 in free benefits and services, send it back next year. You still get your $4.95 back!

Just One More Thing . . .

We all see newspaper ads by fly-by-night operators. They use phoney names and hide behind post offices box numbers and care only about getting your money. I can assure you that I am a real person; a veteran (US 51347738); that I really work for the Good News Publishing Company (you can look us up in the telephone book—or stop by for a visit); that I'm really interested in helping you and other veterans claim your rightful share of free G.I. benefits. Think about that for a moment!

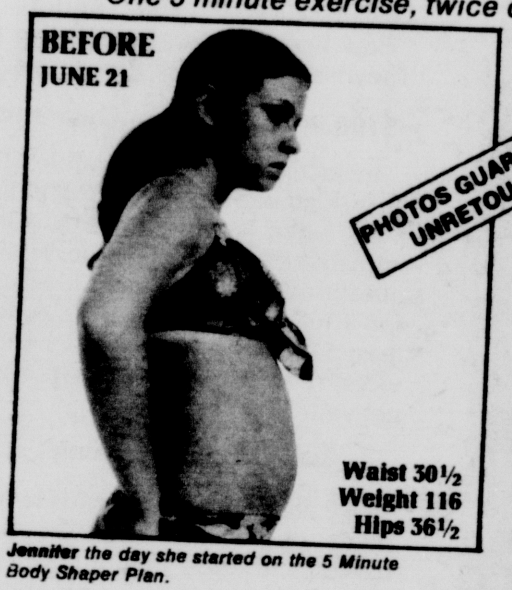
THE MOST AMAZING AND SUCCESSFUL BODY SHAPER EVER CREATED

JENNIFER McCARTHY writes to tell us...

CASE #2116

"I lost 6½ inches off my waist, 15 pounds of excess weight, 2¼ inches off my hips...shaped up in just 14 days!"

One 5 minute exercise, twice daily, lying on my back, without giving up the foods I love...DID IT!



Jennifer the day she started on the 5 Minute Body Shaper Plan.

KEN WALLER writes to tell us that...

CASE #136

"I lost 3 inches off my waistline, 6 pounds...and shaped up - in 5 days!"

One 5 minute exercise, twice daily, lying on my back, without giving up the foods I love...DID IT!

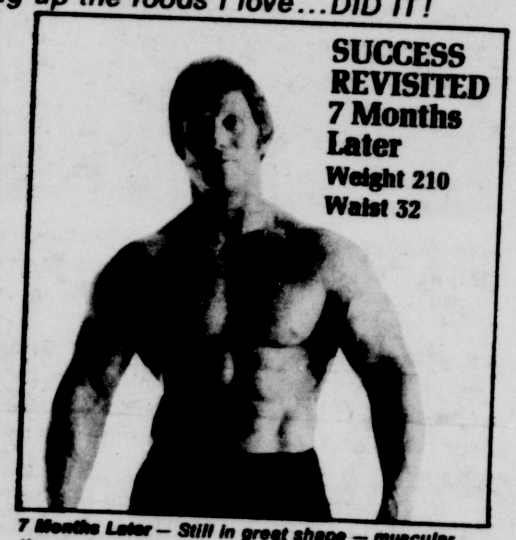
Only 5 Days Later — Gut gone, and shaping up. Fast Enough?



7 Months Later — Still in great shape — muscular, firm and rugged — Results that Stay!

Joe Weider, fitness expert and trainer of champions since 1936 says:

"Give me 5 minutes twice daily for only 7 days and you'll lose up to 3 inches from your waistline, up to 6 pounds of unwanted weight, and 'shape up' — or I will return every penny."

LET'S FACE THE FACTS WHY YOU'RE OUT OF SHAPE

You eat the wrong combination of foods, you do not get enough exercise to thoroughly work your muscular, metabolic and respiratory systems daily. Because of this, fat accumulates around your waistline, heart and other body organs, slowing you down, aging your body and destroying your vitality, virility and youth. There is only one way to firm up and shape up: that is through proper exercise and proper nutrition. Effortless exercisers, reducing pills, sauna shorts, weighted belts, dangerous and painful diets and other gimmicks designed to appeal to your laziness will not work and have been exposed by the medical profession as frauds, ineffective and in some cases dangerous. They can only reduce your pocketbook.

Face up to it...If you want to slim down, firm and shape up, you must work off the inches, and there is no safer, faster and more enjoyable way to do it than with our patented, truly miraculous "5" Minute Body Shaper Plan.

HOW DOES THIS INGENIOUS "5" MINUTE PLAN SLIM, FIRM AND SHAPE YOU UP?

Its miraculous slimming action is based on doing one simple "5" Minute Continuous Rhythm coordinated exercise, lying on your back! That's all you do! That's all your body needs to help make up for the lack of activity it doesn't get most of the day. The action is designed to supply your waistline and hipline (where fat accumulates quickest, giving your body a flabby, weak and distorted look) with the activity it needs to slim you and keep you slim. It also burns off excess fat FAST by speeding up your metabolism and respiratory system, using up stored calories, carbohydrates and fats and releasing excess water, thereby shaping and firming up your total body!

The unit weighs about 16 ounces and fits any wallet-size case. You can carry it with you and use it — anytime — wherever there's floor space for your body. Even while watching television.

Patent Pending. Copyright Joe Weider, 1974

ASK YOUR DRUGGIST ABOUT BiCOZENE

When your child can't sit still, is it nervousness or is it Pin-Worms?

Fidgeting, distraction, fitful scratching of rectal itch—many people don't know these "nervous habits" can be caused by Pin-Worms. These almost invisible parasites are so common, medical authorities have said 1 out of 3 children examined, and many parents, may have Pin-Worms.

They can infect anyone—young or old, rich or poor. Worst of all, Pin-Worms are highly contagious, so they can spread from person to person, until the whole family is infected.

Fortunately, there is an easy-to-take medication called Jayne's® P-W® tablets that gets rid of Pin-Worms. Your pharmacist will tell you that Jayne's P-W tablets are specially formulated with an effective medical ingredient that drives Pin-Worms out of your system. Ask for Jayne's P-W tablets at your drug store.

Doctors' Tests Show How You Can Actually Help Shrink Swelling of Hemorrhoidal Tissues

...Due to Inflammation and Infection. Also Get Prompt, Temporary Relief in Many Cases from Rectal Itching and Pain in Such Tissues.

When inflammation, infection and swelling exist in hemorrhoidal tissues—it can be very painful for the sufferer. But there's an exclusive formulation which in many cases gives hours of relief from the burning itch and pain in hemorrhoidal tissues. It also helps shrink the swelling of such tissues. Sufferers are delighted at the way it acts so gently and is so soothing to sensitive tissues.

Tests by doctors on hundreds of patients reported similar successful results in many cases. And it was all done without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or stinging, smarting astringents of any kind.

You can obtain this same medication used in these tests at any drug counter. Its name is Preparation H. Preparation H® also lubricates to protect the inflamed, irritated surface area to help make bowel movements more comfortable. Be sure and try Preparation H. In ointment or suppository form.

LARRY BROWN
Lightning and death

QUOTE: Larry Brown, star running back of the Washington Redskins, talks about religion: "For a while, I think everybody in the family felt I would be a preacher. I was going to church every Sunday and I really idolized my grandfather, my father's father, who was a preacher himself. . . . When I went to his funeral, it rained and stormed and the lightning crackled off the windows of the funeral home, and it was very scary. On the way to the cemetery, everybody sank knee-deep in the red clay, the rain poured down, everybody was crying. Ever since then it's always been a little scary for me when someone dies, over and above the death itself." From: "I'll Always Get Up," by Larry Brown with William Gildea (Simon and Schuster, $6.95). UNQUOTE.

Cyril Smith is English and, despite his 66-inch waist, he's made it in his political profession. (He's a member of Parliament.) But for fat Americans, the future may not be so bright. A new study shows that overweight people may be America's largest unprotected minority. The study, by Robert Half Personnel Agencies, reveals that of all executives earning $25,000 to $50,000, only nine percent were more than ten pounds overweight. But in the $10,000 to $20,000 range, 39 percent were more than ten pounds overweight. These figures, compared with a study done four years ago, show that discrimination against fat executives is increasing. "While there are countless laws making it illegal to discriminate because of color, sex, religion, ethnic origin and age, you're out in the cold if you're carrying too many pounds," says Half.

LOUISE OLIVIER
Not following in uncle's footsteps

Louise Olivier admits she's a theater buff, but she's not about to pursue a career on the stage like her famous uncle, Laurence Olivier. "My uncle has often asked me if I would like to go on the stage, but I don't think it's for me. I'm too busy making a career of modeling." So despite her good looks and the fact that for most of her life Lord Olivier has been a second father to her, Louise, 20, remains adamant about not wanting to act. "Anyway," she adds, "I'm not dedicated enough."

On Wednesday, the safety pin will be celebrating its 125th birthday. It was invented in 1849 by that king of ill-fated inventors, Walter Hunt of New York City. The idea came to Hunt in a flash, and it took him only three hours to work out the details. He immediately rushed to the Patent Office and obtained U.S. Patent No. 6,281 on his invention. The rest is history. Billions of safety pins have rescued millions of people from trillions of embarrassments. And Walter Hunt made his fortune, right? Wrong. Walter Hunt made exactly $100. Because on the same day he invented the safety pin, he sold his patent rights for that amount to a chap he met in the Patent Office.

SPOT CHECK

The window I wash,
The one with a spot,
Has the spot, I have found,
On the side where I'm not.

Leopards, I'm told,
Can't change spots on their hides,
But the spot on a window
Would seem to change sides.

For first I go out,
And then I come in,
But the spot's where I'm not,
Just as certain as sin.

It must be my eyesight,
Not magic, I say,
But I mostly give up
And just let the spot stay.

My new apartment has windows on all sides, so I get cross-pollution.
—Lillian Koslover

THROUGH A CHILD'S EYES
Kids see life differently. Send original contributions to "Child," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10022. $10 if used—none returned.

While walking along the main street of our small town with my six-month-old son, we approached another mother with twin boys aged two-and-a-half years old. One little boy was most friendly to my son, while the other little fellow seemed deep in thought. Finally he broke his silence and said to me, "Where's the other one of him?"

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

"WHAT MAKES CHILI PEPPERS TASTE HOT?"

CHILI IS THE MEXICAN NAME FOR ANY "HOT," RED PEPPER USED TO FLAVOR FOODS SUCH AS TAMALES AND CHILI CON CARNE. RED PEPPERS, OR CHILIES, GET THEIR PEPPERY TASTE FROM A SPICY SAP, OR RESIN, THAT THE PEPPER MAKES WHILE IT IS GROWING. SOME PEOPLE GET USED TO THIS STRONG, BURNING TASTE AND ENJOY IT. CHILI PEPPERS ARE NOT RELATED TO ORDINARY BLACK PEPPER EXCEPT BY TASTE.
